THE SHOALS.

"The season" at the Shoals ended last week; the "Major" ceased running to the Oceanic on Tuesday, and the "Appledore" to Appledore island one or two days later. The patronage received at the Oceanic has been sufficient to warrant Mr. Poor in largely extending his accommodations, which will be done in time for the commencement of next summer's travel. With the Laighton Brothers it has been the same old story, more guests than room, from very early in the season almost up to its close; and another large building is to be at once added to their already huge cluster, which they hope will enable them hereafter to accommodate all who may come,—though this probably will not be the case, as the popularity of the Appledore and its landlords has always grown faster than the hotel. The Laightons' schooner "Pilgrim" and sloop yacht "Ada" were moored for the winter at Noble's island about the first of the month, and on Saturday steam-tug Clara Bateman towed in from the Shoals the Appledore's landing stage, and moored it at the same place.

VETERAN ARTILLERY ASSOCIATION.

The participants in the clambake and general jollification are not yet done talking of the good time they had, and it is voted one of the most thoroughly successful affairs ever gotten up in this region. The committee of arrangements, Lieut. Samuel S. Frye, Quartermaster Sergeant John H. Wells and Orderly Sergeant William H. Kennedy, had to work hard to get everything all right, but they have the satisfaction of knowing that everybody was pleased and that there was no "hitch" anywhere. Messrs. Jewett and Campbell, of Hotel Wentworth, (and both members of the Association,) by their liberality and courteous attentions also contributed in no small degree to the success of the reunion and the pleasure of the Veterans and their guests.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

On Monday Mr. Edmund Whalley, who resides on Bridge street in this city and has charge of the gas-works at the navy yard, found that the gas was not flowing from the small to the large receiver, and entered the pit between them to see what was the matter, continuing to talk to his companion, Mr. Samuel Taylor, who was inside the gas-works building. Mr. Taylor soon heard something fall in the pit, and called to Mr. Whalley, who did not answer; and a speedy investigation by the former resulted in his finding the latter insensible at the bottom of the pit. The alarm was given and attempts were made to descend to his assistance, but the gas rendered it impossible to reach him until some sort of an iron hook was hastily constructed in the blacksmith shop, when he was pulled to the surface, and to the surprise of all present still alive. At the time our informant left the yard it was reported that Mr. Whalley would probably come out all right. It was a very narrow escape.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, September 13, before Batchelder, Justice:

James La Strange, for enjoying a little aristocratic drunk, which he owned up to doing, was obliged to listen to the following oration from the Court: "fined $3, costs taxed at $5.76."

John Tabor pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting a little girl, but the Court considered him guilty $10.72 worth. Mr. Tabor don't believe a higher court will charge him so much, and staked $50 against nothing that he will appear at the higher court to explain things satisfactorily.

A CORRECTION.

Some time since we credited Hon. Moses H. Goodrich with a petty exhibition of discourtesy to Rev. A. J. Patterson, the orator on the Fourth of July, in ostentatiously leaving the stage at the moment he commenced to speak. We were aware that Mr. Goodrich was one of the large number of democrats who left the Universalist church during the war on account of Mr. Patterson's preaching being distasteful to them, but we confess we were greatly surprised that he should allow a political memory to induce him, while Mayor of the city, to act with marked disrespect to the city's guest. We now learn that the imputation that he so acted was undeserved, as Mr. Goodrich entertains no hostility to Mr. Patterson, and his sole reason for leaving the stage was on account of the excessive heat, which compelled him to seek a cooler and more sheltered position. We are glad to be undeceived in this matter, trifling though it may be; for it is not pleasant to find one whom we have always regarded as a sensible and "square" man acting like a silly old woman on account of a petty personal dislike, or cherishing a political antipathy half a score of years after the occasion which led to it has passed away. Mr. Goodrich's assertion that his leaving the stage was owing to nothing political or personal (except a personal desire to escape the terrible heat of the day and crowd) will satisfy all who know him that our paragraph regarding it did him an injustice; it satisfies us of it,—hence this supplementary paragraph.

JOTTINGS.

From the report of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for the months of July and August, we learn that during that time the whole number of complaints has been 60; for overdriving, 5; beating, 2; driving lame and galled horses, 10; complaints without prosecution, 13; prosecuted, 3; general cruelty, 22. Cash donations received, $63.40 from Miss Morgan, the result of private theatricals for the benefit of the society, and $10 from Mrs. John J. Pickering.

Five fishing-steamers were in the harbor on Monday.

A call has been circulated and numerously signed by depositors in the Ten Cents Savings Bank, for a meeting at the Court House on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, to consider what measures, if any, should be taken to protect the depositors' interests.

At a meeting of the democrats of Ward Four, Saturday evening, Joseph R. Holmes, James W. Ledavour, William F. Russell and Samuel Langdon were chosen delegates to the Electoral Convention.

Fishing schooner Zephyr, of Gloucester, Mass., on Sunday afternoon fell in with schooner J. B. Stinson, of Deer Isle, Me., granite laden, leaking and abandoned, with all sail set, about seven miles north of the Shoals. The Zephyr's men set to work pumping and bailing, and finally succeeded in getting the derelict schooner into this port, where her crew (master and two men) had arrived before her in their small boat. The Stinson was bound to Boston, and would probably have gone to the bottom within an hour of the time she was boarded by her salvors.

The new Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company's office in this city is open for the reception and transmission of messages to all points West and South; the lines to the Eastward are not yet completed, but will be early in October. The office is in the northwest corner of the post-office building, and is in charge of Mr. Horace B. Kent, son of Sheriff J. Horace Kent.

We have received the October number of the "Folio," which contains, beside the usual amount of reading matter and a choice collection of music, a fine portrait of Maud Granger, the actress. The Folio is published by White, Smith & Co., No. 516 Washington street, Boston.

A wind and rain storm visited this city on Sunday afternoon, and lasted well through the night. Considerable water fell, and the breeze was pretty heavy at midnight and for several hours later, but nothing like the gale at points further west and south. No damage has yet been reported in this immediate vicinity, beyond the blowing off of a few window-blinds and the destruction of an awning or two.

NOTICE.

An adjourned meeting of the Hayes and Wheeler Guards will be held at 7:30 this evening, at the headquarters, under the Journal office.

News and Not's.

Lem Weeden, a notorious Washington rough, at one o'clock Thursday morning attempted to kill the bar-keeper of a club restaurant in that city, shooting him with two balls and breaking his arm. Weeden's third bullet hit James S. Maffit, the pantomimist, who was supping in the restaurant, passing through his hand and striking his breastbone. Maffit will be laid up for some weeks, and the would-be assassin for a much longer time, as the latter was promptly arrested.

Yellow fever is still raging at Savannah, and terrible suffering exists among the poor. Contributions are earnestly asked for. Charleston, Atlanta and other southern cities are doing all they can, in giving aid. Mayor Cobb, of Boston, has sent on $2500. E. C. Richardson, Esq., at the office of Nickerson & Co., 205 State street, Boston, will receive contributions.

U. S. S. Huron, Comdr. George P. Ryan, sailed from Boston for Fortress Monroe and the West Indies, on Saturday.

E. G. Frothingham, Esq., for twenty years or more editor of the Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette, and prominent in local politics, dropped dead on rising Sunday morning. He was about 70 years old.

The gale of Sunday was very severe at Philadelphia. A portion of the roofs of the main exhibition building and machinery hall were blown away and injury was done to many of the exhibits. The American and English exhibits suffered the most. Several others of the smaller buildings within the grounds were somewhat damaged by the storm. In all sections of the city trees, roofs and chimneys were carried away. Several persons were injured, but none of them seriously. In New York the wind was so heavy that some of the ferry-boats had to cease running.

The Travellers' Guide, which is widely read as the official authority on hotels and Summer resorts, speaks in unlimited praise of the famous Westminster Hotel, of 16th Street and Irving Place, New York City. This hotel is most popular with the better classes of travellers, is kept on the European plan, and affords unusual advantages. It is centrally located, is in a quiet part of the city, its accommodations are of the very best, while the prices are no higher than at other hotels.

Theodore Tilton has created another sensation. On Saturday morning a man named Wood boarded an express train at Albany, N. Y., to find his wife, who was returning from Vermont to New York, he proposing to accompany her to the city. He was directed to her berth, where he found what he was after,—his wife,—and what he was not after,—Theodore Tilton. Theodore was quite "tempest tossed" and attempted to explain that he had blundered into the wrong berth by mistake, but Mr. Wood expressed his disapprobation of such mistakes by hitting Tilton in the face; the latter then took refuge in the smoking car. The conductor of the train says that when he collected the tickets he found tickets and baggage checks for both Tilton and Mrs Wood in Tilton's berth.

Amos Cutler, a prominent real estate operator, of Watertown, Mass., has been arrested, charged with embezzling $60,000 with which he had been entrusted to negotiate a loan.

Thirty thousand pieces of Brussels carpeting, mostly of New England manufacture, were sold at auction at New York, Thursday, bringing from 87 cents to $1.52 1-2 per yard.

Captain Bateman, of the schooner Dresden, of Machiasport, Me., now at Providence, R. I., has been arrested by detectives charged with stealing $1,170 from William Mitchell, a retired sea captain of Machiasport. Captain Bateman, upon being locked up confessed the crime and told where the money was.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Daily Chronicle.

Origin of the Chinese Queue.

The history of the Chinese queue is told by Rev. Julius Doolittle, a missionary in China, as follows: The first emperor of the present dynasty, who began to reign in 1744, having usurped the throne, determined to make the tonsure of Mantchuria, his native country, the token of submission of the Chinese to his authority. He ordered them to shave all the head except the crown, and allowing the hair on that part to grow long, to dress it according to the custom of Mantchuria. The Chinese had been accustomed, under native emperors, to wear long hair over the whole head, and to arrange it in a tuft or coil. The change was gradual, but finally prevailed through the empire. At first, those who shaved their heads and conformed to the laws received, it is said, a present of a tael, and afterward only an egg—finally even an egg was not allowed. The law requiring the people to shave the head and braid the queue was not only rigidly enforced by the penalty of immediate death, but it became very manifest that those who did not conform to the wishes of the dominant dynasty would never become successful in a lawsuit against those who did conform, nor would they succeed at the literary examination.

—While walking around the camp at Lake Pleasant Monday morning, we observed two gentlemen from "our town" "engineering" the construction of a temporary bedstead of some rough boards. After watching their skilful manipulations of the hammer and saw for some time, we became convinced that the termination of their labor would be amusing, to say the least. The frame being completed and the tools put away, they proceeded with a self-satisfied air to carry the "thing" into their tent, when it was found that they had built it around a massive pine tree. They did not seem to realize it at first, but the roars of laughter from the bystanders gradually revealed to their astonished senses that they were "treed."—Fitchburg Sentinel.

—Harriet Dalziel (Dickie Lingard) has been gossipped about, and writes to the San Francisco Alta California to show that she is happy. She says that her husband did not deceive her before marriage with representations that he had great wealth and estates in England, and that she is not estranged from her sister, as charged. Further, there has been no financial trouble between her husband and Mr. Lingard, and the contented woman concludes with: "Mr. Editor, let me again say to all who care to know anything of me, that I am as happy as ever wife could be."

—"How do you like your new minister, Madge?" asked one very stylish dressed young lady of another, in a Highland car recently. "Oh, he is just splendid," she replied with animation. "You ought to see him, Maud. He is so handsome, and he prays so beautifully, and reads the hymns in such a lovely way; and besides, Maud, there was a dreadful scandal about him in the place where he preached before he came here."

PULMOCINE

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 29, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all any are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been so free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mr. Laurs Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

An Indian's Last Shot.

On Monday morning, Aug. 21, four white men, while out hunting about two miles from Deadwood, killed a deer, and while they were skinning it one of them saw an Indian approaching, leading his pony. He was probably trying to surprise them, but, being uncertain of their exact position, he had approached too near and they discovered him first. One of the party snatched up his shot-gun loaded with buck shot, and fired both barrels, bringing down the Indian and his pony. The confident manner in which the Indian had walked toward them had led them to suppose that he was supported by a number of others, and so they quickly retreated toward Deadwood for reenforcements. A party started out to scout the country, and on reaching the spot where the deer lay, the men saw the body of the Indian by the side of his pony, and, thinking him dead, they rushed forward. This action was fatal to one of the party, for a shot from the Indian's ride struck him in the head. A volley from the others killed the Indian instantly, however, and his body was quickly surrounded by the white men. The Indian had been almost riddled with buckshot, one shoulder and both legs having been broken, yet he had managed to bandage his legs and to take unerring aim with his wounded arm. Knowing that his life would be taken without doubt, he had prepared to sell it as dearly as possible, and, lying on his back, he rested his rifle on his wounded legs and shot dead the foremost of his assailants. In his mouth was another cartridge ready to reload. His was the best and latest breech-loading arm issued to the army in 1875, and it was probable that he had obtained it in the Custer or Reno fight, since an old bullet mark in the grip of the stock showed that it had been in action.—Black Hills Pioneer.

A Gambling-House "For Ladies."

The existence of a female gambling-house in this city has been suspected by some and known to a few favored ones for some time past—in fact, ever since the opening of the institution. At first it bloomed and flourished during the winter months as the reception apartment of Miss Mary Landon and Mme. Burgoine, on Main street, near the junction. These two feminines passed for mother and daughter, and by their industry and modest deportment won their way into the family acquaintance of some of the best families in the city. How or where they obtained capital sufficient to fit up and open out their present magnificent establishment is one of those things the ordinary news-gatherer fails to find out. But that the Madame and her quondam daughter have made money, and lots of it, too, since they left their rooms near the junction, is plainly evident to those who visit their snug and sylvan retreat. The police made the first complaint about these women early last spring or late in the winter; but as they soon afterward removed from the building complained of, no one cared enough to inquire where they went.

It was left to an occasional contributor to the Times to rediscover the retreat of these now notable females and give an idea of the way in which fast girls and boys spend the nights, as some of them say, "out of town on business."

Too secret leaked out through a colored girl, who was recently discharged for some irregularity, and imparted by her to another domestic, and by her to the person who visited the "retreat." They call it the "retreat" because of its charming privacy and apparent obscurity. It is on Main street, not far from the court-house. The front of the building would appear to the ordinary observer as a building unoccupied. The windows are darkened above, and were it not for the side door, left open night and day, but which is seldom used, no one would suppose the upper floor of the building occupied. But it is now discovered to be the popular place of resort for various classes of people who nightly assemble to play with and provoke Dame Fortune as represented by her most fascinating votaries. But let the last victim tell his own story:

"We were shown first into a small but neatly furnished ante-room, lighted only by the light which penetrated from the next room, which, in the darkness, appeared brilliantly lighted. Our party was admitted immediately on the presentation of cards, previously furnished at the gaming-house we had just left, and a gaily-dressed colored girl admitted us to the parlor adjoining, where the madam greeted us and engaged us in conversation for a few minutes, and then led the way to the place we had come to see—'the retreat.'

"It was a strange sight—one that fairly astounded one at first glance. Here, in a room gaudily but not richly decorated, and brilliantly lighted, were assembled at least thirty men and women, three-fourths of whom were engaged in the fascinations of games of chance. At one table sat the quondam seamstress, Miss Landon, attired in a loose, white lace wrapper, her fingers bristling with pearls. She was dealing faro for the amusement of a young merchant of this city and two women both strangers to me. Four or five persons sat by the table looking lazily on, smoking and sipping refreshments. At an adjoining table two men and two women were engaged in a game in which bright new half-dollars passed for checks, and gold pieces occasionally passed current. One of the women, a "girl of the period," smoked her cigar with the nonchalance of an adept, while her neighbor on the right, a middle-aged woman of means, kept a record of the game on paper. They appeared to be playing whist. At two small tables in the far corner of the room, six or seven women with one or two men were interested in games of chance, apparently poker or euchre, and money appeared to be passing freely but rather silently. Taking down a billiard cue, we accepted the challenge of Mme. Burgoine, and engaged with our friend and a girl who had just prepared to start for home, in a friendly game of billiards."

The above statement was handed in about four days ago by an occasional contributor to these columns. But the denouement was so strange no mention was made of the reported existence of the female gambling-house until a reporter had been sent to investigate for himself. It was found more difficult to obtain entrance to the place, as "newspaper men" are tabooed the precincts of this pagoda of mischief. A deputy, however, obtained admittance and more than confirmed the observations of the writer of last Tuesday's communication. A female gambling-house does exist in this city, to which women moving in respectable society resort to spend the evenings. No liquors of any kind other than light wines, are used. Women of all shades of virtue come and go and the fascination of the game is such that dozens of men nightly assemble to squander their money with women, old and young, who deal the cards like adepts, and who bet their stakes with the temerity of old "sports." It is a strange but o'er true tale, as many a man and woman in this city know to their cost.—Kansas City Times.

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT.

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

Republican Electoral Conventions.

Republican conventions for the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler Presidential Electors will be held for all the Councilor Districts of the State at Concord, on Tuesday, the 21st day of September at 11 o'clock A. M.

Each town and ward will be entitled to twice as many delegates as it sends representatives to the General Court; and all voters who believe that the election of Rutherford B. Hayes and William A. Wheeler will best promote the welfare of the whole country, are invited to join in the selection of such delegates.

The electoral conventions will be followed by a Grand Mass Meeting, which will assemble at 12 M., at the State House, and be addressed by some of the most distinguish republican orators of the United States. Half-fare arrangements will be made with all the railroads, and be announced seasonably.

Let the republicans of the entire State come forth in their strength, and make this what it is confidently expected to be, the largest political gathering ever held in New Hampshire.

DANIEL HALL,
Chairman Republican State Committee.
B. F. PRESCOTT, Secretary.

Blaine in Boston.

The republican rally in Boston, Monday evening, at which Senator Blaine appeared, was not only a "great" but a most enthusiastic gathering. Commenting on this the Boston Globe (which strongly opposed Mr. Blaine as a candidate for President) says: "The people poured out in crowds, and the appearance of the ex-Speaker was greeted with sturdy applause and vigorous cheers. We call the attention of the republican newspapers of Maine to this fact, and ask them to withdraw their fling, made in the heat of passion, when their hero fell short of the nomination at Cincinnati, that Blaine is not appreciated in Massachusetts. He is appreciated here. He has thousands of admirers, and among these are included many who could not bring themselves to think that he was just the man for the republican nomination, or that his tactics were just the sort that ought to win. His genius as a leader, his pluck and rare ability, are recognized and admired here in Massachusetts, and he is regarded as one of the men who should be kept at the front and in the harness. Hence those who most persistently opposed his canvass for the Presidential nomination, were glad when he obtained the seat in the Senate; and, last night, among the heartiest in their welcome, were many of these same men who, as 'Bristow men,' as they were called, and rejoiced in the term, worked with zeal and determination against him in the ante-Convention time as against their candidate. Mr. Blaine's speech we report at length in our columns this morning. It was a fine effort at special pleading. It was mainly on the Southern issue, and took, as was expected, the extremest view, showing that the leaders are determined to 'fight it out on this line' all Summer and Fall. But as a whole there is no denying it was a strong campaign speech, and, as it will be repeated in the West, will be very likely to win votes."

Democratic Testimony.

In the reign of the democratic party before the war, the Southern wing of the party claimed and held control of all the important committees in Congress. Whenever a vacancy occurred in the Chairmanship of a committee a Southern man was appointed. Douglas, who had been twelve years Chairman of the committee on Territories, refused to vote to admit Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution, was deposed by vote, and a Missouri Senator put in his place. In this way at last there was but one Northern man left as chairman of a Senate committee, and that was Jesse D. Bright. The past sessions of Congress witnessed the return of the democracy to power in the House, and Mr. Kerr was compelled to award to the Southern and Confederate members the chairmanship of the following committees:

Here are no less than twenty-four of the Committees of the House to which the Confederates have been appointed as Chairmen, to the exclusion, of course, of so many Northern democrats. Northern democrats were not appointed Chairmen of more than five committees having the least importance or control of public affairs. This, considering that it was the first session for twenty years that the democrats had a majority in the House, shows that the Confederates are prepared to claim the same supremacy that they always exercised when the democratic party was in a majority. The election of Tilden and the democratic party to power is to hand over the whole Government to the ex-Confederates.—Chicago Times (dem.)

The Democratic Electoral Convention

Met in Phœnix Hall at Concord on Tuesday forenoon at 11 o'clock. The attendance was not large. Hon. E. D. Rand, of Lisbon, presided; Herbert F. Morris, of Concord, and J. B. Mills, of Manchester, were the secretaries.

The following candidates for Presidential Electors was chosen: John F. Clouman of Farmington, Samuel R. Mason of Bristol, Edwin Hill of Manchester, Edmund Y. Cushing of Charlestown, John W. Sanborn of Wakefield.

The scheme of holding a "large and enthusiastic" mass meeting in Concord after the Convention, to be addressed by eminent speakers from abroad, as the first gun of the democratic campaign, was not carried out nor attempted to be. The Concord correspondent of the Boston Globe, referring to this omission, says:

Possibly, returns from Vermont and Maine have decided them to make a "still hunt." The indications are that the democrats will not organize an active campaign till after the October elections. Then, should they carry Ohio or Indiana, they will use every means in their power to carry New Hampshire and secure her five electoral votes for Tilden and Hendricks. On the other hand if the democracy do not carry enough of the States holding their election in October to make Tilden's election among the probabilities, they will let this State go by default. The party managers do not propose to waste time and money on New Hampshire at present. The fall elections in Ohio and Indiana are of far more importance to the success of either cause.

News and Notes.

Bishop Janes, senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died in New York on the 18th, aged seventy years.

It is proposed to extend the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad (narrow gauge) to Newburyport.

It has been decided to hold a New England farmers' reception at Philadelphia, on Wednesday, the 11th of October, in the Massachusetts House, at which Hon. George B. Loring will preside, and a collation will be given. It is expected that a large number of farmers from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, as well as from Massachusetts, will be present.

While waiting at the counter of the First National Bank, Chicago, a gentleman was robbed of a package containing $30,000 which he had placed in his side pocket. No one saw the theft and there is no clue to the robber.

An American Princess is about to be married at Stuttgart to an English gentleman named Heneage. She is no less a person than Miss Agnes Leclerq, formerly of Baltimore, who in 1862 married Prince Felix Salm-Salm, then a brigadier in the Union army, and afterward an aide-de-camp of the unfortunate Maximilian of Mexico. The romantic adventures of the Princess in Mexico, where she saved the life of her husband after the fall of the empire, have been chronicled by herself in an entertaining book. Prince Felix, restored through her efforts to his position in the Prussian army, fell gallantly fighting at Gravelotte. His widow has since resided in Germany.

Jose Maria Olquin, alias Aguja, a notorious Mexican bandit and murderer, who has just been surrendered to the Texan authorities, is the only surviving member known of a band of thieves who were long the terror of the border. On one occasion a man named McMahon was robbed by them, murdered, his body dismembered in the most horrible manner and distributed along the road. A band of armed men started out in pursuit of the murderers and meeting them, killed them all except Olquin. He was wounded, but dropped from his horse and managed to crawl off through the long grass. He concealed himself under a load of hay going toward the river and thus made his escape into Mexican territory, where he was subsequently captured.

There has been some excitement recently in New Orleans concerning small-pox, which despite the efforts of the health department has kept breaking out in new places, and defied their labors to stamp it out. Just now one of the health officers is accused of bargaining to spread the disease, and receive $5 for every patient sent to a certain hospital. The mystery of its prevalence is probably solved.

The tow steamer Juniata left Havre de Grace at 5 P. M. on Saturday, for Baltimore, with twelve barges in tow; when off Poole's Island, at 9 P. M., a terrible gale was encountered, which cut the barges loose, nine of which are supposed to have sunk. The people on board the sinking barges took refuge on the other three, which drifted toward the shore, but before it was reached one of them sunk and all on board (eight persons) were drowned. The other two, having twenty-five persons on board, reached the shore in safety.

The New York Tribune says Henry Ward Beecher is as fortunate in having reckless enemies as he is happy in the possession of devoted friends. It is safe to assume that had it been known a year and a half ago that Mrs. Woodhull was suing for divorce from her last affinity, that Mr. Moulton had involved his firm in such frauds upon the revenue as compelled it to pay $50,000 penalty and forced him to retire from the partnership, and that Mr. Tilton was addicted to misadventures in sleeping-cars, to the great confusion of lady travellers, the "conspiracy to defame and blackmail" the Plymouth Pastor (as his lawyers called the scandal) would never have been so far successful as to reach the courts. What character the principal witnesses against Mr. Beecher possessed during the trial disappears as the truth about them now comes out.

Chief Engineer Moses of Meriden, Conn., was fined for drunkenness while on duty, Saturday morning, after spending the night in the lock-up.

A gang of young South Cove (Boston) roughs on Sunday made repeated attempts to break into the house of a respectable carpenter named John Bennett. The latter called an officer several times, but as often as he approached the young scoundrels would run away, to renew the violence as soon as the officer was gone. At length Bennett fired a slug from an old pistol through the door, wounding Patrick Duff, seventeen years old, and one of the worst of the notorious South Cove roughs, so that he will probably die. Bennett has been arrested; but he ought to be presented with a medal and a first-class six-shooter.

John D. Lee, one of Brigham Young's "Danites" and the leader in the atrocious Mountain Meadow massacre, was put on trial for that crime last week in Salt Lake City. The evidence offered was amply sufficient to hang both Lee and Young, but as the Mormons have the jury there is no doubt the verdict will be not guilty.

New Hampshire Items.

A reunion of the descendants of John Cater, of North Barrington, will be held at the old homestead in that town on the 27th inst.

Patrick J. McNamara of Worcester, 23 years old, fell from the Sunday morning freight train on the Nashua Railroad and was instantly killed. The accident occurred at Ayer Junction.

The dwelling house of Robert Simonds of Alexandria, was destroyed by fire Sunday night. Cause, a defective chimney. Loss $1000; insured.

The proprietor of Gale's restaurant, at Nashua, was arraigned in the Police Court, Saturday, charged with selling liquor, and was bound over for trial. It is the intention of the Reform Club to prosecute every dealer who shall sell or supply liquor to any of its members.

A large number of Odd Fellows left Concord, for the Centennial, Saturday. Grand Master George A. Cummings accompanied the party, also C. P. F. Hildreth of Suncook, Grand Patriarch of the order in this State. C. B. Hildreth, Esq., one of the oldest, if not the oldest Odd Fellow in the State, was one of the party. He joined Suffolk Lodge, No. 5, of Boston, nearly forty years ago, and is also a member of Trimountain Encampment of that city.

—"John," said a doting parent to her gormandizing son, "do you really think you can eat the whole of that pudding with impunity?" "I don't know, ma," replied young hopeful; "but I guess I can with a spoon."

—A lady, in describing to an irreverent boy an occurrence in which his father figured, closed by remarking, "I am sorry to say that the thing ended by your father's losing his temper." "Did father lose his temper?" exclaimed the young scapegrace, "then I hope he'll never find it again, for it was the worst temper I ever heard of."

—A Massachusetts manufacturer has been granted a patent right for a noiseless shoe, which will be a great convenience to the kicker, but dreadfully discouraging to the kicked, because he will never hear a squeak till he's hit.

A Remedy That Defies Competition.

Boschee's German Syrup defies competition. Of the hosts of rival nostrums that have cropped up during its long career, not one has gained and retained such a large share of public favor, though many have enjoyed an ephemeral popularity. The reason is obvious, that whereas many of these medicines were advertised to perform cures of the most startling nature, they have when tested, almost invariably turned out to be of little or no value, while the great lung-healer, whose reputation they were intended to rival, has never disappointed those who have placed their confidence in it. It has vindicated it the amplest manner its claims to be considered a positive specific remedy for liver complaint, dyspepsia, male fever, chills, debility, constipation, and numerous other maladies resulting from general weakness and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., has the most superior location of all the Centennial hotels near the grounds.

"Hark, from the tomb a doleful sound." 'Tis the long sigh of consumptives, going down to untimely graves. They might be saved to earth—cured—by Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam.

SO MUCH AND INEXPENSIVE as is Hall's SULPHUR SOAP is a most efficient remedy for certain obnoxious diseases, to be cured of which those afflicted with them often spend thousands of dollars to no purpose.

Flashing in their pearly sheen,
From the glorious coraline,

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. HOME AGAIN.

The Light Artillery, Capt. Marvin, arrived home at three o'clock P. M. on Tuesday, from the Centennial, having broken camp there on Monday. They were received at the depot by the Veteran Artillery Association, Capt. Towle, and escorted on a short march around the city and then to their armory, a detachment of police leading and the Kearsarge Fife and Drum Band furnishing the music. The sidewalks were used by the procession for a while, but finally all bands ("old buffers and all," as our devil irreverently termed the Veterans,) took the middle of the street and kept it for the rest of the march. The Light Artillery looked as neat and trim on leaving the cars as they did when they started away, and the marching of the "old buffers" was such as to draw many commendations from the lookers-on. The Veterans turned out about thirty-five strong; many more would have been in the ranks but for a misapprehension as to the time Capt. Marvin's company would arrive, which also led the Veterans to dispense with the services of the Cornet Band after they had been engaged.

THE OPERA TO-NIGHT.

The Rudolphsen English Opera Company appear at the Temple this evening. Mendelssohn's opera, "Son and Stranger," will be given, for the first time in this city. This will be followed by the comic opera "Box and Cox," a laughable bit of fun set to music; it is an adaptation of the amusing farce of the same title. The musical and dramatic abilities of several members of the company are well known here, and all are highly commended by the press. If you enjoy good singing or a good laugh, or both, go to the Temple this evening. Admission 35 cents; reserved seats 50 cents, at Preston's. See advertisement.

JOTTINGS.

There is this morning in the window of Mr. Foster's bookstore a specimen of the rare cactus named Cereus Echinopsis Eyresii. The elegant flower upon it lasts only twenty-four hours after being several weeks in maturing the bud. The plant is from the collection of Mr. Seth W. Tripe, who has made a specialty of this variety of plants, and probably has more of them than any other person in our city.

Attention is invited to the card of "Wanted," inserted in this paper by Robert L. Smiley & Co., publishers of the Claremont National Eagle.

Legal proceedings have been commenced against a former police officer and member of the Board of Selectmen of Rye, by "Dr." Nathaniel Pierce of East Kingston, who alleges that he was illegally arrested by the town authorities a little more than a year ago.

Republican Electoral Convention and mass meeting at Concord to-morrow; half-fare over the railroads. Hon. James G. Blaine is to be one of the speakers.

Admirers of exquisite floral paintings have been attracted to J. H. Foster's window to-day, to see the two panels just from the studio of Miss Mary E. B. Miller, one representing, with Nature's accuracy, the Soltrano Rose in various stages of growth, intermingled with fuchsias; and the other a charming boquet of geraniums of the Pelagonium varieties. Both are 10 by 20 in size, and superb specimens of this lady's keen taste. There is also on exhibition in the same window a framed specimen of the smallest and most delicate of fret sawing work, in varied design, done by Mr. Frank S. Keyes, an invalid soldier.—Times.

Political.

The complete vote for Congressman in the First Maine District is reported as follows: Reed, 16,252; Goodwin, 15,212; Burleigh, 140. Reed's plurality, 1020; Reed's majority, 880. Mr. Reed's plurality in Cumberland county was 757; in York county, 268. The disinterested attempt of the Boston Globe and Herald, and the democratic press generally, to get up a split in the republican ranks which should enable Mr. Goodwin, the democratic candidate, to secure an election, did not amount to much.

Official returns received at the Secretary of State's office from the whole State of Maine, except one town and six plantations, give a total vote of 185,961—Connor, 75,710; Talbot, 60,151; scattering, 529. Connor's majority is 14,930. It is the largest vote ever polled in the State by about 5000. One hundred and twenty republican Representatives were elected, and twenty-nine democrats, and two are unheard from.

The Cincinnati Enquirer heads its news of the Maine election: "Five republican Congressmen elected, and that is the best that Maine can do." Would it have the republicans elect ten Congressmen when there are only five in the State, before it will concede a republican victory?

Charles Francis Adams does not use the words "democrat" or "democratic" in his letter accepting the democratic nomination for Governor of Massachusetts. The letter is addressed to the "President Convention of Delegates," and accepts a "nomination by a convention of voters." The letter was not read at the democratic ratification meeting in Faneuil Hall.

A young man called upon the Governor the other day, and informed him that he was taking contributions for a new political club, and that it had been suggested he should solicit a donation from His Excellency. The Governor, with a smile that was childlike and bland, drew out a well-filled pocketbook, and handing over a twenty and a five, said: "There, that's about right I guess; I wish you much success." But as the recipient carefully put the greenbacks in his pocket, Mr. Tilden broke in: "Ah, by the way, what name do you propose giving to your club?" "Well," said the other, "we have already named it the Hayes and Wheeler Club." The rest can be better imagined than described.—Albany Journal.

Still they come. William H. Hamilton, an Indiana editor, has taken the stump for Hayes and Wheeler. He has been an ultra democrat for many years, and up to the time of the St. Louis nomination did good service for the party as a journalist, but he says there is too much of the old rebel spirit in the organization for any friend of the Union to remain with it.

It is well to put on record what the other side predicts. Hon. John K. Tarbox says: "We feel sure that the democrats will secure Ohio. The canvass is most complete and thorough. Every voter in the State is registered on the campaign books of Mr. Tilden's working committee in New York. Every change is sent in and duly charged or credited to the party, and they can tell before election how every man in the State is going to vote."

The last three democratic commissioners of the Virginia school fund are defaulters, nearly to the entire amounts that ever went into their hands. All are strong for Tilden.

Says the Louisville Commercial: "Nicholls, democratic candidate for Governor of Louisiana, declines a joint discussion with Packard; Banning declines a joint discussion with Matthews, and Hendricks will not hear of such a thing as meeting Morton. It is a weak cause that makes men so afraid of crossing swords."

This is a good bit from the New York Independent: "The democrats are very much concerned about the state of Colonel Bob Ingersoll's immortal soul. John Morrissey and Proctor Knott ought to organize a revival for his benefit."

The democratic party is in a worse position than the British Light Brigade when "some-one had blundered." The month of September is more than half gone; the day of election is not to-morrow, but it is not far off; yet nobody can say that the Opposition is squarely in line—hardly that it has arranged any plan of battle. It is a remarkable fact, unprecedented so far as we remember, that the most promising democratic devices have thus far abominably miscarried. When it was first made, the nomination of Gov. Tilden was thought to be a strong one, yet, little by little, it has settled down almost to a point of unimportance, showing an alacrity at sinking for which we are unable satisfactorily to account. One reason may be the delay in explaining the Income Tax matter, which it is hard to account for on any hypothesis creditable to the Governor. The charge appears to have made a deep impression upon a tax-paying public. There is perfect readiness to hear the other side, but thus far there is no other side. Then there came the crowning blunder of the Saratoga Convention. Gov. Seymour's nomination was a "strong" one, but how much better if it had never been made!—N. Y. Tribune.

Secretary Chandler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is reported as taking a very satisfactory view of the situation. He is an old campaigner and ought to know what he is talking about. He thinks that the republicans can, with proper effort, carry the States of Maryland, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, of the Southern States, and the national committee have determined to begin an active campaign in those States immediately after the October elections in Ohio and Indiana. Mr. Chandler says he has organized a brigade of twelve Union ex-major-generals, headed by General Banks, and all strong and eloquent speakers, to go into the South and talk truth and reason to the Southern people. He believes that such a canvass will revive the spirit of the white and black republicans, and cause them to turn out at election and vote their sentiments without fear of assassination.

The Panama Hat Plant.

The Bolivians give this plant (Carludovica palmata) the name of Jipagapa, a town in the Republic of Ecuador, which is the principal seat of the hat manufacture—"Panama," like "Mocha" in the case of coffee, and "Brussels" in that of carpets, being a misnomer. Before the leaf has begun to open—when, in fact, it resembles a closed fan—it is cut off close to the petiole, the base of which forms the center of the crown of the hat. It is then divided longitudinally into strips with the thumb nail, the thick part forming the mid rib being rejected. The number of shreds into which it is divided of course depends on the fineness of the hat into which they are to be manufactured. The split-leaf, which is of a greenish-white color, is next dipped into boiling water, then into tepid water acidulated with lemon juice, and lastly it is allowed to soak in cold water for some time, and afterward dried in the sun. Each hat is, or ought to be, made of a single leaf. They vary in price, according to fineness, from thirteen pence to as many pounds. The damping and drying operations cause the shreds to assume a curled or cylindrical form, which much increases the strength without injuring their pliancy. Before plaiting, the coarser qualities are damped with water, but the finest sorts are left out in the morning dew and worked on before sunrise. A hat of the finest quality, made out of a single leaf, will take several months to complete, and the plaiting will be so fine as hardly to be perceptible at a short distance.—The Garden.

—"My bark is on the sea," as the cur said when the captain threw him overboard.

—"I'd hate to be in your shoes," said an irate female to her rival. "You couldn't begin to get in them," snapped the second irate female.

—"What is your father's first name?" asked a teacher in Massachusetts, of a little girl. "I don't know." "What does your mother call him?" "You jackass."

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unquestionable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. —A party met at a public table, when the conversation turned on the subject of transmigration. Mr. K. was a firm believer in the doctrine, and was expatiating largely upon its points, when he was interrupted by a gentleman who was present with, "K., what do you suppose yourself to have been before you were K.?" "I do not know," replied K.; "I might have been a pig, for aught I know." "Well, rejoined his friend, "you have not altered much—only got upon your hind-legs."

GEORGE W. RIDDLE, Treasurer, 883 Elm street, Manchester, N. H.

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL IN THE UNITED STATES.

No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.

SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,

SUCCESSOR TO

Dr. TELLER,

DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1830 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accomodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—sent free, price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichol's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, sending remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative as could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $5.00.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 5th, and we owe you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get one of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the best package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the one medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know all, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a long story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered almost intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was about ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a Mr. Friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

Chinese Squalor in San Francisco.

Individually, John Chinaman is a clean human; collectively, he is a beast. Ah Stue, the cook, keeps his coppers and pans clean and bright, washes his hands in going from dish to dish, is orderly, fresh in appearance, and ever arrayed in spotless white and blue. Follow him home, and you will find this cleanly unit become one of a herd of animals living in a state of squalor and filth, at which even a Digger Indian would shudder. Fifteen Chinamen will live, sleep, and cook, in a hovel or cellar twelve feet square, having only a door as a means of admitting light and air. Clouds of rancid smoke issue continually from the common chimney, window and door, through which John and his fellows may dimly be seen crawling, cooking, smoking, and sleeping, for when Coo Lee has nothing to do, he generally crawls into his hole to sleep or smoke. The large companies' boarding-houses are no better. Every story is refloored, and made into two, and often three, the standard height of a room being a trifle over or under five feet. Clean at first, the building soon becomes grimy, and then black, and then dirt-encrusted from garret to roof. Once occupied by Chinese, a building must always remain a pest-hole or be torn down. Under the side-walks, under stair-cases, in cramped bunks, and on rickety platforms John lives, and, it is reported thrives. It is only to the adventurous and strong-stomached that a fair picture of Chinese life is presented in all its foulness. When a fire burns out a hole, and lays open a section of this vile quarter, then it is that groups of the curious gather round and try to believe that they live within a block of those rookeries and slums, where there is no difference between the blackness of the charred beam and that of the sleeping-holes. Of course there are cleanly exceptions,—the restaurants, and some of the few rich merchants' stores, for instance; but there is no danger of darkening the picture overmuch; and Chinatown, lying in the heart of San Francisco, is a miracle of human uncleanness, and a wonder of filth. San Franciscans have much cause to be thankful for the long season of purging trade winds.—Scribner for October.

Seaside Manners at Ostend.

But it is not only their hypocritical Sabbath which the English lay aside when they cross the Channel, but also they get rid of their equally hypocritical prudery. The proud English gentlemen who would be horrified at having their wives and daughters bathe in the company of men at Brighton or Scarborough, will at Ostend allow them to bathe in company of all Europe. And the dames themselves, instead of being shy about it, take to the customs of this country with a facility and eagerness which inspire a doubt as to whether the English are really attached to their institutions. If in the waters of Ostend there is any group of girls dashier and splashier than the rest, you may be sure they are English. I think, indeed, a considerable change has come over the young English girls in recent years, and I doubt whether Nathaniel Hawthorne, were he now writing about England, would remark so much reserved, folded-up look and manner as contrasted with the American girl in her teens. But, however budlike the English girl may be when at home, she can hold her own on the Continent against any American girl for gush, dash, flirtation and adventure of any kind. And I fear that all her foldedupness when she gets back to London only implies that she is a hypocrite. * * * From 10:30 to 12:30 a machine is to be got only by watching for and seizing upon one that is drawn by the horse out of the water, the occupants having finished their bath. The person who first lays hand or foot upon the little steps behind it is entitled to the machine when its occupant emerges. Hence hundreds of ladies may be seen wading about among the machines—shoeless and stockingless, dresses raised to midway the thigh—and rushing toward every house that starts shoreward, to clutch, leap on and often tumble upon the steps. The question of legs is utterly sunk in these exciting competitions: no lady pauses for a moment to consider whether she is engaging in an international exposition of those limbs which she would not show on the Boulevards, even in spotless stockings, for the world. * * * There is a gentleman conducting a pretty German blonde on what is evidently her first venture in the sea. She pauses at the edge of the water, looks down at her scant dress, at her veined ankles which never before saw any light but that of her own room; she blushes and blushes, and looks helpless; her companion gives her precise and elaborate information as to how she is to enter, to breast the waves, to put her hands so, and her feet so; she listens carefully and then makes a little feint of going through with it. But nothing short of violence will make her go in up to her knees. The gentleman implores her to lie down. "What! in the water!" She is quite dazed at this suggestion. But before a week is over timid Gretchen will be splashing out there with the rest.—M. D. Conway in Cincinnati Commercial.

Sensitive Flame.

Of all producers of so-called mysterious sounds, Dr. Tyndall's sensitive or vowel flame is one of the most curious. Out of a particular kind of gas, with a burner construction, the learned professor produces a lighted jet of flame nearly two feet in height, extremely narrow, and so exquisitely sensitive to sounds that it sings and dances up and down in response to everything that is sung or said, with different degrees of sensibility for different vowel sounds. "The slightest tap on a distant anvil reduces its height to seven inches. When a bunch of keys is shaken the flame is violently agitated and emits a loud roar. The dropping of a sixpence into a hand already containing coin, at a distance of twenty yards, knocks the flame down. It is not possible to walk across the floor without agitating the flame. The creaking of boots sets it in violent commotion. The crumpling or tearing of paper or the rustle of a silk dress does the same. It is startled by the patter of a rain-drop. I hold a watch near the flame, nobody hears its ticks, but you'll see their effect upon the flame. At every tick it falls and roars. The winding up of the watch also produces tumult. The twitter of a distant sparrow shrieks in the flame; the note of a cricket would do the same. A chirrup from a distance of thirty yards causes it to fall and roar." In reference to the power of the flame to respond to poetry, the lecturer said, "The flame selects from the sounds those to which it can respond. It notices some by the slightest nod, to others it bows more distinctly; to some its obeisance is very profound, while to many sounds it turns an entirely deaf ear." So long as the cause of any unusual sound is unexplained to the non-scientific listener he is apt naturally enough to term that sound mysterious; but the element of mystery will disappear when he is assured that sounds of every description are due to natural and unalterable acoustic principles. —Washington Gazette.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

Republican Electoral Conventions.

Republican conventions for the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler Presidential Electors will be held for all the Councilor Districts of the State at Concord, on Thursday, the 21st day of September at 11 o'clock A. M.

Each town and ward will be entitled to twice as many delegates as it sends representatives to the General Court; and all voters who believe that the election of Rutherford B. Hayes and William A. Wheeler will best promote the welfare of the whole country, are invited to join in the selection of such delegates.

The electoral conventions will be followed by a Grand Mass Meeting, which will assemble at 12 M., at the State House, and be addressed by some of the most distinguished republican orators of the United States. Half-fare arrangements will be made with all the railroads, and be announced seasonably.

Let the republicans of the entire State come forth in their strength, and make this what it is confidently expected to be, the largest political gathering ever held in New Hampshire. DANIEL HALL,

Chairman Republican State Committee.

B. F. PRESCOTT, Secretary.

"A Good Time Coming, Boys."

The only effective war-cry of the democracy, in the Eastern States, is "hard times," they professing to believe that the republican party is responsible for the business depression, (which really extends all over the civilized world,) and that all that is necessary to bring a return of good times is the restoration to power of the democracy. But the democratic party always has been and is now ruled by its southern wing; and how anxious that wing is for the welfare of New England is indicated by the following utterance of the Louisville Courier-Journal, the ablest and most influential organ of the party in the South and West:

"The West does not like a bone in New England's body. The South may be left out of the count. A time is coming when New England's curses of us will come home to roost. A thumb-screw of New England's own fabrication will be applied. The factories will suspend. The great commercial houses will go into bankruptcy. Grass will grow in the market places. Poverty, universal and gaunt, will stare the millionaires in the face."

And that a democratic victory will ensure such utter ruin to New England, is held up to the southern democracy as a tremendous incentive to exertion on their part to win such a victory.

Sectarianism in Politics.

Hon. James G. Blaine's introduction in Congress of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the appropriation of public funds for sectarian schools, was howled at by the democrats as a base attempt to introduce sectarianism into politics. But a week or two ago, when some democratic genius got up a letter purporting to be from Gov. Hayes to the "American Alliance," (an organization opposed to Catholicism and the admission of foreigners to citizenship,) accepting a membership in the order, every democratic paper in the country hastened to copy it, and appeal to all adopted citizens and especially Roman Catholics not to vote for its author. "Sectarian animosity in politics" seemed a very good thing just then; but Gov. Hayes never wrote any such letter, never received any communication from the American Alliance, and never belonged to any secret society in his life. We noticed the forged letter and accompanying appeal to religious prejudices in every democratic paper in the State; we have not noticed the refutation in a single one. They don't believe in dragging religion into politics.

News and Notes.

There has been another "terrible negro outbreak," in Aiken county, South Carolina; result as usual,—six negroes killed, one white man wounded.

The big gale did much damage at points west and south, and at sea. Large quantities of wreck stuff,— fishing gear and dories,— have been seen on the Newfoundland banks; an unknown brig is bottom up at Hogg's island, and an unknown barque sunk at the mouth of the Chesapeake; an unknown brig was wrecked on the outer coast of Long island, and many minor disasters are reported. The telegraph lines were prostrated in many places, and communication stopped to all places south of Philadelphia.

Schooner Addie Walton, from Philadelphia for Boston, with coal, was run into in Delaware Bay by British barque Light Brigade, and sank in a few minutes. One man was drowned.

The sixth annual reunion of the Twenty-Third Massachusetts Regiment Association will take place at Gloucester, Mass., on Thursday, September 28. Arrangements have been made with the Eastern Railroad Company, by which free return tickets will be issued over their line; they will be furnished by the Quartermaster, after dinner. Dinner in Town Hall, at 1 P. M. Music: Salem Brass Band.

Steamer Rebecca Clyde, from Wilmington for Baltimore, was driven ashore at Portsmouth, N. C., on the 17th, and thirteen lives lost, including captain, engineer and first mate. Many schooners were wrecked along the coast from New York to South Carolina. Schooner Arbora, of Ellsworth, Me., was dismasted and lost rudder off Thatcher's island, Cape Ann; crew taken off and vessel towed into Gloucester by a fishing schooner.

Mrs. Hazard, an old lady of Otis, Mass., was brutally murdered by a tramp, who chopped her terribly with an axe, on the 18th. The murderer had previously assaulted the old lady's husband with a club. He was arrested, and acknowledges the crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Sartoris arrived in New York from Liverpool on the 17th. During the trip they occupied a table in the far corner of the dining room and avoided attention as much as possible.

Yellow fever still rages at Savannah, the interments of its victims averaging from twenty-five to thirty a day.

Schooner Charles P. Sinnickson, from Richmond, Va., for Philadelphia, with railroad ties, sank at her anchors near Indian river, on the 17th, and the captain, mate, one seaman and a boy were drowned. Two men were saved.

Six men were killed and three fatally wounded by a mine accident in Pennsylvania, on the 19th.

Some time last month an old man named John Humphrey died in the town of Appleton, Me. In his lifetime he was known to be a miser, and it was supposed that he had considerable money laid away. For the past eight years Mr. Samuel Ripley has lived on Humphrey's farm, taking care of Humphrey and his wife. After the old man's death Mr. Ripley made a search of the house to see if he could find any money. The result was that he found secreted in an old chest two sacks filled with twenty dollar gold pieces to the amounts of $1500 in each sack. There was also found in an old sink, laid away in an unoccupied closet, other parcels filled with silver coins, many of them of an ancient date and mostly foreign coin, among them many five franc pieces and also Mexican dollars and Spanish coin. Mrs. Humphrey, relict of the late John Humphrey, still survives him, but is so infirm and imbecile as to be unable to care for herself, and so unconscious and idiotic as to know nothing of the past. As there are no children or other heirs, of course no one questions the right of Mr. Ripley to a legal possession of this newfound treasure. The whole amount thus far discovered is between $3000 and $4000.

Mrs. Levi Hedge, of Lowell, committed suicide in a hotel in that city on the 19th.

An unknown man, who left a card giving his name as Frank Wheeler but announcing it as useless to try to fix his identity, was found dead in his berth on steamer Old Colony on her arrival in New York on the morning of the 18th, having shot himself in the head with a revolver.

Political.

At the republican Electoral Convention at Concord, to-day, a large political gathering is expected. Hon. James G. Blaine, Geo. Wm. Curtis and others will address the people, and there will be a torchlight procession and fireworks in the evening.

The Boston Post is disgusted with Hon. James G. Blaine and his speech at Boston Music Hall to as many people as could crowd into the building and five or six thousand outside. It says he is no statesman and no orator, because he attacked the rebel record of the democratic party during the war, and the bloody-shirt record of the party since the war, instead of trying "to explain away" the charges of the 'letter-thief Mulligan, the evidence-suppressing Knott and other "reformers." Unfortunately, Mr. Blaine speaks for the good of the country and not to secure the praise of such narrowly partisan organs as the Boston Post; so we can expect no improvement in his style of oratory or his choice of subjects.

There is not so much difference as might be supposed between the democrats of different sections. A few of the employes of a hat factory in Danbury, Ct., took part recently in the organization of a Hayes and Wheeler Club. The proprietor, a Tilden man, immediately posted up a notice to meet such a case of insubordination, in which he says: "While we cannot employ those that would act destructively to the business of the firm, we hope those opposed to our interest will withdraw from our employ on and after Saturday, Sept. 16. To such their accounts will be made up during the week, and what is due them will be paid Monday, Sept. 25, at 2 P. M." When some of the offending employes asked if the notice meant a discharge of all the Hayes and Wheeler men, the employer replied, "That is just what I mean."

New Hampshire News.

Mary J. Clements, who claimed $5000 as damages from the city of Manchester for injuries received through a defect in the highway, has recovered $100.

The Island Pond House and outbuildings, on Lake Massabesic, were totally destroyed by fire on the 19th, caused by a defective chimney. Loss from $6000 to $7000; insurance $3000. The buildings were owned by Nathan Perkins of Jefferson.

The Claims of a United South.

It seems to us that Mr. Ampt's letter to Speaker Sayler, which we printed yesterday, is timely and pertinent. We would not give any encouragement to the raising of southern bugaboos, such as predicting that the people of the South will restore slavery as soon as they get a chance, or asserting they mean to make another confederate experiment. The matters to which Mr. Ampt refers, however, are not of this kind. They are embodied in bills actually introduced in Congress, printed and referred to committees. Mr. Ampt mentions only three, which are general and public in their nature. He takes no account of special private bills for the relief of individuals. Here are the three:

House Bill No. 3168, to refund direct tax paid by Southern States	$2,492,119
House Bill No. 222, to remove colored vote	88,072,528
House Bill No. 2284, to pay for property used or occupied in the South during the war	2,000,000,000
Total	$2,170,564,648

Of the direct tax, levied in 1861, the North has paid $15,000,000. The South has paid less than half its share, and the bill refunds what has been paid. The amount involved in the third bill has been estimated at more than three thousand millions of dollars; but Mr. Ampt takes the lower estimate.

It is true that the House of Representatives did not pass these bills, but they are submitted in the interests of a united South —a united South to which the democratic party just now confesses a lively sense of obligation. Will that sense move it to make these bills laws when it gets the power? It is certainly in order to ask the democratic leaders what they are going to do with these bills. They ought to tell—tell the South as well as the North.—New York Evening Post.

How He Rounded the Lake.

He was a tramp, bound Chicagoward, and as he boarded the couplers at the rear of an incoming engine, just across the line in Indiana, one recent dark and chilly night, he had faith to believe that he had a "soft thing" of it for a cheap ride. But the conductor, with his eagle eye and railway lantern, soon espied the moneyless passenger on his uncushioned and comfortless seat. Did he order him off. No. He had a deeper plot. He let him remain, while on and on went the train, from station to station, until it reached a great tank, where the engines stop to "water up."

"Now for him." grinned the heartless conductor, as he passed to the front.

"Now for him," he maliciously continued, as he grasped the water-trough from the foreman's hands and directed it over the back end of the engine.

"Now for him," he fiendishly grunted, as he heard a Noah's deluge pouring over the head and down the back of the luckless tramp.

All grew still and the conductor ordered his train on its way, convinced that he had drowned his tramp, or at least flooded him so far away that he could never get back again.

But when that conductor drove into the depot in the early morning, there was a surprise in store for him.

"Be you the conductor?" inquired a shivering voice at his elbow, as he stepped on the platform.

"Yes," said he, looking around and gazing upon a bedraggled and cinder-covered man.

"Then I want ter ask yer why yer don't run around the end of the lake in comin' inter town?"

"I do," said the conductor.

"Yer do?" exclaimed the man.

"Certainly," was the reply.

"Wal, I gosh!" muttered the stranger in a bewildered tone, "Blest if I didn't think yer swum through the lake!"

Then the conductor knew that his tramp still lived and was water-proof.—Chicago Journal.

—Several ladies were sitting together on the balcony of the Clifton Hotel, Niagara, recently, when the moon, although full, was somewhat hidden by the clouds. A natty little fellow came toward the group and said softly, "Pussie, darling!" whereupon all the young ladies jumped up and came toward him eagerly. He selected one and walked away with her. The other brides sat down and told their respective Romeos afterward that it was "too ridiculous for anything," and that they "never were so embarrassed in the whole course of their lives."

—Not one in a hundred of the Sea Island negroes, who form the bulk of Mr. Smalls' admirers, knows how to read. They vote the ticket headed by their favorites, and that is all they know about it. When Whipper was running against Smalls, in 1872, he pretended to favor the reform element of the republican party. Smalls did not. Two negroes were discussing the rival candidates. One said, "Is you goin' for Whipper dis time?" "Well, I dunno. Dat Whipper say he go in for reform. Now reform bin runnin' in dis country ever since de war, an' he neber ben 'lected yet. Time he stop runnin'."—Harper's for October.

—A man in Camden, Me., sent his father, on the morning following the Maine election, the following message: "Republican majority in my house of one over last year —weight twelve pounds."

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most favorite districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and remedy of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is indirectly to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and it is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

The Fragrant Breath of Beauty

Attests the malodorous purifying properties of SOZODONT. Every lady who has ever used it, proclaims it a perfect antidote to dental decay. Pure breath is essential to a pure health, and both are enjoyed by all who resort to this agreeable, wholesome, and invaluable vegetable compound.

BEAUTY EYES, REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot.

JOTTINGS.

We have received from O. Ditson & Co., Boston, the following new pieces of music: Voyage in the Moon galop, by Offenbach; Hayes and Wheeler our own Choice, campaign song and chorus, by Samuel M. Mitchell; Grand Ovation march, by Harry D. Jones; Pearly Streams waltz, by Louise A. Case; Lilly polka, by Carl Wendelstein; My heart still lingers here, song and chorus, by Bernard McNulty.

The United States District Court held its regular session in this city on the 19th, Judge Clark on the bench. Other than some twenty new entries, no business was transacted, and the court adjourned without day.

Complaints are made that the gas-light on the North Mill-bridge is very seldom anything else than a gas-dark, it being not unfrequently neglected when other lights about town are lighted. The bridge isn't such a nice place to travel over, on a dark night, that a light is not needed—if it is the gas lantern had better come down, and not stick up there for a snare and a delusion.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, September 20, before Batchelder, Justice:

Henry Davis, a fisherman, drunk, plea guilty, fine and costs $9.90; paid.

Charles Crafts, Warren Graves and Daniel McCarty, all drunk, all owned up, each fined $3 with costs taxed at $8.04, and all went up country.

DEATH OF ADMIRAL PENNOCK.

Rear Admiral Alexander M. Pennock died very suddenly at the Rockingham House in this city, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, of apoplexy. He was about as usual in the forenoon and appeared to be in his usual health. He would have completed the 62d year of his age in October. He was born in Virginia, and entered the navy (being appointed from Tennessee) on the first of April, 1828. His total sea service amounted to 25 years and 3 months; he was Fleet Captain under Commodore Porter on the Mississippi, and took charge of the fleet after Porter left. In 1869 he took charge of this navy yard, as commandant; and while here, Admiral Farragut, whose wife was a cousin of Mrs. Pennock, died at his residence on the navy yard. In 1872 he was relieved at the navy yard by Commodore John C. Howell, and took command of the Pacific fleet, afterward relieving Admiral Parrott (who was sick) in command of the Asiatic fleet. Mrs. Pennock, who accompanied her husband to the East, died very suddenly at Yokohama, Japan, of heart disease, two weeks after arriving there. Commanding the Asiatic fleet was the last duty afloat done by Admiral Pennock; on his return he was assigned to special duty in Washington, and would have been retired on the first of October, on account of having reached the age of 62 years, the limit fixed for active service. He was an efficient and trusted officer throughout his long career. His remains will be taken to Norfolk, Va., where his wife is buried.

FLAG RAISING.

The republicans residing on Bridge street on Wednesday evening stretched a handsome flag, bearing the names of Hayes and Wheeler, across the street at its junction with Hanover street, from the store of the Sovereigns of Industry to Mr. Critchley's dwelling. Notwithstandiug the wind and rain, and the mud under foot, and the fact that the flag-raising had not been publicly announced, a large number of people, probably four hundred or more, assembled to "assist" on the occasion. A glee club of young ladies—all of republican sympathies, too—sang the "star spangled banner" and other patriotic songs; and they, and the flag, and Hayes and Wheeler, all received hearty cheers.

AN OPEN CONFESSION.

The southern portion of the First Councilor District presented two good names to the democratic Electoral Convention,—Hon. John S. H. Frink, of Greenland, and Marcellus Eldredge, Esq., of Portsmouth; but the up-country democracy don't seem to pay a great deal of attention to the seacoast section, for neither Mr. Frink nor Mr. Eldredge received a nomination as candidate for elector, or even a mention in the published reports of the convention. The attendance at the convention was small, but included a large number of able party leaders. Judge Rand, on taking the chair, told the democracy some plain truths. He said the republican party was formed "on the principle of opposition to the extension of slavery into the territories, and the principle made it powerful. It had done its work, and that well." But judge Rand maintained that when slavery died the republican party, which opposed slavery, died too; while the democratic party, which upheld slavery even to the extent of attempting to destroy the Union to save the "peculiar institution," still lives, and rightfully,—to "conserve" the Union it failed to destroy. "It could not be said that the democratic party had not gone astray. The speaker said that he would not aver that it loved slavery the loss and the constitution more; but when slavery died the democratic party came forward again. Slavery had died and no one mourned for it. The duty of the democracy was now to conserve. Slavery had gone. So had commerce. So had the farming and laboring interests, and democracy had the duty to restore them." The demagogism which talks of republicanism being solely or mainly responsible for the depression of business and laboring interests may well be overlooked in view of the honest acknowledgement that the democratic party "went astray" in attempting to destroy the Union rather than allow the pretensions of the slave-power to be opposed.

Mr. Bilks' Bargain.

If there is any one thing on which Erastus Bilks, Esq., prides himself, it is his ability in making bargains. He does not dabble in stocks, grain, or real estate, but confines his operations to negotiation for the purchase of household necessities, dry goods, etc., and reckons himself a connoisseur in all departments of the latter. It seems that recently Mrs. Bilks had need of a mosquito bar for the baby's crib, and Mr. Bilks undertook to procure one, and accordingly went to one of the leading Summit street stores for that purpose. The affable and genial clerk who has exclusive charge of the mosquito department, was at that moment in the back part of the store, where he was engaged in tearing up a bolt of new six cent calico into remnants of ten yards for a dollar. When Mr. Bilks stated his errand, the clerk said he thought he could please him as they had some pieces on hand admirably suited for the purpose, and which, owing to the recent fall in gold, they could sell very low indeed. Bilks selected one after examining the whole stock critically.

"What's the very least," said he, "that you could take for this piece?"

The affable and genial one held the goods up to the light and then rubbed it thoughtfully between his fingers.

"That," he replied, "is very superior stock, the best and finest we have ever had. Mrs. Highmized won't sleep under any other goods, and actually allowed herself to be bitten by mosquitoes a whole week this summer, till we could procure some for her from the factory in the East. But as the season is advancing, and the demand is running light, we shall probably not attempt to match that shade again this fall. Let me see,, said the clerk, running the goods along the edge of the counter; "there are just two yards and a half, three-quarters of a yard wide. This piece ought to bring forty cents but we will sell it to you for a quarter."

Bilks explained to his wife that evening how he had made a beautiful bargain, and accompanied the exhibition of his purchase by some general remarks regarding the importance and convenience of having a husband who was thoroughly posted on the state of the market.

Mrs. Bilks heard him through patiently, and then remarked in an even voice:

"Mosquito bar is two yards and a half wide, and sells for sixteen cents a yard. And three quarters of a yard at sixteen cents a yard, would be worth just twelve cents. You will bring this family to beggary some day with your bargains."—Toledo Blade.

—Many years ago, when Thaddeus Stevens was practising law in Lancaster, Penn., he was employed to defend two bank officers who had been indicted for conspiracy, they having used the funds of the bank in speculation. All the legal talent of Philadelphia and surrounding counties had been engaged to assist in the prosecution. When the trial was opened Mr. Stevens rose and, addressing the Court, said: "If it please your honors, presuming there are different degrees of guilt attached to the prisoners, my clients, I move they be tried separately." The Judge consulted for a few moments with his associates, who consenting, the motion was granted and so recorded. Waiting some time for Mr. Stevens to go on, the Judge at last became impatient, said impetuously: "Proceed, Mr. Stevens, proceed. We are waiting for you, sir." Stevens rose deliberately, and looking around the court-room for a moment, said: "Did your honors ever hear of one man being tried for conspiracy?" Then waving his hand to his clients, he said: "You can go home; you can go home." And they did go home. The jury were discharged and the Court adjourned. And for this piece of legal strategy Thad. Stevens received $5000.

—The establishment of Krupp, the great gun maker, extends over seven hundred acres and employs 12,000 workmen. It is traversed by a railway five miles in length, and a tramway of two miles. Its various parts are connected by lines of telegraph wires, and not less than thirty stations. The annual sum paid in wages amounted some years ago to $400,000; it is now probably much greater. Considerable skill is required in the manipulation of the steel so largely used at Essen. When a good workman is found, it is desirable to retain him; and so, as far as possible, it is made worth his while to remain when once he has been employed. A pension fund has been established, to which every one employed on the works must subscribe a small fraction of his wages. To the money thus collected the proprietor adds a sum equal to half of that subscribed by the men.

—Steamboat men on the Western rivers are said to be of a very determined disposition, there not being one of 'em that would not rather die than tell the truth.

—The magician who astonished his audience by changing a canary bird into a rabbit, has a formidable rival in the man who turned a bushel of potatoes into a barrel.

—Douglass Jerrold mentions a story of a man who hated national prejudices, and invited an uncle to a French restaurant to "dine 'em" out of him. After dinner he said to him, "What do you think of the French, now, uncle?" "Not so bad," he replied, with a look of contrition—"not so bad if they wouldn't eat frogs." "You recollect that third dish—delicious, wasn't it?" said the nephew. The old man smacked his lips with recollections of delight. "In that dish there were two-and-thirty frogs." The uncle insisted upon falling ill immediately, was carried home, went to bed, scratched his nephew out of his will, and died.

COOKED

CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, drawn on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

DAVID BURGE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

Daily Chronicle.

—One of the finest instances of presence of mind in an emergency is chronicled by the London, Ont., Free Press. At a recent fire in a provincial town the goods in a burning shop had to be cast into the street, and, as a matter of course, the night being dark, the articles were disappearing rapidly. A policeman, observing a man in the act of picking up a fine cheese, very cleverly made his way through the crowd and stationed himself behind so as to prevent any escape. The man rose with the cheese in his hands and was preparing to decamp; but on beholding the policeman in such close vicinity he suddenly changed his mind and quietly placed the cheese in the policeman's arms, remarking as he did so, "There, you had better take care of that, or some one will be walking off with it!"

—Two young women met lately. They had not seen each other for two months. The following conversation ensued: "Been to Long Branch. Where were you?" "To Saratoga. Any offers?" "Yes, nine; two of them counts. You have any?" "Thirteen. One was an earl." And that girl who had been to Long Branch went home and shed bitter tears of vexation, though the fact of the matter was that neither of them had any offers at all, and both knew it. She has taken a solemn oath that another time she will let the other girl speak first, and raise her out of her boots if she has to invent a Russian prince to do it.—Chicago Tribune.

ESTABLISHED IN 1853.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
—IN THE—
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1853 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vickner's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Palmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I feel well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 6th, and twelve days from February 22d of their wonderful effects. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in nine years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship in the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

[EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been so free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the good they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 16, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the right side of my head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. A. M. Mullis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anyone. I have done a good deal to recommend the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulpnur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO., Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter which more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

The Dangers of Dynamite.

A prominent manufacturer of dynamite was asked by the reporter of the Herald, whether he were not constantly in dread of his life. The gentleman laughed as he replied in the negative. "I have never once," said he, "been so much afraid of dynamite as I have been of gunpowder on a dozen occasions. Why I have had a dozen hairbreadth escapes from gunpowder in the old days before nitro-glycerine and its compounds were thought of. I was in those days Superintendent of a copper mine in North Carolina. All explosive material was stored in a magazine built of rock. The structure was intended to be fire-proof, and to insure that qualification its iron doors were made to close down upon solid rock, which was not unfrequently covered with scattered grains of powder. The miners used to come there with orders from the foreman for powder, and when a man presented his order he was permitted to knock out the head of the keg—if there was not one already open—and fill his can without ceremony. The floor was covered with rough, dry boards, and was almost constantly covered with the powder spilled by careless miners. In fact, the crevices were so filled up with it that we could not have swept it up if we tried. One bitter cold winter morning a stranger entered and presented an order for two kegs of powder. As there were 2,500 kegs stored in the magazine at the time he had no difficulty in getting his order filled, and he started off with one keg under each arm. He had gone but a few yards when an employe seized my arm and cried out, "God God! Look there!" I followed the direction of his glance, and saw that our departing miner had deposited his two kegs of powder upon the ground and was at that instant fixing an old clay pipe in his mouth with one hand, while with the other he had just ignited a friction match by drawing it across his trousers. Dazed for a second with fear, I looked at him, in silence, while he applied the blazing match to his pipe and began to puff. I dared not cry out to him for fear he would be startled and throw the fire upon the powder strewn floor, and my only hope was to catch his arm before he could drop the match. Starting forward, with my hand outstretched toward him, as if requesting him to save the light until I should ignite my cigar, my heart almost ceased to beat, while the thought of the 2,500 kegs ran through my brain like lightning. Just as I reached the fellow's side he very deliberately extinguished the match between his thumb and finger, and dropped the charred remains on the floor as he emitted a puff of smoke, and, turning, picked up his burden. Need I tell you he never received any more powder from that store?"—New York Herald.

"Is a Paint Mule a Hoss?"

Nothing is more remarkable than the facility with which the colored population become acquainted with the forms of law, and the practical management of a case in court. There was a striking illustration of this fact in the Recorder's Court this morning.

The prisoner was accused of riding across one of the bridges in a gait faster than a walk, and the proof was that he galloped a paint mule over Houston street bridge. He managed his own case.

His Honor said, "I think I'll have to fine you, Johnsing."

"May I ax you a few questions?"

"You may."

"Isn't dar a sign over dat bridge, warning people how dey must ride?"

"There is; and that makes you all the more guilty."

"It does, does it? Now, Mr. Recorder, is dat sign what I has to go by? Is dat de law?"

"It is."

"Well, den, dat sign reads. 'Walk your horse or you will be fined.' Don't it, don't it, boss?"

"It does, Johnsing."

"Well, the proof is, I was gallopin' a paint mule, wasn't it, boss?"

"Y-e-s, I believe so," said His Honor, beginning to smell a rat.

"Now, if your Honor is willing to admit dat a paint mule ain't no hoss, I'll rest de case heah, because you see de law is I shall walk my hoss, and as it was a paint mule, dat is fatal to the indictment. You is a lawyer, and you ought to know dem plots most as well as myself."

Recorder—"Ahem! for the purpose of this suit, Johnsing, I'll regard that paint mule as a hoss."

Prisoner—"Your Honor will please note my 'ception. I jess wants to make one more pint. Allowin' for the sake of argument, dat a paint mule is a hoss, de sign reads: 'Walk your hoss.' Now I has de witnesses here in Court to prove dat paint mule hoss was not my hoss at all. De law say walk your hoss."

Recorder—"I'll fine you $10, Johnsing."

And as Johnsing was conducted to the lock-up he expressed great sympathy for the tax-payers, as he intended to bring a suit for $10,000 damages for false imprisonment. He is, now, however, at work on the streets.—San Antonio (Texas) Herald.

A Treasury Girl's Testimony.

"A Treasury Girl" writes to the Washington Republican as follows.

A young lady from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in yesterday's Republican pathetically and poetically remonstrates against being stared at. Now, no one can blame a man for liking to look at a pretty girl, and no one can blame us for being pretty and trying to look prettier than we are, but after we have dressed ourselves in a way calculated to make that beauty as conspicuous and noticeable as possible, I don't think we have any right to complain if men do look at us, and I guess we should complain if they didn't. I know that when just after the first of this month I had got a new bunch of waving feathers for my hat and I tripped past Willard's with the regulation two yards cardinal ribbon fluttering behind me and a fashionable, tilted hat, and just showed as pretty an ankle as they ever looked at, I should have felt mad if they hadn't looked.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15.

The democratic managers here as elsewhere regard the invasion of Indiana and Ohio by the conquering captains of the republican hosts, fresh from their glorious triumphs in Maine and Vermont, with undisguised apprehensions of disaster to the Bourbon cause. Westward the course of empire, Senator Blaine, Colonel Ingersoll, Kasson and other leaders take their way, meeting with ovations from the intelligent republican masses all along the line. The copperhead columns of the Green Mountain and Pine Tree States are hopelessly shattered and broken. Talbot's loyal horse under whose shadow its disloyal owner essayed to steal his way into the Gubernatorial chair of Maine indignantly repudiated such an intimacy; the purpose was too thin; and the result in that State shows the inadequacy of money and hypocritical pretences of "reform" to dragoon intelligent voters, when the sinister designs of the democratic leaders are once fairly exposed by the analytical reasoning to which they were subjected in the recent campaign there. All advices from that locality up to the active inauguration of campaign work tended to show the apathy among the republicans, chiefly due to Mr. Blaine's defeat at Cincinnati. But when Mr. Blaine, in the nobility of his manhood and forgetful of everything but his duty as a patriot charged down upon the enemy in his own impetuous way, leading an aggressive company imbued with his own spirit, the indifference was dispelled as if by magic and the whole State was aroused as one man to beat back the forces of a smouldering rebellion. Sixteen thousand majority against less than four thousand in 1875! Four thousand more than the most sanguine had dared to predict. Let all who run, read. No very astonishing number of converts were made as is shown by the relative vote; but every man almost, who was a republican from conviction, had his duty forcibly, irresistibly impressed upon his mind afresh by earnest men who had been made to feel the danger involved to the country in a democratic restoration, by the greedy, unscrupulous and arrogant exrebel democrat from the South and his servile associate from other sections, who were swept into the national House of Representatives by the reactionary wave of 1874.

The action of the democratic mourners who met in convention for the second time at Saratoga on Wednesday, in nominating Lucius Robinson for Governor, shows the state of desperation to which the party is reduced in the Empire State. At the first meeting of those men Dorsheimer was made to cower under the insults heaped upon him by Soichem Kelly and others, because of his tardy renunciation of republicanism. With the Jesuitical spirit which characterizes a true New York democrat, Mr. Dorsheimer was given to understand that his recantation must be in terms the most abject; and that he must prostrate himself in the filth at the feet of his political confessor a sufficient length of time that all might witness his degradation as proof of his sincerity and as a penance, before he would be allowed to serve in the inner courts of the democratic temple. These insults were unrebuked and the turbulent cry went up from a hundred democratic throats: "Give us a life-long democrat." Notice was served that no renegade republican need apply for the first place. The unanimous choice of that concentrated Bourbon, Horatio Seymour, was greeted by shouts of approval almost as ferocious as went up from the mob of wild beasts who turned from Mr. Seymour's salutation of "my friends" to burn Orphan Asylums, to hang innocent men to lamp posts and enact crimes that would have shamed devils, in 1863. What a change has been wrought in less than two weeks! On Wednesday they humbly besought Mr. Robinson, a republican deserter, to come to their aid; Dorsheimer is retained and there is presented in New York as in Massachusetts the amazing spectacle of the defiant, boasting, insolent democracy, going to sure defeat under the lead of republican deserters; and the leader in Massachusetts, this year, was a candidate for a similar position before a republican convention last year. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue reports that the receipts of his office at the end of the next fiscal year promise to be several millions in excess of the estimates made last December, confirming the reports from every hand of a general revival of business from the three years' prostration and distress. The Pension Office is being moved from the "Seaton Building" to its new, safe and commodious quarters at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 12th street. The confusion incident to removal and the diminished clerical force is going to delay the business of the office in a way to annoy claimants very seriously. The complaint is very general in many of the bureaus that the transaction of business will be very much retarded by the inadequate force allowed. It is understood that the Comptroller of the Currency has expressed himself as unable to even keep up his current work. Our city is overrun with strangers on their way to Philadelphia or back from there to their homes. They are from North, South, East and West, those from the latter section preponderating up to a week or two ago, when the current from the East set in in earnest, giving her the advantage in point of numbers. Hotel keepers complain of their frugal habits, asserting that more than a majority take their meals of crackers, cheese, peanuts and codfish on the curb stone or while walking about as they investigate our public buildings. The weather here was never more delightful; and in connection with the bright prospects for Fall trade, improvements in other directions and the success of the republican national ticket in November, a buoyancy is apparent to which we have long been strangers. MAXWELL.

A Democratic View.

On the 10th of next month, however, elections will be held in Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio and West Virginia; and intense anxiety is exhibited all over the Union on the result in those States. At the present writing, it looks as if Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia will go democratic; although the vote may be very close, especially in Indiana and Ohio; and that the republicans will carry Colorado, Iowa and Nebraska. But these State elections, although not to be ignored in estimating probabilities, are not entitled to the consideration usually awarded them. Local issues, unknown to outsiders, often produce majorities in the September and October elections that are reversed in the following November. For example, although democracy carried Indiana, in the State election of 1872, by 1148 majority, Grant carried it a month after by 22,516. In some of the Western States, the lager beer question is a prominent local issue; and many of the brewers have combined to protect themselves from State legislation adverse to their interests. They will therefore oppose, tooth and nail, any candidate, of whatever party, whom they suppose to be a prohibitionist. The feeling in the West is also strong and growing against Sunday legislation; and the Americans, in that section, are getting to be as fierce as the Germans for the abolition of Sunday laws. On all these local issues, the democratic candidates for State offices are with the brewers and their friends, and will receive their votes. But, as the Federal Government has nothing to do with these issues, it may happen, as in Indiana in 1872, that the vote in November may be of an opposite complexion. It behooves us, therefore, in our efforts to elect Tilden and Hendricks, to ignore these local questions which may be paramount in the October elections, and to confine ourselves to those of national importance.

Let us not mince matters on this subject. It is too important to be trifled with. This is about the situation, now, in all the Western States. There is a strong and pronounced sentiment that the present Administration has been derelict in its duty to the people. The people understand very well that the war, primarily, brought about the hard times; but, for all that, the idea widely prevails that if the Administration had done its whole duty, the country need not and would not have been in its present woful predicament; and there is no doubt that, under the circumstances, if the people had entire confidence in the honesty of purpose and in the patriotism of the democracy and their candidate, the democratic ticket would be elected beyond a doubt all over the West. But while the republicans are flooding the country with false charges against Mr. Tilden of disloyal utterances and acts during the war, of having defrauded the Government, of having issued, in Michigan, to his workmen, in violation of law, paper money which he refused to redeem, of having been the friend and adherent of Tweed until long after the crimes of the latter were brought to light by the New York Times, a republican sheet,—while these printed slanders are industriously circulated, by the million, all over the country, by the Republican National Committee, and are in the hands of every man, woman and child, the Democratic National Committee and Mr. Tilden's personal friends have, for some reason or other, neglected to refute them satisfactorily,— and, in some instances, have not replied to them at all.

If the friends of Mr. Tilden could be made to understand that the millions of elaborately prepared pamphlets, containing these unanswered slanders on our standard-bearer, are working incalculable mischief all over the country, they would certainly cause them to be authoritatively denied, and to be proved false, at the earliest possible moment.

It is not often we can appropriate the letters of democratic correspondents to democratic papers; but the foregoing is taken bodily from the letter of the Washington correspondent of the Portsmouth Times. Setting aside the predictions as to how the States mentioned will probably vote, the reference to the bearing of local issues on the October elections is sensible and just; in Ohio, in particular, the lager-beer question is a leading one, and, as the correspondent says, "the democratic candidates for State offices are with the brewers and their friends, and will receive their votes." This will make a large difference in the vote of that State. As to the "false charges against Mr. Tilden of disloyal utterances and acts during the war, of having defrauded the Government, of having issued, in Michigan, to his workmen, in violation of law, paper money which he refused to redeem, of having been the friend and adherent of Tweed until long after the crimes of the latter were brought to light," which the correspondent complains the republicans are so industriously circulating every one of them originated in leading democratic newspapers, such as the Chicago Times, Cincinnati Enquirer and Brooklyn Argus,—the two former being now ardent supporters of "Tilden and reform," while the latter is working hard to do as much toward defeating Tilden as the New York Times is doing.

The Republican Electoral Convention

Met in Concord on the 21st. A mass meeting and torch-light procession after the Convention had been arranged for, and on the evening of the 20th the city began to put on its holiday dress; large delegations of prominent republicans arrived on the evening trains, and the indications were that if the unfavorable weather of the previous week did not continue an immense demonstration would take place; but the prospects for good weather were poor, as all the signs indicated rain. Hon. James G. Blaine arrived on the six o'clock train from Boston.

On Thursday morning, although the weather was still threatening, fifty-five carloads of people entered Concord on the early trains, and many came in carriages. Senator Blaine and Gen. Banks, Gen. Marston and other prominent men were present, and it was announced that Geo. Wm. Curtis would arrive at three o'clock,

The Councilor District Conventions to nominate Electors sat at 11 o'clock, and chose the following candidates: District 1, Z. E. Wallingford of Dover; Dist. 2, John J. Morrill of Gilford; Dist. 3, Moody Currier of Manchester; Dist. 4, Levi W. Barton of Newport; Dist. 5, John M. Brackett of Wolfeborough.

Executive Appointments.

At a meeting of the Governor and Council, on the 20th, the following appointments were made:

New Hampshire Items.

Phillips Academy, at Exeter, has one hundred and ninety-five scholars, a larger number than ever before.

A new Episcopal church at Hanover was consecrated on the 19th, Bishop Niles delivering the consecration sermon.

Mr. A. S. Clark, of Troy, has lost seven children by diphtheria within twenty-six days.

About 1000 tons of silver ore have been taken out from Great Hill, in Newmarket, and it is estimated to yield from fifteen to twenty ounces of silver to the ton—enough for a good profit.

Charles A. Woodbury, a brakeman on the Cheshire Railroad, was knocked from the saloon car of the night freight train Tuesday night by coming in contact with a car on the turnout at Cold River. He died from his injuries in about an hour. He was a young unmarried man, and resided formerly in Derby Line, Vt., but has lived in Keene the past three years.

A Lively Parson.

Old Dr. Strong, of Hartford, was not often outwitted by his people. On one occasion he had invited a young minister to preach for him, who proved rather a dull speaker, and whose sermon was unusually long. The people became wearied, and as Dr. Strong lived near the bridge, about the time for the commencement of the afternoon service he saw his people flocking across the river to the other church. He readily understood they feared hearing the young man in the afternoon. Gathering up his wits, which generally came at his bidding, he said to the young minister: "My brother across the river is very feeble, and I know that he will take it very kindly to have you preach to his people, and if you will do so I will give you a note to give him, and will be as much obliged to you as I would to have you preach for me, and I want you to preach the same sermon you preached to my people this morning." The young minister, supposing this to be a commenda ion of his sermon, started off in good spirits, delivered his note and was invited most cordially to preach. He saw before him one-half of Dr. Strong's people, and they had to listen an hour and a half to the same dull, hum-drum sermon that they heard in the morning. They understood the joke, however, and said they would never undertake to run away from Dr. Strong again.

"New Hampshire's share of the work in the present campaign was handsomely and effectively done last Spring, and there is little to do this Fall. The vote of our State is conceded to Hayes and Wheeler on all hands. We may, therefore, well possess our souls in patience and escape the wear and worry of a hot campaign for at least three weeks longer. Still it is well to formally open the canvass and give a promise of what we can do whenever it is necessary."

—The ire of the St. Louis Times toward the editor of the Chicago Tribune is let loose in this way: "He stands up and lies, sits down and lies, eats lies, drinks lies and dreams lies. There is no other name but lies for his preposterous and unprincipled assertions. If there is really a place prepared for liars the smell of sulphur already rises to the nostrils of Joseph Medill."

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and curative of such diseases and malady is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

JOTTINGS.

Newcastle bridge is now graced with the following notice: "This Bridge is Dangerous! And will be closed until funds can be raised for repairs." This we presume means the virtual abandonment of the bridges by the company, as the amount received from tolls has been insufficient to keep them in repair for some time past. Teams will now be obliged to go by way of Little Harbor bridge; foot passengers will probably cross the upper bridges free, if they choose to do so, at their own risk.

The Young People's Social Union of the Methodist church are making arrangements for a first-class course of lectures, to commence about the first of November. It is quite probable that the first in the course will be given by Henry Ward Beecher, to be followed by Wendell Phillips and others. Further particulars will be given soon.

Mr. Nathaniel G. Chapin, of the firm of Fisher & Chapin, Boston, provision dealers, has been chosen treasurer of the Eastern Railroad, in place of Mr. John B. Parker.

Morris Blumaur, a boy of about fifteen years of age, fell overboard on Wednesday while attempting to step from steamer Clara Batemen to the wharf. Willie Foster, a son of Mr. Amos S. Foster, and of about the same age as young Blumaur, jumped in after him, pulled him upon a log fender and held him there until they were both taken into a boat. Young Foster is a good swimmer; but the other boy cannot swim a stroke, and only for the prompt assistance rendered would probably have never had a chance to learn.

The funeral of the late Admiral A. M. Pennock, U. S. N., will take place at half past three o'clock this afternoon, at St. John's church. Lieut. Loyal Farragut, son of the late Admiral Farragut, arrived here on Thursday to accompany the remains to Norfolk, Va., where they will be interred beside the body of his wife. An escort from the navy yard will also go on with the body, leaving here Saturday morning.

Mendelssohn's opera of the "Son and Stranger," as presented by the Rudolphsen Opera Company at the Temple on Wednesday evening, gave entire satisfaction to the audience, whose expections had been raised to a high pitch by the name of the composer and the reputation of the members of the company. The singing was admirable, and the acting ditto. The comic opera, "Box and Cox," in which only the baritone, tenor and basso took part, is irresistibly ludicrous as performed by them. The audience, though not what the company deserved, was large considering the shocking bad weather; and few were there who would not attend in still worse weather to enjoy another such musical and dramatic treat.

POLICE COURT.

Thursday, September 21, before Batchelder, Justice:

Edward Cloane, charged with drunkenness, contended (or one of his shipmates, a regular salt-water lawyer, did for him) that he was only sleepy at the time the officers thought him drunk. The discussion ended by the city accepting a contribution of $11.-04 in greenbacks of the realm.

William Hennessey, accused of having been drunk, thought the accusation came so near the truth it was not advisable to dispute about it. Fine and costs, $9.90.

Henry Welch, accused of having no come from and no belong to, will belong to Brentwood for the next four months and $7.67 worth additional, unless he runs away.

Wm. H. Donohue, a fisherman, had a row with a shipmate while in a dory in the river, in the afternoon, and hit him over the head with an oar. The dory was beached on Peirce's island, and there was some more discussion between the parties. Then William was captured, taken to court, and fined $3, with costs taxed at $9.18. His whiskey must have cost him about $1.25 a glass.

News and Notes.

Theodore Tilton publishes a card to let the public know he's no such man as the stories about his little sleeping-car adventure would lead to believe, and to inform them that his being found in a sleeping berth with another man's wife was all owing to a mistake and a blunder. No doubt of it.

Samuel Lester, of Shelter Island, died, as was supposed, very suddenly a few days ago in Norwich, Conn., and the body was taken home for burial. The man employed to fill the grave heard strange noises coming from the coffin, as if Lester was trying to break out of it. He superstitiously fled, but returned soon and heard noises again. Finally he filled up the grave and said nothing about the matter until a day or two ago. The coffin has been exhumed and it was found that Lester was buried alive.

John D. Lee, the leader of the band of Mormon "Danites" who murdered over one hundred and twenty men, women and children at Mountain Meadows, in 1857, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

Over 15,000 Odd Fellows were in line at the celebration in Philadelphia on the 20th.

Kansas is excited over a brutal murder. Two horse-thieves had been arrested, and were being taken to jail, in Rice county, when the officer in charge shot one dead and seriously wounded the other. The wounded man escaped, and says the officer was chief of the gang of thieves, and shot the prisoners in revenge for their having confessed their crimes.

The negotiations for a new extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States have been broken off, the diplomats of the latter insisting that a treaty must be recognized as higher authority than an act of Parliament. This Great Britain refuses.

A high-toned company of counterfeiters has been discovered in Alabama and adjoining counties in Tennessee. Among the arrests were a superintendent of a Sabbath school, a church deacon, the foreman of the last grand jury, and a candidate for mayor of an Alabama city. The evidence against all these persons was complete, counterfeit money in large amounts being found upon them when they were arrested. The secret service agents engaged two persons of respectability in that locality to assist them in procuring evidence. One witness was shot in bed by an unknown hand, and the second witness was shot through the head by an unknown assassin, outside his door last Saturday. Meanwhile, the principal persons indicted have escaped through the connivance of the local authorities, and the secret service is practically powerless to punish some of the most dangerous counterfeiters ever detected in this country.

Political.

James P. Sennott, Mr. Tilden's confidential clerk for some years prior to and following 1862, has sent to the press (through Mr. Hewitt) an elaborate explanation of the income-tax business. He denies that certain sums said to have been received by Tilden in 1862 were received in that year, if ever; and claims that the $20,000 received that year from the St. Louis and Alton Railroad was earned during a number of years previously, though all received that year. We presume this is the "crushing" answer to the Times' charges which Mr. Tilden promised; and if so, we can see no reason why (if its statements are true) it might not have been given to the public in a week after the charges were made. If Mr. Tilden is satisfied with his explanation, now let him carry into the courts his case against the New York Times, which has unequivocally denounced him as a perjurer and swindler.

The New York Sun insists that those who surround Governor Tilden and advise him, and whom he has selected for that purpose, are "nincompoops." Should he become President, would he have any better advisers?

I never heard it claimed that, because a company of United States troops happened to be in the vicinity at election time, any honest white man, legally a voter, was deterred from casting his ballot for any candidate he pleased.—General Grant.

The nomination of Adams by the Massachusetts democrats moves the Irish World to remark; "We are not saying that a republican is not as good as a democrat. But isn't it singular that the democrats themselves should deem a republican better? Never before in any other party was such a spirit of self-denial exhibited."

There is one thing which might as well be clearly and finally understood, and that is, that the Southern people mean to govern the Southern States, whatever may be the issue of the Presidential election. It would take another such army as was disbanded at Washington in the Spring of 1856 to replace the negro and carpet-bagger on top, where they were placed by the infamous acts of reconstruction.—Petersburg Index-Appeal.

—Mr. Jennings writes from London to the New York World: There is a great deal of drunkenness—I never saw so much in any other country during all my wanderings, and they have been many. I know very well that strong drink is consumed pretty freely in the United States; but in ten years there I did not see so many drunken men and women about the streets as I have seen in three months here. I acknowledge the fact with sorrow. In some towns every other shop seems to be a public house. It is so at Liverpool, and I was much surprised to notice the same circumstance the other day at Hereford, which is a cathedral city and presumably a very virtuous and well conducted place. In London the gin palaces would afford a brilliant light at night without the street lamps.

—In a town about five miles from Boston a certain physician is superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School, and is fond of talking. One Sunday, after talking a long time, he said that perhaps he was talking too much, and hoped if any of his hearers should get wearied with his remarks they would frankly request him to take his seat. A few Sundays afterward, while spinning out his stories to the Sunday School children, one of them, a five-year-old boy, named Clapp, noted for precocity and sharp sayings, interrupted him with, "Doctor, you have said enough, and had better sit down." The teachers and scholars giggled long and audibly, the doctor lost the thread of his story and never has fully recovered it since.

—The Norwich Bulletin says: "A correspondent wants to know the best time to pick pears. Around here from 1 to 3 A. M. is usually considered the most favorable, though it depends somewhat upon whether the owner keeps a dog. As there is no moon now, there is no reason why any of our subscribers who can climb should not have a full supply of this delicious fruit."

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

A Rise in Credit.

The following story is told of Baron Rothschild, of Paris: On a very wet and disagreeable day the baron took a Parisian omnibus, on his way to the Bourse, or Exchange, near which the "Naboth of Finance" alighted, and was going away without paying. The driver stopped him and demanded his fare. The baron felt in his pocket, but he had not a "red cent" of change. The driver was very wroth, and said: "Well, what did you get in for, if you could not pay? You must have known that you had no money?" "I am Baron Rothschild!" exclaimed the great capitalist, "and there is my card." The driver threw the card into the gutter. "Never heard of you before," said the driver, "and I don't want to hear of you again. But I want my fare, and I must have it." The great banker was in haste. "I have only an order for a million," he said: "Give me change," and he proffered a coupon for 50,000 francs. The conductor stared, and the passengers set up a laugh. Just then an "agent de 'change" came by, and the baron borrowed of him the six sous. The driver was now seized with a kind of remorseful respect, and turning to the money king he said: "If you want ten francs, sir, I don't mind lending you them on my own account."

PULMONICE.

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
— IN THE —
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Send by mail on receipt of $1.00 price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BOSTON.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $3.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and two. I feel as well as I am gained in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no avail. Advice is would be so much for him he could not lift his hand to his head or go to any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been so free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; but advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. McMillin, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend these Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 18, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., should be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall carry them each day then into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The cesses of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as are required, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the outer counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc., and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Jack Barry's Advertisement.

The Sonora (Cal.) Union-Democrat publishes the following advertisement:

Citizens of Tuolumne:—Deeming it a solemn duty an humble individual owes to the community in which he exists, to announce as from a tree-top that he has again changed vocations, I have the honor to ask you, although not a Roman, but simply as a native American, to lend me your ears while I fulminate my rights and inherent privileges which shall be unchangeable as the laws of the Modes and Persians, so long as I am engaged in the flour and milling trade. The very idea of infusing a new leaven in old Tuolumne by endeavoring to relieve her downtrodden and long-suffering people from a grinding monopoly, fires my heart with such radiant joy that it sparkles in my eyes, and I cannot refrain from introducing in this digression a few old saws that are applicable to the situation. Argue with an ass and he will flop you in the face with his tail. When barley is ground for two dollars a ton, horse-flesh is scarce when two and two ride on a dog. Having at great expense of wear and tear graduated in the old Junk trade, I am fully competent at the present time to judge of juvenile depravity. Spend not when you may save, spare not where you must spend. To read and not to understand, is to pursue and not to take. To this point, I am now engaged in milling wheat for four and barley for two dollars per ton. Through my exertions, flour has fallen to six dollars a barrel, a hint to the wise is sufficient. When an ass goes among monkeys, they all make faces at him. I truly hope I address myself to a sensible community, but time will tell. Old birds are not to be caught with chaff; four dollars saved is eight dollars made. Two of a trade seldom agree, therefore bring on your wheat and barley, and remember, he who remains in the mill grinds, not he who goes and comes. In conclusion to show how my flour is appreciated, I append a few extracts from letters received daily.

"Dear Mr. Barry—My darling husband has for years been a terrible sufferer from the effects of bad flour, and has for years tried various mills without any relief, somewhat being divided in opinion whether it was me or the flour that made him sick, but thank God, yours cured him and he is so delighted that he has given me a new calico dress and allows me to go to dances.

With gratitude, MRS. J. SMITH."

"My dear Sir—Owing to your self-sacrificing enterprise in grinding barley for two dollars a ton, I am enabled to give my poor old horse a square meal. With gratitude I subscribe my name in full,

JOEL HEZEKIAH."

This is is a sample of many testimonials received. Patronage solicited.

Respectfully, JACK BARRY.

Where Boxwood Comes From.

Not every one is aware that the wood used by engravers is the growth of those far away regions around the Black and Caspian seas, the very names of the ports from which it is shipped being unfamiliar. Very few who consider themselves good geographers have ever heard of Poti, Abkassia or Tzartsin, and yet these are flourishing commercial towns, reached by way of the Golden Horn of Constantinople. For all fine engraving Turkey boxwood is used, and as its quality varies much some skill is necessary to a good selection. The best is of a delicate yellow color, clear and free from spots; it cuts smoothly and evenly, with no crumbling or tearing, but every line cut will be perfect. It is to the use of this wood by our artists that the superiority of their designs and wood engravings must in a great measure be attributed. In consequence of its scarcity and high price, many substitutes have been resorted to; maple, apple, pear, mahogany have been experimented upon; but hitherto no wood, metal, or composition has been discovered that possesses the requisite qualities. In addition to engraving, boxwood is used for scales, rules, gauging rods, and similar articles on which figuring is made; and there are factories in Connecticut that consume hundreds of tons annually for this purpose alone. Any one that has ever held a carpenter's rule in his hand knows what boxwood is like. It differs in color and texture from all other wood, and it is somewhat remarkable that it comes to perfection only in a comparatively limited region of country in the vicinity of the Black seas. It weighs about seventy-five pounds to the cubic foot, and varies in price to land it in Boston from $75 to $250 a ton.—Cleveland Herald.

The Hell Gate Works:

The works at Hell Gate were quite uninjured by the terrible storm of Sunday night, and work went on as usual yesterday. It was feared that the powerful wind blowing against the coffer dam when combined with the force of the extraordinary high tide which swelled in from the Sound, would lift the dam from its bed and permit the river to flow in and fill the excavation. Nothing of the kind, however, occurred, and the only inconvenience resulting from the storm was a somewhat greater leakage than usual. General Newton was early on the grounds yesterday, and remained for some time in consultation with Captain Mercur. Early on Saturday the men were obliged to quit work, having disposed of all the dynamite and other material on hand.

General Newton then ordered several thousand pounds of dynamite from Mr. Warren, who had already filled his contract, and that material will be at the wharf today. The officials in charge of the work are very anxious to prevent anybody learning the quantity of explosive material about the place, but it is pretty certain that there are now 38,000 pounds of dynamite, rendrock and vulcan powder in the mine, and that several thousand pounds more of vulcan powder arrived yesterday. Workmen were employed all day in fitting up the syphon by which the excavation is to be slowly flooded. The syphon is long enough to reach from floor level up to a point midway between high and low water, where it bends at right angles and runs horizontally through the coffer dam into the river, a distance of twenty feet, and then turning down again at right angles reaches almost to its bed. When the time for flooding the mine arrives a valve at the top will be opened while the tide is at flood, and the water will then, of course, be pressed up through the syphon, forcing the air out at the bottom end in the shaft. Once started thus the water will continue to flow even when the tide falls below the level of the horizontal portion. This contrivance will be completed today. Workmen were also engaged in suspending the wires along which the exploding spark will be sent when all is prepared. It is stated that the daughter of General Newton will touch the key which is to send the spark on its mission. Precisely where she (or whoever is to fire the mine) will stand has not yet been decided upon, but it will be at some point along the shore east of the shaft.—New York Herald, 20th.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

News and Notes.

Hell Gate is to be blown up on Sunday, the 24th, at nine minutes before 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

On Thursday the Irish and American rifle teams shot a match at Creedmoor, the latter winning by eleven points. The Irish team second as follows: 800 yards, 394; 900 yards, 369; 1000 yards, 391; total, 1154. The American score was as follows: 800 yard, 409; 900 yards, 336; 1000 yards, 370; total, 1165. A strong wind was blowing while the shooting was in progress.

Capt. Johnsen, the daring sailor who recently made the voyage across the Atlantic in his dory, is now at Liverpool, where the adventurer and his little craft are the lions of the day. The exhibition fee is sixpence, and the room is thronged day and evening by those who wish to see. The crowd are not allowed to tarry long, but pass in one door, taking a look at Johnsen and his boat; then after purchasing a photograph, are requested to pass out. Johnsen is now in good health, having fully recovered from the fatigues of the voyage. He states that he would not attempt the feat and pass through what he did on that trip across the Atlantic for a million of dollars. In fact, nothing on earth would tempt him to repeat such a voyage. It is evident that he is coining money, and his friends here are pleased that he is to receive such a goodly sum for his unparalleled feat and the pluck he manifested in performing it. It is probable that he may go to London before coming home to the Centennial Exhibition. Several entries in his log have been verified from the logs of the vessels St. Louis, Defiant, Amerique and Grace, which he spoke en route. He intends to publish the details in order to silence sceptics, and prove the genuineness of his memorable voyage across the Atlantic.

The New York Herald has a Madrid despatch stating that Tweed will be brought to this country in the U. S. S. Franklin, instead of being sent to Cuba by merchant steamer and from there shipped to New York. The same despatch intimates that the murderer Sharkey may be sent home at the same time and in the same way.

The city officials of Baltimore deny that the yellow fever has appeared there, but a physician sent to investigate by a New York paper reported that he had found eleveg cases concerning which there could be no doubt, within a short time of his arrival. It is intimated that the officials are adopting the dark-lantern plan, lest the public knowledge of the existence of the scourge should injure the city commercially. This is a poor plan; Boston tried it with the small-pox, some years ago, and it was not until the disease had spread pretty much all over New England and almost ruined the country traffic of the city, that the people kicked out the obstinate donkeys who had allowed it such headway and elected men of energy and common sense, who soon stamped it out.

Four of the robbers of the Northfield, Minn., bank, were hunted down and captured on Thursday. One was killed, and the others all wounded. The remaining two of the gang are being hard pressed in Dakota, and will probably be captured. The notorious Younger brothers are among the prisoners.

Political.

Hon. James G. Blaine addressed the republicans in the State House yard, after the convention, Thursday, and was followed by Gen. Banks. George William Curtis addressed a crowded audience in Phenix Hall in the evening. There was a torchlight procession after the speaking, from 1500 to 2000 torches being in line. There were also fine displays of fireworks.

The Boston Post has "assurances of a democratic victory in Ohio," and announces "Indiana sure to give a rousing democratic majority." Possibly; but the Post's "certain victories" are not always easy to find after election.

At a republican meeting in Cincinnati, Thursday evening, while Col. Carter of Indiana was speaking, a disturbance was created by a mob of young men throwing mud at uniformed torch-bearers, and mud, rotten pawpaws and other spolled fruit at the speaker's stand. Col. Carter and Lieut.-Gov. Young were struck by eggs thrown from the crowd. It is a little singular that all the roughs and bullies in the country should be earnest for "Tilden and reform." No one hears of democratic meetings or processions being assailed by republicans; but then, you know, the democrats advocate liberty and equal political rights for all—except republicans and "niggers."

Nothing can be found in modern political history more touching than the grief of the democratic organs, such as the St. Louis Times and the Boston Post, over the wrongs inflicted on Mr. Schurz by the republican managers. A week ago the same papers were calling Mr. Schurz a venal hypocrite.

We are glad to read in a Troy exchange that Governor Tilden enjoys a good reputation among the Albany washerwomen. Amid the gloom that is rapidly gathering about his once fair fame, this resolution to keep open his communications with clean linen shines forth like a tallow candle in a dark cellar.—Brooklyn Argus (dem.)

The only men who discouraged enlistments for the Union army were democrats; the only men who boasted that they had not had would not vote a man or a dollar in Congress were democrats; the only men arrested for sending arms and supplies to the rebels were democrats, and the only men convicted for inciting rebellion in the North, for treasonable communications, and acting as spies for the enemy, were democrats. The only men at the North who declared the war measures unconstitutional were democrats. The only men who opposed the draft, who opposed confiscation, who opposed the employment of colored troops, were democrats. The only men who opposed the 13th amendment of the Constitution, abolishing slavery, were democrats. The only men who declared the war for the Union a failure were democrats. The only men who did not rejoice at Union victories were democrats. And the only men who did not thank God when the rebellion was crushed were democrats.—Hon. A. H. Cragin.

Senator Patterson, of South Carolina, has arrived at Washington to ask protection for voters in his State. He reports that there are over 20,000 armed men patrolling the State for purposes of intimidation, and that the excitement is worse than in the days of secession. He says the democrats openly declare their purpose to prevent republicans from voting, at any cost, and profess contempt for the United States forces. He is evidently thoroughly frightened. Governor Chamberlain and United States Marshal Wallace are expected in Washington to add their requests for the protection of the ballot.

He was taken home, and attended by Drs. Perry of Exeter and Odell of Greenland. It is thought he will recover.

The laborers on the Manchester and Keene Railroad, to the number of 350, on Thursday marched into Keene, demanding their pay. The city was greatly excited, but no harm was done. The laborers had neither money nor food.

An Explanation That Does Not Explain.

At last Gov. Tilden appears, to explain the Income business. We say Gov. Tilden appears, for the letter signed by the law clerk is evidently dictated by the master. It betrays all Gov. Tilden's peculiar dexterity, and is formidably elaborate and precise on the points of least consequence. The essential point it slurs.

Gov. Tilden was found to have paid tax in 1862 on a sworn income of only about $7,000. In an answer to an equity suit long afterward, he swore to the receipt in that year of two fees amounting to $20,000, and it was reasonable to believe that he must also have received large sums in the same year from his other legal business. It was found that subsequently he made no returns, but preferred to let the Government, guided by his low return in 1862, estimate his income, and fix its tax on that. It thus came about that he paid on an income of less than $15,000 per year during the whole time the tax was levied. It is known that in some of these years his income must have been over a quarter of a million, and that throughout the whole period it must have averaged over $100,000. These are the naked facts. Gov. Tilden does not deny one of them; and on these the American people must decide whether he will do for a reform candidate, to collect the taxes honestly from other people. We say this with profound regret. The Tribune made Mr. Tilden the Governor of New York, as he has himself again and again acknowledged. He has given us in many respects a model administration, and has done all, and more than all, that we promised for him. We believed his character to be spotless, and when this income charge was first presented, we confidently expected him to make an instant and conclusive reply. His reply has been fatally delayed, and on the main point, as above stated, it is fatally inconclusive.

On many of the points which he does deal with, his answer appears complete. Heedless and hot-headed partisans have wantonly paraded supposed items of his income in the year 1862. This was a foolish thing to do, and nobody can be surprised to find that the Governor is able, in nearly every case, to show that the item, as stated, is incorrect. The trouble is that he stops right there. He carefully avoids stating what the items should be. Probably no one but himself could give an accurate statement of what his income was in any year from 1862 to 1872, and it would be easy for him to trip up anybody who should attempt it. The main point is that everybody knows his income was much larger than the sum on which he was taxed. Even in 1862, no one has any idea that Gov. Tilden's taxable income was only $7,000. He admits to the receipt of much more, but claims his right to deduct from it all sums earned in previous years. It would be easy on that plan to cipher down the income of any year. Some of the work which went to the earning of it was certainly done in previous years. It could not have been earned, for instance, unless he had studied law. Why not charge off a part of it against the years that he was at the law school?

We have never charged Gov. Tilden with committing perjury about his income. We have never even held that there could be no plausible explanation of the meagre return for 1862. We have insisted that the circumstances demanded an explanation, and that, if it were easy to make, it would not have been so long in coming. We think so still. The explanation as to 1862 is technical and hard strained, but if it stood alone, perhaps it might pass. When that return comes to be used steadily, for ten years, as the basis for escaping taxation on everything over fifteen thousand dollars at a time when his income was steadily a hundred thousand or more, per year, the situation becomes monstrous. Gov. Tilden may indeed have kept himself within the letter of the law, but it is plain he evaded its spirit. He could not be sent to the penitentiary, as he is trying to send Jarvis Lord, for defrauding the Government, but he contrived to keep the Government from getting out of him the money to which it was entitled. He did not tell the horse-car conductor he had paid his fare, but he kept his hands in his pockets and looked unconcernedly at the conductor, as if he had; and the effect was the same. When the conductor detects such a passenger, he generally wants to put him off the car. When the American people find him running as a reform candidate for the Presidency, they are going to vote for the other man.—N. Y. Tribune.

The New York Times, commenting on the "explanation," says:

"After waiting so long, it is somewhat remarkable that Mr. Tilden should have attempted any defense at all; after attempting it, nothing but conscious guilt could have made his answer the contemptible farrago of half-truths and evasions which it is. We are glad, however, that Mr. Tilden has rested a part of his case on simple issues of fact. There we are willing to meet him, and shall with all the haste which the examination of a mass of legal and other records admit of, prove that he has attempted to conceal perjury by falsehood, and to hide fraud by the arts of the pettifogger and the shyster."

—Every step that is taken on the great Brooklyn bridge is controlled by the chief engineer, Mr. Roebling, who has not seen the structure for two years. He is sick at his home in Trenton of a disease named the caisson disease, because it was peculiar to those who worked in the caissons in the beginning of the bridge. There were 110 cases of it then. Three were fatal. The disease, while depending upon increased atmospheric pressure, always developed after the pressure was removed. It affected the patient with extreme pains in the extremities and in the trunk, and was associated with epigastric pain and vomiting. In some cases, as in Mr. Roebling's, there was paralysis, and congestion of the brain and spinal cord.

—A camp of pilgrims were preparing breakfast under a cottonwood tree, yesterday morning, and a small boy to whom the task of grinding coffee with a worn out coffee-mill had been assigned, after twisting away until he got plumb sick of the job, startled the camp by the assertion: "This ought to be the gods' coffee-mill." "What do you mean by such nonsense?" asked the head of the family. "Why," he replied, "they say the mills of the gods grind slowly, and if slow's any object, they'd better come and get this in."—Colorado paper.

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and it is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

CITY AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Sept. 21:

The Board of Health, to whom was referred the petition of Wm. C. Newton and others for abatement of nuisance occasioned by chimney of distillery on Dennett street, reported, finding the complaint sustained, and recommended that the proprietors build a new chimney twenty or twenty-five feet higher than the present one, or if practicable, so alter the present one as to remedy the nuisance.

Petition of Jonathan Buzzell and others, for the enlargement of the Spalding School House, was referred to the committee on school houses.

Claim of E. H. Winchester, for sheep killed by dogs, was referred to committee on claims.

Subject of the condition of the sewer on Summer and Middle streets was referred to the committee on laying out streets.

Notice of the City Clerk, relative to deficiency in the appropriation for the Fire Department, was referred to the committee on finance. Notice of exhaustion of other appropriations was referred to the same committee.

Notices of writs in eight suits of late City Marshal and police officers were referred to committee on claims with Mayor added.

Committee on city lands and buildings, to whom was referred that part of a communication from the Chief Engineer relating to the hose tower, presented a report, with plan. The report was recommitted to the same committee, with Chief Engineer added, with power to carry out its provisions.

Adjourned.

JOTTINGS.

The Band of Hope will meet this (Saturday) afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at Franklin upper Hall, to make arrangements for their coming Levee. Entrance to Hall on Fleet street.

There were six fishing steamers in port for shelter during the week. Four of them got up steam to proceed to sea on Friday, but found it so rough outside that they returned.

Plenty of wood and lumber floating around off the beaches since the storm. By an advertisement in another column it will be seen that parties in Rye have picked up several thousand feet of plank—probably part of some vessel's deck load.

On Friday Mr. George Twombly shot a bald-headed eagle near the round house of the Eastern Railroad, on the edge of the North Millpond. The big bird measures over six feet from tip to tip of the wings, and was captured alive, one of its wings having been broken.

The New England Farmer needs no introduction to our readers as a leading agricultural newspaper. Its terms are reduced to $2.15 per annum, cash in advance. In these times no intelligent farmer can afford to do without an agricultural paper, and the N. E. Farmer is one of the very best.

The Reform Club will hold its regular weekly gathering tomorrow (Sunday) evening, at Rechabite Hall, as usual, on which occasion Mr. Charles W. Gardner will speak upon the subject of "Influence." Mr. G. was announced last week but his lecture was deferred on account of the stormy weather of last Sunday night. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance tomorrow evening.

Meeting of depositors in Ten Cents Savings Bank at Court House this evening.

The directors of the Oceanic House Company held a meeting at the Rockingham House on Thursday, and chose Mr. John R. Pool president.

On Friday evening there were no less than nineteen fishing steamers laying at the wharves; making, with the eight government steam vessels at the navy yard, and the Appledore, Major, Mystic and Clara Bateman, twenty-five steamers in harbor at one time—more, probably, than were ever here at one time before.

One of the police officers got under the influence of liquor on Friday, acted like a fool, as is frequently the case with men in that condition, was arrested, and at once suspended by Mayor Broughton.

The navy yard ferry steamer Emerald will be laid up for repairs, to-day, and her place taken by one of the steam launches.

A Clincher.

Hon. Charles F. Conant, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has prepared a statement, in answer to a request of Senator Cragin of this State, which deals with some matters set forth in the St. Louis platform. The statement sets forth that for the past eleven years all current obligations have been met, and a yearly surplus income derived; that the present credit of the country is unparalleled in her history; the public debt has been reduced over $600,000,000, and Federal taxation has been reduced more than half that amount. The expenditures of the Government have decreased from $520,809,416.29, in 1866, to $258,469,797.33, in 1876. There has been an average annual reduction of expenses during the eleven years of $23,849,965.42, and the expenses for 1876 are less than for 1866 by $262,349,619.66. The bonds of the United States are selling in the principal commercial centres of the world at above par. On the 12th of August last the Treasury sold $2,160,000 of 5 per cent. bonds at $105.05. Concerning losses by defaulting officers, the ratio of loss per $1000 to the amount involved is as follows, under respective administrations:

George Washington	$2.22
John Adams	2.59
Thomas Jefferson	2.75
James Madison	4.16
James Monroe	8.58

Clearing Land with Dynamite.

Experience at clearing lands, both of stumps and large boulders, with dynamite, in Scotland has proved successful. The following account is given of a late trial in an Edinburg paper: A spadeful of earth was removed from the side of a stump and a hole driven into the stump with a crowbar. Into this hole a cartridge of dynamite was pressed by means of a wooden ramrod, then a detonating percussion cap with a Blackford's fuse attached, was squeezed into a small cartridge or primer of dynamite, and inserted into the hole in the trunk in contact with the charge. The hole was filled up with loose earth, about a foot-length of the fuse being left bare. A match was next applied to the fuse, and sufficient time was taken for the powder to reach the percussion cap to allow the operatives to retire to a safe distance. When the explosion occurred the trunk was literally blown out of the ground, some of the fragments weighing nearly twenty pounds, being thrown to a distance of over a hundred yards. The destruction of the stump was complete. In breaking up big bowlder stones the dynamite was simply placed on top of the stone, covered with wet sand and fixed with the fuse in the ordinary way. The result was the reduction of the bowlders to fragments the size of a walnut. It was effectually proved by the experiments that land can be speedily cleared of formidable obstructions to good cultivation by the use of dynamite, and the committee of the society who watched the operations expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the results.

—A good story, no doubt mythical, is told of Jacob Beehme, the cobbler, famous for his profound philosophical works. On his deathbed, his disciples came to him, eager to obtain explanations of obscure passages in his writings before he was taken away. He relieved their difficulties with a single exception. One passage puzzled him, and he said, "My children, when I wrote this I understood its meaning, and no doubt the omniscient God did. He may still remember it, but I have forgotten." A similar incident is told of the German poet Klopstock, which has the advantage of being true. Some of his admirers made a journey from Gottingen to Hamburg to see him in his old age, and ask him to explain a difficult passage in his works. They were young students and running over with enthusiasm. Klopstock received them graciously, read the passage and then said, "I cannot recollect what I meant when I wrote it, but I remember it was the finest thing I ever wrote, and you cannot do better than devote your lives to the discovery of its meaning."

—The most remarkable speech ever made by a presiding officer was lately delivered in Florida. The man who made it is a member of the legislature, and he was called to the chair unexpectedly at a convention of his constituents. Here it is in full: "You know I can't make a speech. We came here for something else. I hope you will not make asses of yourselves and break up the party." More good advice was never crowded into so short a space.

COOKED

CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Daily Chronicle.

—The name of Booth's Theatre in New York is to be changed to Booth's Theatre. Here is the resolution passed at a meeting of the proprietors a few days since: "The theatre heretofore known as Booth's Theatre, in honor of Edwin Booth, will be changed on and after September 15th, 1876, and hereafter will be known as Booth's Theatre, by the kind permission of Mr. Samuel Booth, printer, of 221 Centre St., New York." This would be said to be a distinction without a difference, with a vengeance, until one considers that Edwin has protested against the use of his name. It is a "Black Crook" trick.

—A Georgetown, Ky., paper tells this story: "A few days ago a horse belonging to Mr. James O. Sullivan walked across the railroad bridge that spans Big Eagle by stepping from tie to tie. The distance from one end of the bridge to the other is fully 600 feet, and 100 feet above ground. The bridge has no floor save the ties laid in the ordinary way on railroad bridges. Many persons have been afraid to attempt the feat successfully performed by the horse. We are assured by eye-witnesses, who are in every way reliable, of the fact published."

—Mrs. Clements, of Atlanta, reproved her hired girl for washing potatoes in the washtub, and the hired girl reproved Mrs. Clements by setting fire to the house.

PULMOCINE.

ESTABLISHED IN 1855.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL

IN THE

UNITED STATES.

No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.

SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,

SUCCESSOR TO

Dr. TELLER,

DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the uneasiness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichel's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00 price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and inclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

DR. S. Y. R. YOUNG, 9 Beaver St., Albany, N. Y

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

a no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I wrote you I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which I owe to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I hope it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I did not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical colleges, and still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One said he could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure any disease. I am anxious to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A Stockton, Me., shipmaster has just received his award of $1000 from the Alabama claims fund, and has been on a disgraceful spree since. On Sunday he drove to Cape Elizabeth, entered a church, sat down in a conspicuous pew, drew out his pocket flask and took a drink. Then he pulled out three pocketbooks and counted his money. Next he took out a revolver and flourished it about. Being invited to leave, he took another drink and obeyed. He then drove to another church and went through precisely the same performance. He was also about Portland on Monday, running his horse and flourishing a revolver.

—At the recent restoration of a church occupied by the advanced ritualists in England, one of the workmen employed, ascending the pulpit, exclaimed, "I publish the banns of matrimony between this church and the Church of Rome." "And I," said another artisan, turning toward the first speaker, "forbid the banns." "On what grounds?" inquired the man in the pulpit. "Cos the parties is too near o' kin," was the reply.

—A New York paper has this slanderous paragraph: "Orange county has a musical association that is over fifty years old. One or two young ladies have belonged to it ever since it was organized."

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

News and Notes.

By a dispatch over the Atlantic, Pacific & Franklin Telegraph Line we learn that Hell Gate was blown up at 2:50 P. M. on Sunday without harming property or life. An immense crowd of spectators, who anticipated an earthquake, were sadly disappointed; Gen. Newton's predictions proved correct, and no damage was done. The shock was felt in New York.

On Thursday night an earthquake shook Newport, New Bedford, Fall River and other towns in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. It was a little two-cent earthquake and did no harm.

Prince Dolgourowski, governor of Moscow, has had a duel with a distinguished Russian diplomat, about a woman. The Prince was killed, and it is hoped he is pacified now.

In an action for libel, brought by Coroner A. W. K. Newton against the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, laying damages at $20,000, based on an article relative to the appointment of coroners, the plaintiff has consented to an entry of judgment for defendants.

The retailers of coal in Boston have raised the price fifty cents a ton. This is said to be a result of the scarcity of tonnage for transporting coal, and a consequent rise in freights.

Lucy Ann Mink, (or Mank,) the "lady" who murdered her paramour, Charles Ricker, in Lowell, some weeks ago, by shooting him, was before the police court in that city on Friday, and her case was continued for a week, she not having yet been able to secure counsel from Maine. The reason counsel from that State is especially desirable is probably because Miss Mink was saved by Maine counsel from punishment for shooting another of her gentleman friends in that State some years ago.

Yellow fever is raging terribly in Savannah, where there are 2000 cases, the deaths averaging 30 a day. At Brunswick, Ga., there are 600 cases, and the disease has got a footing in Charleston, S. C., Wilmington, N. C., and other places. The Baltimore epidemic, which the authorities say is not and the doctors say is yellow fever, is increasing.

It is reported that the White Liners of the Edgefield, S. C., district propose to attack and drive away or kill the National troops sent there to protect the people in the exercise of their political rights. We hardly think they will show such asinine stupidity as that.

By a railroad accident near Columbus, Ohio, Friday, seven persons were killed and forty wounded.

From all parts of the country come cheering reports as to the business outlook. Mills that have been idle for months and even years are starting up; others that have been running on short time are now working full or extra time; wholesale dealers in the large cities report their country trade better than at any time since the panic; and everything indicates that the worst has been experienced and that a revival of business on a sound basis has fairly commenced. This is the story told by our exchanges from all parts of the country; and despite the croakings of a few birds of ill omen the coming winter is not likely to be nearly so hard for working men as the last two have been.

Political.

Hendricks is not over sensitive as to his reputation for loyalty, but even he feels he must draw the line somewhere, and indignantly denies that he was a member of the Chicago democratic convention of 1861 which declared the war a failure. Tilden was a member of this convention, whose doings his associate on the ticket is so anxious to repudiate, and was one of the committee which reported that memorable resolution.

A correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette (democratic) writes from North Carolina that that State is going republican. The vote of the State he says, will be determined by the action of about 11,000 "Union men" in the counties west of the Blue Ridge, who have been disgusted with the democratic party by the prominence of the reactionary secessionist element. Governor Vance has lost votes in the western section wherever he and Judge Settle have made a joint canvass, as the latter has made an excellent impression.

Captain Hugh Donnelly of Springfield and bogus telegrams were the causes of the nomination of Charles Francis Adams, according to the Boston correspondent of the New York Herald. Captain Donnelly was primed by Boss Kelly of New York, and both may expect soft appointments if Tilden is elected. This will be news to the democratic convention and Governor Gaston. Whatever causes led to the nomination, it is certain that George William Curtis stated the object neatly when he suggested that the nomination was "for export trade and not for home consumption."—Globe.

Ex-Governor Vance, of North Carolina, and now running for re-election to the same position on the democratic ticket, in a speech at Shelby, on the 15th of September, appealed to the Confederate sympathies of his hearers as follows: "Remember, that all of our brave southern heroes who dipped their hands in Union blood, and all their leaders in the South, are for reform and Tilden."

Hon. John Goode, of Virginia, (the man who was voted into a seat to which he had no shadow of a claim, "for the good of the party," only one New England democratic Congressman having honor enough to vote against the flagrant outrage,) in a public speech recently denounced Hon. J. S. Sener for his "Union record." Said this very poor Goode: "Can you cast your votes for a man who sat in Congress in 1861 and voted men and money to aid in preserving the Union?"

"My friends, I tell you there are certain men you must put out of the way. Those men are Chamberlain, Elliott, Sparmick and others. They must be killed, for they are leaders of the negro, and if we can get rid of them, we can carry things as we want them. We don't care for United States troops. We have met them in the field, and we are ready to meet them again. [Cries of 'yes, we are,' and applause.] And now let me tell you what to do on election day: Go en masse and armed, and try and force the negroes to vote our ticket. If they don't do it shoot them down and cut off their ears. I warrant this will teach them a lesson, and even if we are not elected we will go to Columbia in force, and if not allowed to take our seats we will surround the State House and tear it down, and show them we will rule. What say you, men, can't we do it? [Loud cries of 'yes, damn it, yes.']"—Gen. M. W. Gary, in a speech delivered at Aiken, S. C.

New Hampshire News.

The old Bell Cotton Mill, at Peterborough, owned and run by the New York Manufacturing Company, was partly burned Wednesday evening. A large part of the machinery will be saved. Insured for $50,000; loss not estimated. This was the only mill running in town, and a large number of operatives will be thrown out of employment.

Prof. Edwin D. Sanborn, of Dartmouth College, will deliver the address on New Hampshire Day at the Centennial; subject, "New Hampshire's Merit Roll."

A house and barn owned by John O. Stevens of Belmont were burned Thursday night. Loss about $800; insured $400.

Michael Sullivan, and Mary Sullivan, his wife, of Greenfield, were arrested Friday, for larceny from Morrill's Express Company.

A man from Canterbury, named Brown, claims that he was robbed Thursday night while carrying two strangers from Concord to Manchester. He says they knocked him out of the wagon and took $14 and his watch from him.

James Grimes, a section hand on the Boston and Maine Railroad, was struck by a train on the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad at Dover on Friday evening, and thrown down an embankment. He may recover.

The seventy-sixth annual Episcopal Convention, Diocese of New Hampshire, takes place at Exeter on Wednesday. A missionary sermon will be preached in the evening by Rev. Mr. Holbrook.

Samuel Hannux's house and barn at Lancaster, were burned Wednesday night. The fire took in the barn, from what cause is unknown. Loss, $600; insured in Springfield for $400.

A house and barn in Belmont, owned by John O. Stevens, were burned Thursday night. Loss $800; insurance $400.

Outwitted.

A Boston journalist in St. Louis tells the following story at his own expense, which probably he did not allow to transpire in New England. He was stopping at a private hotel in Boston, and took a fancy to have a lunch before retiring. He knew where the store-room was, knew that the door was left open, and finally resolved to go down quickly and prig enough sweetmeats to satisfy his need.

No sooner was the thought conceived than acted upon, and within five minutes he was in the store-room hooking preserves out of a jar and enjoying himself immensely in satisfying the craving which had come upon him. In a few minutes the enjoyment of the man at the preserves was complete. Then he was startled by a light, swift step in the hall, the door opened suddenly, and some one bounded in with such suddenness as coming squarely against the form of the midnight raider, to knock him half-way across the room and fairly off his feet.

Leaping at once, he closed with his unconscious assailant, to be startled by a subdued shriek, and to find that he had captured a woman? Further, and more terrible still, he discovered that the plump form of the lady who had wanted something to eat as well as he, was clad only in a night dress. Still, though trying, the occasion was one not of unmixed horror by any means, and in a moment the gentleman's nerve returned, and his curiosity rose to fever heat.

"Who is this?" he demanded of the plump figure in his arms. No answer.

"Who is it?" he repeated. "You'll not get out of this until you tell."

Still no answer, but a struggle in the darkness, the plump figure trying hard to get away.

Again the query was repeated with equal lack of response, but this time with a resounding slap in the face from a hand that was doubtless pretty, but which hit with decided force, was the reward of the questioner.

He was put on his mettle at once. "You think you'll get off unknown! We'll see about that!" he exclaimed. "I've a device that'll work, I think." And then, after a silent and determined struggle, he caught a little bit of the lady's right cheek between his teeth and bit it—not badly so as to break the velvety skin, but sufficiently hard to leave a mark which he knew could not disappear for a day or two. Then he released his unknown prisoner, and she fled like the wind along the passage, disappearing in some room impossible to locate in the darkness.

The next morning the gentleman with a mystery to solve, came down to breakfast early. No ladies had yet appeared, but at his table were one or two intimate male friends, and to them he confided the story of his adventure in the night, relating also the means he had taken to secure the identification of the unknown lady.

The most intense curiosity prevailed at the table, and the advent of the ladies was awaited with an impatience scarcely to be controlled.

Five minutes later the door opened, and the belle of the hotel entered demurely, glided across the room and seated herself for breakfast. Eager eyes followed her, and, as her face was fairly exposed, there was a sensation among the gentlemen. Upon her right cheek was a strip of court-plaster an inch long. The excited men exchanged glances and whispers and smiles. The mystery was solved early. But just then another lady entered, and this time a dignified matron. As she seated herself, there was upon her cheek a piece of court-plaster identical in appearance with that upon the face of the belle.

Another and another lady entered. Upon the cheek of every one of them appeared a piece of court-plaster. The tables filled up and not a lady at one of them but wore court-plaster on the right cheek? And then the gentlemen looking confidently wilted. They comprehended the situation.

The lady who had been captured in the night had confided her extremity to her friends, and they had come to the rescue to outwit male humanity. They had succeeded, too. The discomfitted men at that particular table knew that beneath one of the many pieces of court-plaster in the room were hidden the marks of teeth, but which was the identical bit of court-plaster, they could not tell. And they never learned.

"Roasting" an Invalid.

She came from Detroit, Michigan, and her great pride was being an invalid. She lost no opportunity in stating that she came to Minnesota to recuperate. She did not hesitate to enter into conversation with any person she came in contact with, giving advice, climatological or physiological, to invalids, and seeking the same from those of robust constitution.

Her conversation was always prefaced with the introductory inquiry so common to visitors. "Did you come here for your health?"

She thus addressed a stalwart, ruddy-visaged young man at the dinner table of the "Metropolitan," a few days since, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Yes, madam, I came probably the weakest person you ever saw. I had no use of my limbs—in fact, my bones were but little tougher than cartilages. I had no intelligent control of a single muscle nor the use of a single faculty."

"Great heavens!" exclaimed the astonished auditor. "And you lived?"

"I did, madam, although I was devoid of sight, was absolutely toothless, unable to articulate a single word, and dependent upon others for everything, being completely deprived of all power to help myself. I commenced to gain immediately upon my arrival, and have scarcely experienced a sick day since; hence I can conscientiously recommend the climate."

"A wonderful case!" said the lady. "But do you think your lungs were affected?"

"They were probably sound, but possessed of so little vitality but for the most careful nursing they must have ceased their functions."

"I hope you found kind friends, sir?"

"Indeed I did, madam; it is to them and the pure air of Minnesota that I owe my life. My father's family were with me, but unfortunately, my mother was prostrated with a severe illness during the time of my greatest prostration."

"How sad! Pray, what was your dietand treatment?"

"My diet was the simplest possible, consisting only of milk, that being the only food my system would bear. As for treatment I depended entirely upon the life-giving properties of Minnesota air, and took no medicine except an occasional light narcotic when very restless. My improvement dated from my arrival. My limbs soon became strong, my sight and voice came to me slowly, and a full set of teeth, regular and firm, appeared."

"Remarkable! Miraculous! Surely, sir, you must have been greatly reduced in flesh?"

"Madam, I weighed but nine pounds. I was born in Minnesota. Good day."

—The Fairfield, Me., Chronicle says a case was tried before Loring B. Jones, as a referee, in which the amount sued for was forty cents. The parties are Sumner Smith of Fairfield, and James Rowe of Smithfield. The case was originally brought before a justice, a verdict given for the defendant, Rowe, from which the plaintiff appealed and the case went to court, where it was referred. The claim grew out of a transaction between the parties, in which Smith says that he by mistake paid Rowe a fifty cent scrip for a ten cent. The entire cost will probably amount to seventy-five dollars or more. The award being returnable to court, is not yet made public.

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allies enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

The Fragrant Breath of Beauty

Attests the matchless purifying properties of SOZODONT. Every lady who has ever used it, proclaims it a perfect antidote to dental decay. Pure teeth are essential to a pure breath, and both are enjoyed by all who resort to this agreeable, wholesome, and invaluable vegetable compound.

RARE ANIMAL CAUGHT.

For a year past a Mephitis Americana has made himself very much at home in the district bounded by Summer, Austin, Middle and State streets, to the great discontent of residents in that locality. Proofs of his proximity were frequently detected "floating like a vapor on the soft Summer air," and the appearance of a kitten from under a barn in the evening was enough to make the boldest citizen scoot into the house and lock the door, and stand with his back against it; in fact, the "native American" had succeeded in establishing a moderate reign of terror in his district. Steel traps, box traps and nondescrip traps were set for him and guns were loaded for him, but he kept on the even tenor of his way, occasionally getting trapped but always getting away again, until last Friday morning, when Mr. George Perry found him caught for good in a fox trap, and gave the alarm. The neighbors (who had already been made painfully aware that the animal was somewhere in the immediate vicinity,) mustered after the fashion of the Hamburg-Butler democracy at a meeting of South Carolina republicans, and proceeded to blaze away at him with revolvers (from a safe distance) like a whole regiment of light infantry, one gentleman firing twelve shots. Having killed the captive the captors dug a hole to put him in, but when all was ready one of the more cautious ones stirred him up with a long pole, when he immediately arose and convinced all hands that he still lived. An old horse pistol was then procured, filled half full of bird-shot and bullets, and the beast blown half-way across the yard and again killed, this time so effectually that they got him buried before he could come to life again. Joy now reigns over the once afflicted locality, and it is expected that favorite dogs that have been banished out of doors for a year past will before long once more take their wonted places near the stove. Six bottles of cologne, one of musk and two of carbolic acid, were sold by one druggist, Friday morning, and another dealer disposed of three pecks of chloride of lime.

Boys and Dime Novels.

The natural consequence of the reading of dime novels, and such prints as "The Boy's Own," and its compeers, is shown in the following story. A telegram was received by Marshal Snowden, of Omaha, from M. Durkin, of New York city, telling him to arrest his runaway son Thomas, who had telegraphed home for money. Policeman Byrnes found the boy sitting in the Western Union office crying. He was there awaiting an answer to his dispatch. It seems that the boy, who is a bright youth, had, according to his own story, been accustomed to read dime novels and sensational stories during his leisure time in his father's store, and becoming fascinated with the thrilling adventures therein graphically depicted, he determined to start out in the world in quest of fortune and adventure. He left home with $43 in money, a portion of which he paid for railroad fare, and the remainder was stolen from him on the cars in Iowa. On his arrival in Omaha he found himself deadbroke. Thus far he had adventures enough to suit him, and becoming convinced that the actual experience of those things is not as pleasant as it is to read about them in print, he concluded to return home. He, therefore, pawned his revolver, with which he had armed himself, for $2.50, and used the money to telegraph home. His father has been telegraphed to, and money will probably be forthcoming to send the boy home again. This is but one instance out of tens of thousands where boys have been led astray by the perusal of such abominable trash as dime novels and weekly illustrated papers. Parents cannot be too careful to keep such mental poison from their children, and publishers who issue it ought to be indicted.

—When Frederick Soulie was buried, Alexandre Dumas was asked, on the ground, to pronounce the funeral oration. "Impossible," he replied: "I have not the heart to make pretty phrases here." Anthony Beraud had prepared a long speech, and said to Dumas, "I will speak, but you are the most famous person present, and cannot avoid saying something." "Well," said Dumas, "I will begin and you must interrupt me." Dumas began; "By the side of this tomb where repose the mortal remains of him whom we all mourn——" Beraud sprang forward: "Tears choke his utterance!" he cried: "the tears of Alexandre Dumas on the grave of Frederick Soulie! What tribute more eloquent!" and he proceeded to reel off the oration he had prepared two days before. Of course the public that listened came away with astonished minds at the brilliancy of the impromptu interruption.

—Tidies are going out of fashion, it is reported, and if it be true—if we are to sink into a rocking chair after this without tearing a lace dog from the back of it, or settle down on a sofa and not feel a yellow worsted farmhouse bumping up against us, then an evening's tete-a-tete will seem as odd as a man with his moustache shaved off.—Fulton Times.

—C. D. Allmy, City Attorney of Des Moines, Iowa, recently talked eight hours in order to prevent the discharge of a prisoner, against whom he had no case, until an officer could reach town with a warrant for his apprehension on another charge.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.
Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.
Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.
In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.
We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.
For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability are his pers. hands me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Daily Chronicle.

—Mr. Throop's wife's maiden aunt, who had raised Mrs. Throop, and feels in the place of a mother to her, had not been in the house thirty minutes on her present visit before Mr. Throop saw it would be necessary for him to assert himself. He accordingly calmly proceeded to empty his shaving water out of the parlor window, blacked his boots in the sitting room, wiped his hands on the window curtain, lit his pipe and took a quiet and defiant smoke in the dining-room, and finally stepped on the maiden aunt's dress skirts as she was rushing past him gasping for breath. The next morning the neighbors noticed a broken shaving mug in the middle of the street in front of Throop's house, and a pair of boots out in the wood-shed door, waiting to be blacked, and the fragments of a meerschaum pipe on the sidewalk and about a pound of Turkish smoking tobacco scattered around the front yard, and, as they passed by the house, the dismal sound of the flax-seed poultice was heard in the distance.

UPHOLSTERY!

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
IN THE
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,

SUCCESSOR TO

Dr. TELLER,

DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accomodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as one of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 16, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been a free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know of, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEYARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried every patent medicine with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, saying that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to MRS. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will cure many more if used wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," no does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Capturing Wild Elephants.

An officer on board the United States steamer Ashuelot, at Bangkok, Siam, gives the following account of an elephant hunt which he was invited to attend:

Every year they have an elephant hunt, or drive rather, and we were invited to attend one about to take place. To add additional eclat to the occasion, there was a white elephant in the drove, and that was of course the cause of great rejoicing. Fortunately I was one of the lucky ones who could go. There were six of us in all, the captain and five of our mess. For nearly a year they had been collecting this drove from all the distant provinces, driving them in a few at a time, and now they were all collected at Aynthia, a place about sixty miles up the river from Bangkok. Our invitation came from the foreign minister, and he did everything for us in style; sent us a steam launch, to tow us and do the cooking, etc., and what they call a house boat, with a house built over about half of it and very comfortable, indeed. We took bedding and clothing, and that was all. Everything else was provided for us. The ministerial sent his interpreter with us. He was a Portuguese, a very pleasant fellow, who added much to our enjoyment.

The first day was devoted to capturing the white elephant, nothing else being of sufficient importance to touch on the same day. The performance was to commence at one, and we went there about noon to secure a good place; but, as usual, we found ourselves well looked out for. We were given splendid places, just below and in front of the King. A little before the hour, the herd was driven in from the stockade, where they had been confined, and a queer sight it was. They came on at a very sedate pace, headed by a tame elephant, and surrounded by about twenty other large tame elephants, who had no difficulty at all in keeping the herd together. Each tame elephant had two riders who seemed to have the most perfect control over the beasts, jabbing them playfully in the head with a sharp iron hook when they wanted them to do anything. The drove was brought down immediately in front of where we sat. We were about fifteen or twenty feet above them, and the trained elephants, which are used in the catching, were brought out. The elephant was taken by a high noble, who is second lord of the elephants. The wise men had been consulted, and the exact minute at which it was proper to take the fellow ascertained, and all hands waited patiently until the King gave the signal, and then he went for him. There were one hundred and eighty-five elephants in the herd (we counted them afterward,) and it seemed almost impossible to pick out the one they wanted; but they spotted him instantly, and had a rope around his leg in a very short time. The rider carries a coil of hide rope, in the end of which is a loop, which they carry on the end of a long bamboo. They rush up behind the one they wish to catch, stick this long bamboo down, and as he lifts his hind leg to rush along, slip the loop over it, and the trained elephant instantly turns and walks away with it taut, so there is no danger of it slipping, and then the end is thrown off and allowed to drag.

In the case of the full-grown elephants three or four ropes are necessary. These are immensely strong, made of buffalo hide, but in the case of the white elephant only one was necessary, as he was only three years old and quite small. As soon as the line was fast to him they caught the end of it, and made it fast to a strong post, and then the tame elephants closed in, and drove the herd off, leaving the poor little wretch all alone. His mother broke from the herd and came back, trampling on the line and pulling at it with her trunk, trying to free him, but they soon drove her off and left him him alone in his glory. He bellowed and snorted and stood on his head, and did everything he could to break the line, but without effect, and then they closed in on him and captured him. It took three tame ones to do it, one butting him from behind. The men on each side passed a strong collar around his neck, and then made it fast to other collars around the necks of their own elephants and thus they had him.

They brought him up in front of the King, and washed him nice and clean (the elephants keep themselves plastered from head to foot with mud to keep insects off), and showed how beautifully white he was. He really was rather a light brown, and is said to be the whitest one they have caught in a hundred years. Another good omen was that he would eat. Generally, they will not touch food for two or three days, but this fellow did not seem to mind it much. The King threw him bananas, which he ate very contentedly. After every one had admired him sufficiently, he was led away to his stable to be tamed, which would take two or three months, and then he will be taken to Bangkok with great ceremony and rejoicing.

—A scientific writer says every infant can say "no" several months before it can say "yes." An old bachelor who has been rejected seventeen times says this habit of saying "no" before she can say "yes" clings to the female infant until after she becomes twenty-seven years old.

—"Lord, what a cow!" was the approving remark of a teetotal judge of Vermont after swallowing a potent punch which had been offered him as a glass of milk.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23.

There is something refreshing in the cool impudence with which the rebel democratic newspapers charge the republican party with extravagance, corruption, and increasing the National debt. This, however, is in keeping with their howl for "reform." Who can point out any reform ever inaugurated under a democratic administration? Under the administration of Mr. Buchanan, in a time of profound peace, Mr. Cobb, Secretary of the Treasury, found it necessary to advertise for a loan to meet the current expenses of the Government, and advertised without success—the lowest bid offered for his loan being six per cent., and thus going up as high as thirty-six per cent. These financial reformers forget that in 1861, at the commencement of their "little unpleasantness," the National debt was $64,769,703.08, and that every dollar of this amount, principal and interest, has been wiped out by republican administrations,—and a large amount, besides, paid on the debt created by the rebel reformers in their attempt to destroy the Government. If they had any sense of shame or one particle of honor left they would hide their heads whenever the National debt was mentioned.

The "gush" indulged in by a few deluded republicans of the North in "shaking hands over the bloody chasm," completely turned the heads of the Southern leaders; and flattering themselves that they were the outraged, insulted, aggrieved patriots, they determined to make another effort to capture and control the government—this time by the ballot, as they had failed with the musket. A restoration of the democratic party to power would be the greatest misfortune that could befall the Nation. It would be restoring to power the old States Rights rebel party and their stay-at-home sympathizers, — virtually abandoning the issues and principles for the maintenance of which millions of treasure and the life-blood of the nation were sacrificed.

A "united South" means a defiance to the North. It means that the feelings that fired the southern heart has only slumbered; that there has been no "reform." The bitterness of the southern people against Yankees is as strong to-day as it was at any time during the Rebellion. But the restoration of that party to the control of the Government by the election of Tilden and Hendricks is so utterly impossible as not to be seriously thought of. So long as the people of the country love liberty, so long as they love the free institutions under which they live, so long as patriotism exists in their hearts, there is no danger of such a calamity; they have been trusted to defend their country against its armed assassins, and they can be trusted to protect it from disgrace and National ruin, which would be the result of the election of the rebel-democratic ticket headed by reformer Tilden.

The New York democracy have at last succeeded in getting a candidate for Governor; Mr. Lucius Robinson has graciously accepted the nomination, but like C. F. Adams, his new clothes don't set well on him. Mr. Robinson in his letter of acceptance forgets himself and thinks he is still among the liberal republicans. He devoted a large part of his letter to describing the origin and rise of the evils of an inflated currency. He says "the waste and destruction of war impoverished the country while the inflated currency concealed the truth, and gave a false appearance of security." Yes so! But who brought about this state of affairs? The very party whose nomination he has just accepted. That letter must be a bitter pill to the old straight-outs.

The news received here from Ohio and Indiana is encouraging. Whilst the Tildenites have left no stone unturned to place the republican party in a false light, there is every assurance for believing that both will be carried by the republicans in October.

MAXWELL.

The Adams Enthusiasm.

The nomination by Samuel J. Tilden of Charles Francis Adams as a candidate for the Massachusetts democracy to vote for, arouses as much enthusiasm in that State as the Lowell Courier predicted it would—that paper having compared Mr. Adams, as a political electrical machine, to "a barrel of clams." Notwithstanding that his nomination was ordered by the great "reformer," and that he is endorsed by Boss Kelly of Tammany as a fit man for Massachusetts reformers to vote for, the population of Massachusetts don't enthuse worth a cent. The Boston Pilot, the leading organ in New England of the Irish Catholics, announces that it opposed the nomination "on principle," but supports the nominee "on principle;" but even such accommodating "principles" as the Pilot's don't satisfy the more ardent of the Irish voters, and in Worcester and other cities clubs of young Irishmen are working earnestly against Mr. Adams, on the ground that his nomination, no matter who ordered or secured it, was a deliberate snub and insult to the Irish element of the democratic party. The Irish World, of New York city, the most ably edited, widely circulated and influential journal of its class in the country, was for Peter Cooper and against Tilden before Mr. Adams was nominated by the latter; and now it argues that no Irishman, either in Massachusetts or elsewhere, who sympathized with the Fenian movement or believes that Ireland is an oppressed country, should vote for the man who has put upon the Irish such an insult as the nomination of a man whom the Irish World accuses of having neglected his duty toward the condemned Fenians in England, at the time he was Minister there.

The Gates Ajar.

The great mine at Hallett's Point reef, Hell Gate, was fired on Sunday at a few moments before the advertised time, 2:30 P. M., after seven years spent in getting ready for it. The last box of explosives was lowered into the mine on Friday evening; and when the work of flooding the mine was commenced, at 11 o'clock Friday night, there were in it 24,812 pounds of dynamite in ten cases, 1164 pounds in paper cartridges and 2925 pounds in primers; 9061 pounds of rend rock cartridges, and 14,244 pounds of vulcan powder in cartridges, making a total of 52,206 pounds of explosives. These were placed in 4462 holes and pipes in the various galleries of the mine, and were at the time of the explosion totally submerged, electricity being employed to ensure a simultaneous explosion of the whole. As the hour set for the explosion drew near immense crowds of people thronged every available place from whence Hallett's Point could be seen, strong guards of police on shore, and four police-steamers on the water, keeping the eager spectators back out of harm's way. A heavy rain fall had seemingly no effect on the crowd, other than to cause the putting up of thousands of umbrellas. A warning gun was fired at 2:25 P. M., and at 2:40 a second one boomed out the notice that ten minutes later the great blast would take place. The excitement was intense, not only among the spectators but wherever the signal guns were heard. At 48 minutes and 30 seconds past two o'clock Gen. Newton touched the key which completed the electric circuit, and instantly there was a roaring sound, a distinct but not violent vibration of the earth, and a vast mass of water flew upward, followed (or broken through) by a huge column of mud, rocks and broken timbers, rising high above the column of clear water which was thrown into the air at first. The displaced waters fell back, huge waves of muddy water rolled off but subsided without doing any damage, and the crowds dispersed, filled with astonishment that they had passed through so little danger, Gen. Newton's predictions as to the trifling amount of vibration and noise caused by the explosion having proved true to the letter. An eye-witness describing what he saw says: "suddenly the waters off Hallett's Point rose in a vast ridge of snow-white foam, at least 500 feet long, and apparently sixty or seventy feet high, while through it was hurled a dark mass of dirt and rock to nearly thrice the height. A dull, heavy sound, accompanied the upheaval, but on the New York side scarcely a perceptible jar of the earth or vibration of the air was felt. The waves fell back, the waters surged and raged, and sent waves toward either shore, but not of sufficient size to cover any unprotected area." At Hunter's Point, Brooklyn, Williamsburg, and Newark, N. J., the shock was faintly felt; at Jersey City and other places the shock was not felt nor the explosion heard, though the signal guns were plainly audible. Immediately after the explosion at least fifty steamers ran over the spot where the reef had been. How thoroughly the object aimed at was accomplished by the mine can only be told by dredging, but the engineers in charge are confident of its complete success.

The absolute removal of Hallett's Point reef will not throw Hell Gate wide open by any means; Flood Rock, nearly opposite Hallett's Point, covers seven times the space of Hallett's Point reef, and will take ten years or more to remove; and there are minor obstructions which must be cleared away before the East River will be a really safe channel to navigate.

News and Notes.

The expected movement for an independent association of New England college crews has begun. Williams has voted to join Dartmouth in leaving Saratoga and the rowing association of American colleges and in establishing the new association. The others will no doubt come in and we may confidently anticipate some of the old-time sport next season.

On Thursday two cabins occupied by wood choppers on the banks of a mountain stream in Forest county, Penn., were swept away by a flood, and sixteen people drowned, including three women and eleven children.

American barque Norway ran down and sunk barque Wave Queen, of Shoreham, off Falmouth, Eng., Sept. 23d. All hands on board the Wave Queen were lost, except one seaman who climbed on board the Norway.

Frank H. Coolidge, aged 17 years, of East Hartford, killed himself with a pistol Saturday night. He left a note stating that he was tired of life.

Steamship Liberty, with a full cargo and forty persons on board, left Havana for New York Sept. 23, and has not since been heard of. It is feared she was lost in the hurricane which drove the steamer Rebecca Clyde ashore, sunk the Adella Berry in St. Thomas harbor, and did much other damage.

Annie Lincoln alias Minnie Dexter, an adventuress of considerable literary ability and fine conversational powers, has been arrested in New York on a charge of swindling a number of wealthy persons out of large sums of money. She swindled a Mrs. O'Brien out of $2,500 by inducing her to furnish a house which she pretended to own, and then removing the furniture and selling it. It has been ascertained that she has swindled others in a similar manner, and has levied a system of blackmail upon some wealthy men in the city to a marvellous extent.

Political.

Two men, named Rose and Perkins, killed a negro seven miles from Memphis, Tenn., on the 24th, because he would not tell them for whom he intended to vote. A posse followed the murderers and ran them so closely that they abandoned their teams and took to the woods, thus making good their escape. They shot the negro three times.

The Meriden, Conn., Herald, democratic, loudly denounces an attempt to break up a republican meeting in Southington, Wednesday night. It says: "It was a disgrace to all gentlemanly and courteous principles, and a standing reproach to those who tolerated the tumult. It was reported, on good authority, that certain democrats of the town had hired these young rascals to break up the meeting. If this be true, and our evidence seems indisputable, we characterize the democracy of Southington as beneath contempt."

Gen. Conway, of New York, was advertised to address a republican meeting in Toledo, Ohio, on the evening of the 22d, but as soon as he commenced to speak a crowd of some two hundred armed roughs, acting in the interest of Tilden and reform, attacked and broke up the meeting. If Bob Ingersoll did by the Maine democrats what no other man ever was able to do—made them pious—Sam Tilden has made all the thieves and scoundrels in the country into democratic "reformers."

This is not an "aggressive" campaign on Governor Tilden's part, after all; nor on the part of Mr. Dorsheimer. They are both on the defensive, and in from two to six columns each. This should not be so.—Albany Times (dem.)

Col. Henry Watterson, late of the Confederate army, now editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and member of Congress from Kentucky, took his seat in the House on the last day of the session and filled it about two hours—long enough to secure a month's pay and mileage both ways between Louisville and Washington, amounting to about $1000. He is a red-hot Tilden "reformer."

The Cincinnati Enquirer is a democratic paper, and supports Tilden for President. On the 25th of June the Enquirer said: "Tilden as a 'reformer' is good. It would be a difficult matter to find a finer specimen of the human wolf than this remarkable Tammany politician, railroad undertaker and conscienceless attorney."

The Atlanta (Ga.) Commonwealth in one column publishes a poem eulogizing John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, and in the next column an editorial urging the election of Tilden.

All the democratic candidates for State offices in South Carolina were officers in the rebel army, and the local democratic papers are publishing their war records as evidence that they should be elected. Of one it is said "his was a military career of which any Carolinian might be proud," as he participated in Gen. Jackson's movement "hurling McClellan's advance forces back into Maryland." It is to be hoped the republicans will not attempt to revive the animosities of the war, which the democracy North and South are so earnestly striving to bury.

Alluding to the republican candidate for the Presidency, Mr. Dorsheimer in his Boston speech said: "Mr. Hayes, or Col. Hayes, or Major Hayes, or Capt. Hayes, or Corporal Hayes—he held some rank, of which the country is not fully informed, during the late war!" How many votes for Tilden will such talk win.

The St. Paul Dispatch, said to have been the only democratic "organ" in Minnesota, has astonished its old-time readers by presenting at the head of its columns portraits of Hayes and Wheeler, followed by the announcement that it would heartily support them for President and Vice President of the United States.

Perhaps the best answer to the stories that Hon. Carl Schurz has withdrawn or been withdrawn from the canvass is the fact that he will address republican meetings in Ohio every day this week, as follows: Steubenville, Monday; Bellair, Tuesday; Zanesville, Wednesday; Marietta, Thursday; Portsmouth, Friday; Chillicothe, Saturday.

The Rochester Chronicle wickedly asserts that "an express train in Michigan recently ran over a democratic convention. The convention was intoxicated and lying on the track."

The latest reports concerning the "great negro riot" in Aiken county, S. C., are that thirty negroes and two white men were killed, another account stating that nearly one hundred negroes and no whites were killed. The rifle clubs were from Aiken and Barnwell counties, S. C., and Columbia county, Ga. Mr. Tilden announced that this was to be "an aggressive campaign" on the part of the democrats, and it really does seem very like one, down South.

New Hampshire Items.

The Dartmouth students have appointed a committee of five to make application to the Attorney-General and County Solicitor for an entering of nolle prosequi in the "Parker riot" case. As both students and the prosecuting party are willing to take all honorable means for a settlement of the matter, it will probably be amicably decided.

There is no change of affairs between the striking workmen and the contractors for building the Manchester and Keene Railroad. The Keene city authorities sent provisions to the men. Cumming's men, many of whom are Italians, are about the streets, and perfectly quiet and orderly. One Flannery, arrested as one of the rioters, was tried, Saturday, but the evidence was not strong enough to convict him, and he was liberated.

Mark W. Fuller of Hillsboro Upper Village hung himself Saturday. He was sixty-five years of age, in good circumstances, and leaves a wife. He had been ill some time and was probably temporarily insane.

—A Vermont man, one Sunday morning after a breakfast of fishballs, repaired to his garden and did a two hours' hoeing, his meditations being suddenly broken by the voice of his wife: "Don't you know 'tis Sunday? Come into the house and get ready for church!" "This comes from having no beans for breakfast," he muttered, as he sneaked into the back door.

—"How much will your new school books cost, Johnny?" says father. Johnny calculates for himself sotto voce: "Lemme see: 62 cents for the singing book, 75 cents for a new 'rithmetic, $1.25 for a new jography, 25 cents for a hockey, half a dollar for a new bat, and a quarter for candy;" then out loud says, "'Bout four dollars, pa!"

—A writer in Blackwood's Magazine says that the moon has no more effect on the weather than red herrings have on the government of Switzerland.

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and it is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

JOTTINGS.

A meeting of the Hayes and Wheeler Guards is called for this evening at half-past seven o'clock, at which a full and prompt attendance is requested.

James P. Bartlett, Esq., was on Monday evening elected a member of the High School Committee.

Saturday night the house of Benjamin Canney, on Jackson street, was broken into and clothing and other articles stolen. Some underclothing left out in Mr. John Morrison's yard, adjoining, was also taken.

Duprez & Benedict's Minstrels at the Temple this evening, with twenty performers, including four noted "end men," Billy West, Geo. Edwards, Joseph Fox and William Ward. A generous and varied programme is offered, and all who enjoy a first-class variety entertainment had better go to the Temple to-night.

The session of the Supreme Court which convenes in this city October 17, Chief Justice Doe presiding, will probably occupy two months.

A Centennial special train from Bangor to Boston passed through this city Monday afternoon, with three Pullman and seven passenger cars bound via Fall River for the Centennial. Fare for round trip, $13. There were three hundred passengers in the train, which was run as an express train between Bangor and Boston over the Eastern and Maine Central roads.

We have received No. 1, volume 1, of Faith's Way, the "organ of the Portsmouth Mission Work and Faith Home." It is issued (for the present) from the Journal press, Mr. S. Adams Wiggin acting as editor; and is intended in a special manner to preserve a record of mission labor and all matters of interest connected with the Faith Home for old ladies. A full account of all articles contributed for general distribution or use at the Home will be given in the next issue, and a full account of all cash received, for the year ending September 14th.

THE "FAITH HOME."

Eds. Chronicle: A mistaken idea is in circulation with reference to the terms of admittance to "Faith Home for Aged Ladies." I would say that we are ready to receive, shortly, those persons who have no money or near relation to provide for them, or are not otherwise cared for, provided the applicants are of good character and of general good health. This of course does not exclude those who may have means and desire to aid as far as they may be able. The work is purely a faith work, and we rely upon the bounty of our rich Heavenly Father for our needed supplies, and He uses men as the means of carrying on His work and has promised to be a husband to the widow. Further particulars will be stated in due season.

W. A. LOYNE, Act'g Missionary.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, September 25, before Batchelder, Justice:

William Quinn (not the regular William Quinn, but another one,) was charged with an assault on Charles Walker, a saloon keeper. The complainant was not present, and the stories told on either side contradicted each other so flatly that the Court could not tell which contained the least truth, so William was discharged. This was the only business before the Court.

A QUIET CANVASS.

The Boston Journal says: "In no State at the North is the canvass being so quietly conducted as in Masachusetts." If it is any more quiet than the New Hampshire canvass is just now, at least in this section of of the State, it is quiet enough. Concerning this the Manchester Mirror says:

"New Hampshire's share of the work in the present campaign was handsomely and effectively done last Spring, and there is little to do this Fall. The vote of our State is conceded to Hayes and Wheeler on all hands. We may, therefore, well possess our souls in patience and escape the wear and worry of a hot campaign for at least three weeks longer. Still it is well to formally open the canvass and give a promise of what we can do whenever it is necessary."

The fact is that both parties in this State are resting on their oars after the exhausting struggle of last Spring. The democrats see little use in trying to carry the State for Tilden, and it is safe to say they will make no serious attempts in that direction unless Ohio and Indiana should both go democratic in October; and the republicans, so long as the democratic canvass drags along heavily, don't seem to care much about trying to enliven things, apparently regarding it as useless. And this we presume will be the case until after the October elections, neither party caring to force the fighting until then; after that time there will be some difference, but unless those elections are unexpectedly favorable to the Tildenites the whole campaign bids fair to be terribly tame for New Hampshire.

The democratic managers proposed to have a grand mass meeting in Concord on the occasion of the assembling of their Electoral Convention, but so little interest was manifested by the mass of the party that they gave it up; and though the republican mass meeting and torch-light procession in Concord on the day the republican Electoral Convention met was a great success, there is no doubt that a desire to see and hear Hon. James G. Blaine and George William Curtis drew thousands to the city, and that the enthusiasm aroused by their stirring speeches and the minor accessories of the gathering have not sufficed to start the republican masses to the attack with their accustomed vim. That such a quiet canvass is favorable to the democracy is admitted; a "still hunt" has carried the State for that party, and astonished the republicans before this; and a "still hunt" conducted by himself is what Tilden hopes to win by—if indeed he has any hope of winning. The democratic managers in every town and city in the State (as in all the States) have been furnished with blanks from Tilden's central bureau in New York city, and instructed to furnish all political statistics from their respective districts,—how many voters are sure for each side and how many are doubtful, and especially to keep the central bureau constantly posted as to what changes may occur. "There is, of course, an important object to be attained" by all this, as there was when Tilden sent out his famous circular (from which we quote) which resulted in giving the electoral vote of New York to Horatio Seymour, and putting Tweed, Sweeney, Connolley, Hall and Hoffman in full control of the treasury of New York city, in spite of an adverse republican majority of thirty thousand.

It therefore behooves the republicans of this part of New Hampshire not to rely with too much confidence on the seeming apathy of the democracy, as in case of a democratic victory in the West it would be quite possible to let the election go by default. That the two democratic clubs in this city are apparently asleep is no reason why the republican club should go to sleep too; and if the democrats affect a "still hunt," in which they excel, it won't do for the republicans to try the same tactics, in which they have always been beaten. But we presume both parties will continue their slumbers until after Ohio and Indiana have voted; then, should both of those States go republican, we shall have a little more life—but not much more—in our State campaign; should both those States go democratic the remainder of the campaign will be lively enough to suit the most fastidious.

Nicely Timed.

Lord Albemarle, whose "Recollections" have just been published, was in his youth a playfellow of the Princess Charlotte. On one winter day his grandmother proposed to take him to the play, of which he was very fond. "I told the Princess," he says, "of the pleasure I had in prospect, and of my readiness to incur the almost inevitable penalty attached to that pleasure—a good flogging the following morning. From this, as I told Her Royal Highness, there was no escape, for how was it possible after the play and a good supper to be in time for the eight o'clock morning school? "Leave that to me," said the Princess, and forthwith penned a letter to Dr. Page, taking upon herself the blame for my anticipated non-appearance. The morning after the play I came into school half an hour late, and was "shown up" as a matter of course. With a deprecatory "Please, Sir" I presented my royal credentials. The doctor glanced at the seal and the hieroglyphic "Charlotte" on the envelope, and then dropped the letter into the pocket of his gown that his hand might be free to grasp the rod. His next proceeding was to perform that part of his duty which always seemed a pleasure. That done, he read the letter to the whole form, and added how glad he was that he had not opened it sooner, for he would have been under the painful necessity of disobeying her Royal Highness' commands.

COOKED
CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

A Large Monument.

Probably the largest sized private monument that has been cut in New England left the Glen quarry, Mason, N. H., last week. It is intended to be placed in the family lot of the late Dr. D. B. Packard, one of the merchant princes of Winstrup, Penn., at Greenville in that State. It is in obelisk form, having an under base ten feet square and two feet six inches high, in one solid block. Over this are placed proportionately large moulded bases and then the die stone with the family inscriptions—a solid block six feet six inches square, eight feet high and weighing twenty-five tons. Over the die is placed a moulded cap, the panels of which are ornamented with carved oak and ivy leaves. The whole is capped by an obelisk thirty feet high, four feet square at the base, tapering to two feet at the top and broken up by heavy bead mouldings. The material used is the beautiful white granite of the Glen quarry, from which already many well-known soldiers' monuments have been erected. Amongst these are the Cambridge, Mass., and Salisbury, N. C., monuments. There is also being cut at the same place one of the finest carved monuments yet executed in granite, intended for Harper Brothers, the celebrated firm of publishers, after a design by J. C. Cody of New York.—Globe.

—A young lady teaching in town had a call from her cousin while the first class was reciting. She framed two questions in her mind, one for her visitor, and one for the class. With a geography poised, in a ventriloquous tone and with immovable countenance, she whispered to the young man: "What is an isthmus?" and in the clear tones of the school-room, to the astonished class: "How is your mother?" Then the boys were let out for half an hour to pull thistles in the school-house yard.—Oxford (Me.) Register.

—A man falls on the street in a fit. As the doctor hastens up a bystander exclaims: "Oh, if he had only come sooner!" But the doctor looks up from the fallen man and remarks: "He is dead! I myself could have done nothing more."

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.
THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
IN THE
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.
Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.
The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Liepenard and for a number of years his affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 2½ years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.
Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.
LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.
YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.
Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.
TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.
DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.
Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

DR. QUAIN'S
MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
Is the ultima thule o) Medical Discovery.
No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:
Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.
WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1
MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.
Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.
WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875
MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and write you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.
Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.
WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.
MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.
JOHN W. LORD.
Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."
EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, and was worse in cold weather. A month ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.
Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.
Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.
DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.
MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to my address, Mrs. Laura Lane, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.
Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.
LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend them to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.
MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Shooting Without a License.

Some unlicensed sportsman has been poaching on the democratic preserve in the parish of Ouachita. The energetic gamekeeper of the White League and Rifle Club Game Preserving Association of that parish informed the public yesterday, by means of the Associated Press, that on Saturday night last "three freedmen" (under ordinary circumstances they would be called "niggers") were shot and wounded six miles from Monroe by "an entire stranger from Texas, who was very drunk at the time of the shooting." From the tenor of the dispatch it would seem that this irregular sportsman had no direct or indirect authority from the democratic State Central Committee to "use the means at our disposal for carrying the election." He does not even appear to have observed any of the proprieties incident to such an occasion. He was not disguised, except in liquor. He had no false whiskers, no peculiar colored pony. According to the press account he was ingloriously returning to Texas in a wagon. Worst of all, he did not even bring down his game, but left all three of them simply wounded, and fully able to narrate to the deputy United States marshal and the commanding officer of the United States troops recently dispatched to Monroe in what cowardly fashion their lives had been attempted. Need we wonder that, recording to the Associated Press agent, "Great indignation was felt by all classes of the people in Monroe," and the blundering undisguised stranger was promptly arrested and lodged in jail.

It is edifying to read on the same authority, how the democratic rifle clubs of the parish promptly joined in the pursuit of this unauthorized and unsuccessful marksman, and rejoiced in his capture. Only prejudiced people will seek to detract from the glory thus earned by the rifle clubs of Ouachita by recalling the fact that when Dr. Dinkgrave, the life and soul of the republican party in that parish, was murdered in open daylight a few days since by an assassin whose tracks terminated barely three miles from town, and whose face, divested of false whiskers, is said to have been recognized by more than one prominent citizen, these same rifle clubs being called upon to assist in his arrest replied that "they were home guards, not deputy sheriffs," and refused to budge an inch.

The Associated Press devotes nearly three hundred words of telegraphing to record the arrest of one drunken Texas loafer who killed nobody. A few days previously when several unoffending colored citizens of Ouachita were barbarously slaughtered near the Morehouse parish line the Associated Press vouchsafed no mention of the affair, the only public notice taken of the occurrence being contained in the following characteristic special from Monroe to the New Orleans Bulletin:

"The emeute near the Ouachita line was quelled by the killing of one negro and the wounding of several others. Our citizens acted as a posse under the sheriff of the parish. All quiet to-night."

From all of which it appears that though the democratic campaign shooting season has commenced, and though niggers and white republicans are fair game wherever found, sportsmen must be properly disguised and properly licensed and must not shoot within easy reach of deputy United States marshals and United States troops unless they are dead shots and can make sure of their game.—N. O. Republican.

A Campaign Catechism.

Supposing all those who are opposed to the public school system should vote next November, and none other, who would be elected? Supposing that no one could vote whose name had not been on the muster roll of the Confederate States army, who would be elected? Supposing it was left to the Knights of the Golden Circle, the Order of Ku-Klux or the Sons of Liberty to determine, who would be elected? Supposing the New York rioters of 1863 (who stopped the draft, burned a negro asylum, hung negroes and loyal men to lamp-posts or dashed their brains out on the pavement) had the say, who would be elected? Supposing the owners of the hundreds of millions of dollars of Confederate claims could choose, who would be elected? Supposing that only the men who flung up their caps at the news of Lincoln's assassination could vote, who whould be elected? Supposing a majority of the men who were imprisoned for inciting resistance to the draft and a prosecution of the war, or giving aid and encouragement to the Confederacy, could decide, who would be elected? Supposing those men who still believe that slavery is a divine institution, that the Three Amendments are unconstitutional—and who would repeal them if they should get the power—should choose, who would be elected? Supposing those who still adhere to the doctrine of State Sovereignty and who still think a State has a right to secede, should vote, and none others, who would be elected? Tilden and Hendricks.

If circumstances could give William M. Tweed as much power in the coming election as he used to hold in New York, who would be elected? If his successor, Boss Kelly, could stuff all the ballot boxes in the country, who would be elected? If Jefferson Davis and Bob Toombs had the deciding vote, who would be elected? If Wirtz, the jailor of Andersonville, was not hung, and if Wilkes Booth was alive, who would they vote for? If John Morrissey could manipulate ballot boxes as well as he can faro boxes, who would be elected? If Jake Thompson, who stole over a million dollars from the national treasury, had his say, who would be elected? Who will Bashi Bazouk Butler, and every one of his followers in the Hamburg massacre, vote for? Who would Peter B. Sweeney and Dick Connolly vote for if they could vote? Who will Raphael Semmes vote for? Who will the men who tore down an American flag in Carlisle, Ky., last Fourth of July, vote for? Who will every man who still has the Stars and Bars stowed away in his closet, vote for? Tilden and Hendricks.

If all these classes and men will or would vote for Tilden and Hendricks, is it because they are only thinking of Reform? If so, why is it that the more strongly a class upheld rebellion and slavery the more unanimous it is for Reform? Why is it that Ku-Klux have deeper aspirations for Reform and a keener appreciation of its necessity than the people of the Northern States? Why is it that the whites of the Southern States are so unanimous for Reform and the people of the North so opposed to it? Is it because Secession, and Slavery, and Murder, develop an appreciation and love of Reform, and Freedom and National Devotion deaden it?—Vallejo (Cal.) Chronicle.

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

Powder.

The democratic press are, of course, disposed to pooh-pooh the assertion that the election of the democratic Presidential ticket means the re-establishment of slavery, if not ostensibly, under some specious legal fiction. An instance, which recently came under the notice of a correspondent of the Hartford Courant, writing from Jackson, Miss., indicates how strong is the probability that a general re-enslavement of the colored people might be attempted were the democrats fairly installed in power. A negro was recently arrested upon the charge of gaming, tried before a justice of the peace and sentenced in a small fine and costs. Being unable to raise the amount his services were offered at public auction at so much per month, and he was knocked down to a bidder at $2 per month for two years for the payment of fine and costs. He is to all intent and purposes a slave working to liquidate an illegal fine imposed by a court having no jurisdiction. The correspondent states that, according to his information, in the State of Texas, the course pursued by this Mississippi justice is legalized by statute. "If they do these things in the green tree what shall be done in the dry?"

If the high-toned white Southerner will keep his Derringer in his pocket, we will insure him against any serious inconvenience, physical or political, from the "Federal bayonet."—Springfield Republican.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees remarked in a recent speech; "I say we all alike put down the rebellion." This sounded first-rate till the Indianapolis Journal went prowling about among dead issues and dug up this neat little figure of speech indulged in by the same Mr. Voorhees in 1862: "Every soldier in the Union army ought to be taken to a blacksmith shop and have an iron collar molded around his neck, and have stamped upon it these words: 'My dog. A. Lincoln.'" Mr. Voorhees's way of "putting down" the rebellion was not accepted.

W. D. Simpson said at a Wade Hampton meeting in South Carolina: "The republican party has never been an emancipation party, and has only made use of the negro to ride into office. The negro owed his freedom to God." Exactly, and to God we owe a Union preserved; but the United States army had to do a heap of fighting to make the negro a free man, and to keep Southern democrats from dissolving the Union. Providence works in a mysterious way, and it was necessary to kill a great many rebels.—N. O. Republican.

A very interesting circular is being distributed among the faithful in the South, wherein it is urged that "every Southern State must be carried at all hazards." The following sinister suggestion is made: "It is necessary for the South to organize and keep the carpet-baggers from 'intimidating' the negroes on election day." "But there must be no loose talk beforehand," is another choice admonition.

A republican meeting at Oktobeka, Miss., Saturday evening, was broken up by the democrats. Four negroes were killed and many wounded. Served the black scoundrels right; don't they know better than to irritate the White Line chivalry by conspiring to vote the republican ticket? They will learn by-and-by that the Tilden managers have ordered the South to be carried solid for Tilden and reform "at all hazards," and that there is no power in the Nation to protect its citizens in the exercise of their political and civil rights.

Tommy Flynn is a distinguished advocate of Tilden and "reform," in Bridgeport. He hankers more particularly for "reform" than anything else. His idea, however, of what reform is does not conform to the popular belief. He was the leader of the gang of roughs who marched into Olivet Hall on Friday evening and broke up a Greenback meeting. Flynn was so full of reform that he wouldn't allow any one to speak but himself. He said he "wanted it understood this was a democratic ward, and no one can start a split ticket here." We think Tommy Flynn will have his hands full in keeping the honest voters of Bridgeport from holding meetings in halls they pay for the use of. Already the Bridgeport workingmen have given warning that they propose to take care of such reformers as Tommy Flynn, and we advise the Bridgeport Tildenites to take care of their "promising young reformer," as his followers delight to dub him.—New Haven Union (inf. dem.)

The students at Dartmouth college had a grand rally, with speeches for Hayes and Wheeler, torchlight procession and flag-raising, Monday evening. Their flag poles are seventy feet high.

The republicans of Plymouth had a flag-raising on Monday evening, the crowd being addressed by Congressman Blair and O. C. Moore, Esq.

The Irish World, the most influential Irish paper in the country, is very severe on Mr. Adams, and says every true Irishman will resent the insult which his nomination offers to the whole race. It urges Irishmen everywhere not to vote for Tilden, to whose orders it was due that Mr. Adams was nominated.

The New York Sun states that the Germans of Ohio and Indiana are going solid for Tilden, and that the democrats will carry both these States in October. This is one of the strongest signs that both States will go republican that we have lately noticed.—Worcester Gazette.

New Hampshire Items.

John Stevens, a Manchester man, has been killed by the Indians in the Black Hills.

Gov. Cheney has invited the Amoskeag Veterans to act as his body guard on New Hampshire day at the Centennial.

The barn attached to the house of Cornelius Sweeney, at Milford, was burned Monday. The house was badly damaged. No one is living in the house and the fire was the work of an incendiary; loss $300, fully insured.

Part of the silverware stolen from the residence of General Stark last May, for which one Starkey was sentenced last week to the State Prison, was found in the woods near Nashua on Sunday. It had been chopped up by the burglars.

News and Notes.

The schooner Trade Wind, Captain Gray, from Rockland, Me., Isaac Stillwell pilot, was the first vessel to pass through Hell Gate after the explosion.

Orders have been telegraphed to Captain S. R. Franklin, of the United States Steamer Franklin, to proceed to New York with the prisoner Tweed, instead of going to Hampton Roads, as he was first directed, before it was determined to bring Tweed home on that vessel. Upon the arrival of the Franklin at New York, Tweed will be surrendered to the authorities.

There was quite a row in Lewiston, Me., Saturday night, occasioned by the attempt of a crowd of roughs to prevent the arrest of two of their number. An alarm of fire was raised and the fire department turned out, but the row was finally quelled by the police, who arrested one of the ring-leaders.

There is no need now for the adventurous sportsman to visit India or reformer Morrissey's hell to "fight the tiger." During four nights of last week the farmers in the neighborhood of Hallsport, Burlington county, N. J., were engaged in hunting what they supposed was a sheep-killing dog, and did not discover until Thursday that the animal at which they had been shooting was a monster tiger, probably the one which some weeks ago escaped from Van Amburg's menagerie while exhibiting in South Jersey. After committing various depredations upon the farm of John Smith, near Mount Holly, Smith, a man named Gibbons, with another farmer, Henry Parker, determined to watch. On Wednesday night all three of them were on the lookout, provided with army rifles. Gibbons fired, striking him in the groin, the wound being plainly seen by Parker, near whom he passed as he turned and limped toward the swamp. So rapidly did he go that they were only able to pursue him a short distance. On the following morning he was traced by the blood marks for half a mile into the swamp, where the pursuit ended. The affair has caused great alarm among the farmers of the surrounding country.

Steamer Liberty, from Havana for New York, before reported missing, sank at sea on the 17th. Her crew and passengers were saved by schooner Yellow Pine.

Ship Dandenong, from Melbourne to Sidney, Australia, foundered at sea in a hurricane on the 11th, and sixty lives were lost.

British ship Lammermuir, from Calcutta to Demerara, is missing and is supposed to be lost with all hands on board. She carried three hundred coolies.

Victoria C. Woodhull and Tennie C. Claflin are stopping at the Parker House in Boston. Mrs. Woodhull, or Blood, or whatever her name may now be, is expecting to lecture in the Boston Theatre on Sunday evening.

The three would-be robbers of the Northfield, Minn., bank, who have been killed, have been identified as Charley Pitts, Clel Miller and Bill Chadwick, all members of the infamous James and Younger gangs. The three captured assassins are Cole and Bob Younger and A. Carter, the latter a notorious Texan desperado.

A boy of sixteen years was left in charge of a switch on the Montpelier & Wells River Railroad, Monday afternoon. Result, two trains ran into each other at twenty miles an hour, several persons were badly injured, and one of the engineers fatally hurt.

Better Times at Hand.

On every side, evidences of a better state of business feeling prevail. Our merchants are confident of a good Fall trade, and the fear that the coming Winter will be an exceptionally severe one on our working people is being dispelled by many stable signs of brisk trade this Autumn. Even in New England, where the business depression has been most disastrously felt, quite a number of large mills, silent for many months past, are starting into action and on full time, for the Fall and Winter. In our State, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, some of the furnaces, mills and factories, shut up for over a year, have been reopened, and work has been or will be resumed very shortly. The reason of this is that prices have touched their lowest point and show signs of improvement. Stocks of goods have been reduced to the bare boards, or very near them; the products of the country have been unprecedented; and there is at last some encouragement to resume traffic with a prospect of profit, for that is the great business magnet. If our merchants and manufacturers can now resurrect the old-time commercial confidence, we may look for the dawn of better times very soon.—Scientific American.

The Merrimac Mine.

"An Old Mining Superintendent" writes to the Boston Globe concerning the Merrimac mine, at Newburyport, as follows:

One of the matters which first interested me as an old mining superintendent (and lately of the dividend-paying days of the Eureka) on my arrival home after a fourteen years' absence was the discovery of pay ore in Newburyport, and the question whether the discovery was real or bogus and the mine a staying one or a mere hole in the ground. I found that those who had heard of the discovery two or more years ago and had seen nothing since in the way of success were all of the opinion that the mine had "petered out," while those who had lately been at the mine or had access under ground uniformly pronounced the mine a big thing. Between these two opinions I went to Newburyport, and on giving my name and trade was shown over the works by Mr. C. G. Patterson, the superintendent, and allowed not only to go under ground, but to examine in detail all the drifts, cross-cuts and slopes.

It is rather surprising to me who have seen no better prospects on the Pacific Slope sold to English companies for from one to two hundred thousand pounds, that so little should be known of the bare facts of the Merrimac mine. The gentlemen owning the enterprise have quietly gone to work developing the mine, have sold no stock, have laid no assessments, have asked no credit, have done no speculating, and have yet produced a mine which has not only paid its way, and put up improvements which with us would cost $100,000, but has been opened so that pay work can be seen for fully eighteen months ahead. Very little stoping has as yet been done, the ore having been mostly taken out in pushing the drifts and cross-cuts. The ore consists of a sheet and disseminated patches of argentiferous galena, with some deposits of exceedingly rich gray copper ore. The vein on the surface can be distinctly traced some 1500 feet; underground the drifts have been run east and west about 200, with several cross-cuts, one particularly toward another vein of gray copper ore which on the surface yielded, I am told, assays of $4000 of silver to the ton. The main (or Chipman) shaft is down 250 feet, with levels at 37, 60, 100, 150 and 200 feet respectively. The main stoping has been done from the thirty-seven-foot level upwards, and the work is now progressing on the sixty-foot level. The yield is now averaging some two tons and a half a day of concentrations, this being the net product of perhaps fifteen tons of ore and gangue decked.

Work has much more of a mining look than I expected, for Mr. Patterson, well known for many years as a successful man in Grass Valley, infuses his own spirit into his men, and has moreover a capital mining captain. The mine is working about fifty men, and gradually increasing. I should judge from the looks of the ore-house, where the several hundred bags were waiting shipment to New York, that the mine could be counted on for early profit. In California we should have dividends out of it very speedily, which the cheap labor of the section ought considerably to increase. As far as I could judge, the face of the drifts in the tower levels look better than the upper.

Excuse my trespassing so far on your valuable space, but having found so much incredulity on the subject of mining in New England, I cannot but ask you to advise people to go and see for themselves.

A Texas Duel.

A terrible duel recently took place on the bank of the Brazos River, Texas. A party composed of Walter Turner, Ed. Brown and —— Thompson, from Kauffman county, had been in that locality several days with race-horses. Frank and Lacy Robinson, Taylor Campbell and Wiley Norman, all of Hill county, went to the camp of the Kauffman county men and got into a dispute with them about a pony race, which resulted in a fist fight. The parties agreed to meet the next day and settle the thing in a more satisfactory manner. So at ten o'clock next morning the Hill county men took a stand at the place agreed upon, in readiness for action. They had not waited long when the other party rode toward them. The men were all armed with six-shooters except Turner, who carried a needle carbine. When the parties had approached within twenty yards of each other, Taylor Campbell fired at Turner, and the battle commenced. Turner leaped from his horse and fired three shots with his terrible carbine. The first shot went crashing through Campbell's brain, the second caused the death of Frank Robinson, and the last shot mortally wounded Lacy Robinson; by this time a ball from Thompson's revolver had passed through Norman, a boy aged seventeen years; and all of the Hill county party lay weltering in their blood. Some twenty shots were fired altogether. More than half of the shots were fired by the Hill county party, but strange to say none of the Kauffman county men were in the least hurt. Campbell and Frank Robinson each fired five shots; Norman and Lacy Robinson also fired, but the only damage they did was to kill Turner's horse. The surviving party mounted horses and fled the country. A hundred men started in pursuit. Both the Robinsons leave families. Campbell and Norman were unmarried. The Kauffman county party were all boys, none of them being more than nineteen or twenty years of age.

—The other day, in the Austrian art exhibition in the Memorial Hall, a gentleman was absorbed in the contemplation of Felix's large painting, "Pan and Bacchante," when two ladies from the country thrust themselves in front of him. "Oh! oh!" exclaimed one; "who can they be?" The other answered: "It must be Adam and Eve; they're both so naked!" "Seems to me hardly them," said the first, "but I'll try and find it in the catalogue." After a good deal of search she discovered the number, and cried out: "Why it's a Pan and a Batch'ant!" "I don't see any pan," remarked her companion, "and what is a batchant!" After a pause of bewilderment, the first said, as she turned away, "The name don't seem to fit!"

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and it is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.

PORTSMOUTH & DOVER R. R.

A special meeting of the directors of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad was held at Dover on Tuesday, when it was voted to issue one hundred thousand dollars of new stock, the preference in the taking up of the same to be given to the present stockholders, which means of course the two cities. JOTTINGS.

The Dover Democrat says of Sheriff Kent's lecture before the Dover Reform Club, Sunday evening, that it was "well written, moderate in its tone but clear in its statements, and on the whole a very creditable production."

On Sunday morning one of Portsmouth's staid and respectable young men, a well known merchant tailor and clothing dealer, secured a genuine black eye through a collision between his check-bone and a perfume bottle in the hands of a little daughter. On Monday, while at his place of business, he waited upon an industrious teamster who wished to purchase a pair of gloves, and the discolored optic attracting the latter's attention he exclaimed in tones of genuine sympathy, "Well, you have got a black eye! That's too bad, I declare;" and as he turned away he remarked with all the earnestness of intense indignation, "I wish the devil had all the rum!" As the owner of the black eye probably couldn't tell French brandy from New England rum if he were to try, his friends were considerably amused at the delicately conveyed insinuation.

The Home Missionary Society connected with the North church has voted to furnish one room in the Old Ladies Home.

The first message from Dover to Boston over the new telegraph line was sent on Tuesday. The line will be opened to Portland by the 1st of October.

The thief who entered the residence of Mr. Benjamin Canney, on Jackson street, Saturday evening, got in through a window. The rascal not only stole two coats, which was bad enough, but devoured Mr. Canney's Sunday morning pot of baked beans, which was absolutely intolerable. The same night some person, probably the same hungry rascal that ate Mr. Canney's beans, stole nearly all the grapes and pears in Mr. Ward's garden, close by Mr. Canney's premises.

Experiences With "Furriners."

Some of the scenes which are enacted at the Exhibition on twenty-five cent day are not only interesting as illustrations of the character of the people, but in many cases exceedingly amusing. The old ladies with note-books, who have come hundreds of miles to see "the show," and who are determined not to leave until they have seen everything, continue to excite much merriment by the persistency with which they ask questions. In Machinery Hall yesterday I noticed two of these admirable specimens of Yankee curiosity who were engaged in the apparently hopeless effort of extracting information from a young Frenchwoman, who with the cool and collected manner, and hard, sharp face of her class, was engaged in selling cakes of soap which were being manufactured by a patent machine near at hand. Drawing near, I overheard one of the old ladies ask, "Say, you Miss, what's that soap made of?"

"I not much understand English, madam. You want to buy ze soap, twenty-five cent ze piece," was the reply.

"Oh, no matter about the price; what's it made of?" persisted the old lady.

"Twenty-five cent ze piece," was again the cool answer of the young French woman.

"Don't I tell you never mind the price," cried the old lady, becoming excited, "I want to know what it is made of."

Not in the least affected by this passionate appeal, the self-possessed and what a certain Ohio lady would call "well-managed" young French woman again replied, "Twenty-five cent ze piece."

This was too much for even Yankee patience, and the old lady turned away in disgust, exclaiming to her companion, "I never did have much opinion of them furriners, but the ignorance of that one beats everything."

From Machinery Hall the same old ladies wandered into the Main Building, and here they met with a rebuff which did not tend to improve their opinion of "them furriners." They went into the Italian Department, and, note-book in hand, were busy "putting down" everything that came in their way, when their attention was suddenly attracted by the small case of really beautiful diamonds, emeralds, and rubies, which are displayed by a Genoa house. Rushing up to this, they caught the polite exhibiter by the arm, and, after asking a number of questions, the answers to which were duly "put down," one of them, as if a bright idea had just suggested itself, exclaimed, "Say what does the whole case cost?" The attendant was silent for a moment, and then, with that grand air which people in his position know so well how to assume, he replied: "Madam, sometime a lady ask me what shall be the price for one necklace, or one ring, or one pin, and I can give one answer, but such a very great admiration like yours I have not yet found. It is too great, Madam, and I cannot reply." Then the gentleman from Genoa turned on his heel, leaving the ladies from New England to abuse "them furriners" at leisure. They did so to their heart's content.—Cor. N. Y. Times.

Scene In a Chicago Street-Car.

The car was full of passengers. A loud-mouthed democrat was, as usual, making a nuisance of himself. "What, I should like to know," he exclaimed, swelling up to the size of a small porpoise, "what has Grant done to prove himself a great man? I should like to have somebody tell me!"

An old gentleman, who sat by his side, listening quietly for some time, thereupon tapped the boisterous talker on the shoulder and said: "My friend, I don't know who you are, although it is very plain to see what you are. But I dare say you would give all you are worth, and all you are, if you could have the credit of doing one little act which General Grant did."

"What's that, I should like to know," asked the boisterous talker.

"Why, sir, you would give your head and all your new clothes and all your old clothes if you could have the place in our country's history which General Grant occupies, when he demanded and received the sword of the rebel General Robert E. Lee, at Appomatox, and then gave it back to him and allowed him to retain it. I tell you that was the act of a great man, and you are a mighty small specimen of an American, if you haven't got the sense to appreciate that."

That was all the old gentleman said. He was then quiet—so was the boisterous democrat. He said nothing more—especially after the applause, by the clapping of hands, which greeted the old gentleman's words, by all the passengers in the cars, the ladies included.—Chicago Journal.

—Mother—"Now, Gerty, be a good girl, and give aunt Julia a kiss, and say good night." Gerty—"No, no! If I kiss her she'll box my ears, like she did papa's last night."

COOKED
CORNED BEEF.
Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.
Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.
In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Horford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.
We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.
For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Daily Chronicle.

—A quack doctor advertises to this effect: "Cough while you can, for after you have taken one bottle of my mixture you can't."

—A person who was looking at a house the other day said he couldn't afford to pay so much rent. "Well, look at the neighborhood," replied the woman. "You can borrow flat-irons next door, coffee and tea across the street, flour and sugar on the corner, and there's a big pile of wood belonging to the school house right across the alley!"

—An editor relates how a colored barber made a dead-head of him. He offered him the usual dime for shaving, when the fellow drew himself up with considerable pomposity and said: "I understand dat you is an editor." "Well, what of it?" says we. "We neber charge editors nuffin." "But, my woolly friend," we continued, "there are a good many editors travelling now-a-days, and such liberality on your part would prove a ruinous business." "Oh! neber mind," remarked the barber, "we make it up off de gemmen."

—Mr. John B. Gough has challenged DeWitt Talmage to a high and lofty gesture match for the championship of the United States, each speaker to choose his own subject, and the time for prancing around and carving the startled air limited to forty minutes. We haven't seen Gough in the ri—that is, on the stage, since he froze our young blood and lifted all the hair off our head, twenty years ago, but we will bet our bottom sesterces upon his legs, and if any Talmage man wants to come into the pool, here's his chance.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—Ida Lewis now has the charge of the Lime Rock Lighthouse, and lives there with her mother and her dogs. She has not much regard for the tyrant sex, although she has saved so many from drowning. When complimented upon the walls of her house, which she tinted herself, she said: "The government gives us men to do this, but we'd have to board them, and I'd rather do anything in the world than have men in the lighthouse; I like dogs better." And she patted affectionately an immense Newfoundland, and glanced lovingly at her pet terrier.

ESTABLISHED IN 1833.
THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
— IN THE —
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.
Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER;
DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1825 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—Dr. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking Dr. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 5th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 16, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done, I take pleasure in giving testimony; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, and he was very much discouraged. A short ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. Was benefited him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The improvement here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., JAN. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I am recommending them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend these Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO., Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cunos of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the inter-counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

How the Dog Saved the Melons.

A dog I have purchased has a fine reputation for catching fruit-stealers. Indeed, the old lady of whom I bought him gave me to understand that, from early puppyhood, his chief diet had been the legs of little boys. The number of trousers he had torn in getting at those legs, she said, had kept the principal tailor of her village in business all the year round, and she verily believed he would have starved to death many a time if it hadn't been for that dog.

"What in the world of wonder, Mr. Gray," said my wife, as I entered the house, "have you brought home such a looking dog as that for? Why, it is uglier than your savage literary friend's."

"Well, my dear, what if it be?" I replied. "The dog is a good dog for the purpose I desire, and I don't think you ought to object to him because he isn't quite an Apollo in appearance. He knows a trick or two, and can balance himself on his tail in a surprising manner, and stand on his head with his tail in the air equal to the famous dog which Mother Hubbard possessed. Besides, he's great on rats, and cats, and little boys' legs."

"Great on little boys' legs!" exclaimed my wife, in astonishment, putting up both hands; "why, what do you mean?"

"Mean!" I replied; "why, that I don't mean to lose my melons. Do you think that I intend to be robbed of my melons without getting something back in return?"

"And what do you expect to get back?" she asked.

"Oh, pieces of trousers," I answered, "and, perhaps, pieces of legs."

"Horrible!" she cried; "how can you speak so cruelly!"

"Cruelty, is it?" I asked; "wait a moment. There, do you see that little rascal yonder?" pointing through the open window to a crouching figure that was creeping in the twilight, along a line of currant bushes, leading to the melon bed; "look, now, Gumbo! legs!"

The dog went through the open window like a shot, and the next moment there was a terrific fight going on between my savage literary friend's dog Jack, which I had mistaken for a robber of melons, sneaking along toward them, and my own Gumbo. Before those dogs could be separated they had smashed all the glasses in one of my forcing-beds, knocked down the frames upholding my tomatoes, destroyed my wife's choicest carnations and dahlias, and caused me to break the handles of two hoes and a pitchfork. The conflict lasted fully twenty minutes, and the injuries which both dogs suffered can never be repaired. Jack had his tail bitten off quite short, and the ears of Gumbo were chewed into ribbons. If dogs could use crutches, these two belligerents would each be halting around upon two pairs apiece; but, as it is, they are compelled to lie quietly curled up in separate corners in the barn, eying each other vindictively, until their wounds are healed.

In the mean while the naughty boys of the village run rampant, at night, through the melon-beds of my friend and myself, and, in the daytime, fearfully excite the two dogs by throwing stones at the hospital wherein they are confined.—Barry Gray.

—A few days since the Cincinnati Enquirer published this paragraph: "There came down yesterday on the Dayton Short Line a very remarkable family, on their way to Ellsworth, Kan. David Billington, wife and eight children. The three oldest were born at the same time (triplets), and are six years old. The next two are twins, and five years old; the last three are triplets, and four months old. The latter were in a large sized 'clothes-basket.' The children are all good-looking, and all girls. Mrs. Billington is as bright as a dollar. They have lived for four years in Delaware county, this State."

—The new English eighty-one ton gun throws a bolt three feet eight inches long, and weighing nearly four-fifths of a ton. The shell which it throws weighs 1,656 pounds, and has a bursting charge of thirty pounds of powder. No fuse is used with the shell, as the impact of such an immense mass of iron, moving at a high rate of speed against or through the sides of an armed vessel, will generate heat enough to explode the powder. It is calculated that the bursting of such a mine of destruction between the decks of a hostile vessel will discourage the men who are in her from continuing the engagement.

—The report of the French workingmen's delegation to the Vienna Exposition of 1873, but lately published, predicts that the day will come when professional instruction in the mechanic arts will be far more complete than now, and workingmen will avail themselves of the principle of association both in labor and living. The report also favors free trade, and the compensation of women to an equal extent with men for the same quantity and quality of work.

—Lillie White, who had been reported as attempting to commit suicide, has a card in the Virginia City Chronicle, saying: "While fully realizing the vanities of this world, I am in no hurry for another, as it might be a case of getting out of the frying pan into the fire."

—Miss Braddon is described as a rosy, plump, gentle mannered woman. She probably does not read her own stories of red-handed avengers.

State of New Hampshire.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER,
CONCORD, Sept. 22d, 1876.

His Excellency Person C. Cheney, Governor of this State, will hold a Reception at the New Hampshire State Building on the Centennial Exposition Grounds in Philadelphia, on Thursday, the 12th day of October, from 1 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At the close of the reception an address appropriate to the occasion will be delivered at the same place by Prof. Edwin D. Sanborn, LL. D., of Dartmouth College. An invitation is hereby extended to all citizens of New Hampshire to be present, and all natives of our State residing elsewhere, and to all who are akin to our people and feel an interest in the State, either in the past or present.

All city and town authorities, and the press of the State, are cordially invited to co-operate in making this occasion alike creditable to the State and the constituencies they represent.

By His Excellency's command.

B. F. PRESCOTT,
Secretary of State

The Reform Party.

From the first administration of Washington down to the present time there has always existed a "reform party," the party that lost the election, the party out of office. These reformers are always clamorous; they would sink every other consideration for reform. Reform they must have at any price; but the reform they want is to get into power, to control the machinery of the government. This same party which is now so clamorous for reform, commenced one of their reform movements by firing on Fort Sumter in 1861, and continued this style of reformation until the close of the rebellion, during which time they succeeded in reforming the National debt by increasing it over $2,000,000,000; and now, with the impudence of freebooters, they talk about the people being burdened with taxes, as the result of extravagance in the republican administration,—when every dollar of this increased indebtedness and increased taxation is the result of their attempt to destroy the government. After the surrender of Lee at Appomatox Court House, the southern portion of these reformers crouched and fawned like whipped curs, and were glad to crawl back on any terms; but the government was too lenient with the traitors, and as soon as they found that they were to be restored to their forfeited rights they commenced their swagger and bullying again.

"When the Devil was sick, the Devil a monk would be;
When the Devil got well the devil a monk was he."

The Business Outlook.

The cheering indications of a revival of business continue to come from all quarters. Chicago and Cincinnati papers report the Fall trade of those cities with the country towns as showing a gratifying increase over either of the past three years, and the local retail business is improved in about an equal ratio.

The manufacturers of Fall River, Mass., sold 500,000 pieces of prints during the week ending Sept. 16. They state that they have some difficulty in filling orders at once, and, if the extraordinary demand for this class of goods does not soon cease, they will be compelled to advance the price 1-2 cent per yard. The operators will soon share in the gains of their employers, the Board of Trade of the city having decided to restore to the operatives on Oct. 1, the 10 per cent. reduction in their wages made in August.

The advertising columns of the country newspapers give perhaps as convincing a proof as any that confidence—all that is needed now to start things along, for the crops of the country this year are unprecedented, stocks of manufactured goods are very low, and bottom prices have been reached for labor and everything else—is being rapidly restored. Large firms in the large cities, that years ago used to advertise all over the country but whose names have not been seen in any but city papers since the panic, have within a few weeks again commenced to bid for the country trade in their former style by advertising in the country newspapers.

News and Notes.

The large boarding house belonging to the Camp Meeting Association, at Old Orchard, Me., was burned, with all its contents, Tuesday morning. Loss $5000; insured.

The Raleigh (N. C.) Sentinel says the Blacque Bey whose name appears in connection with the hideous Turkish atrocities in Bulgaria, once figured in this country in very different scenes. In August, 1870, a concert was given at the old Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs for the benefit of the little Episcopal Church at Lexington, Va., in which General Lee worshipped. The soprano singer was a lady from Brooklyn; the alto, Miss Maria Hunt of Lexington, Ky., a cousin of the famous raider, John Morgan; the basso, a gentleman from Savannah, Ga.; and the tenor was Blacque Bey, then representative of the Turkish Government at Washington. The concert put $800 in the pocket of the church.

John Crennor, a boy of 15, was shot dead while sick in bed on Sunday night, at Parsonsfield, Me., either by himself or by a still younger boy named Charles Patch, who was watching with him.

A tramp calling himself Charles Pine has been arrested, and identified as the murderer of Mr. M. B. Richardson at Amherst, Mass., last winter.

The reported burial alive of Capt. Samuel Lester, at Shelter island, Conn., recently reported, turns out to have been a case of "three black crows." The story had but a trifle to start on, but increased every time it was re-told until it became a very horror. It now turns out that the body was prepared for burial in such a way that the man could not have lived through it had he been alive and well when the preparations were commenced.

The least depth of water at high tide, over the spot where Hallett's reef once was, is nineteen feet, six inches. The passage of the big steamer Providence over the former site of the reef was accidental, she having been swept over it by a change in the current caused by the removal of the reef.

Mrs. Woodhull is refused the use of a hall or theatre in Boston to speak in. The lecture she will not give there is entitled "The human body the temple of God." The people of Boston seem to be afraid to hear the woman speak.

New Hampshire Items.

A new and improved cider press, to be run by horse power, with capacity for grinding and pressing one hundred bushels per hour, has been set up on the premises of Hon. Warren Brown at Hampton Falls. By the use of steam it will accomplish eight times as much. A cider maker in that town has purchased 2000 bushels of apples for ten cents a bushel.

Mr. Odlin Sleeper, of Bridgewater, is missing, and is supposed to have been robbed and murdered during a visit to the Centennial.

W. P. Manahan's bedstead shop at Hillsboro' bridge was burned on the 26th.

John Buxton's store and some goods owned by a Mrs. Rogers were burned at South Weare on the 26th. The total loss is estimated at about $3000; insurance not known.

Political.

Gen. L. M. Thayer, of New York, a life-long democrat, has come out in a long letter in which he denounces Tilden as a fraud.

Hon. Lafayette S. Foster, of Connecticut, for some years past a prominent liberal, is out for Hayes and Wheeler.

The Boston Post having announced that Rev. E. E. Hale would vote for Charles Francis Adams, Mr. Hale writes that paper that he voted for Mr. Rice last year and intends to this year if he lives.

The Boston Post speaks of the leading Irish journal of the country as "the scurrilous Irish World." The latter paper opposes Charles Francis Adams, rightfully or wrongfully charging him with neglecting his duty towards those Fenians who, being American citizens, were executed in England for participating in the Fenian rebellion; and it opposes Tilden, asserting that his order to the Massachusetts democrats to nominate Mr. Adams was an outrage on all Irish democrats. That's what makes the Irish World a "scurrilous" sheet in the Post's estimation.

"Hard times" has been a potent war-cry for the democrats, the demagogues of that party asserting that the republican party was solely responsible for the business depression, and proclaiming loud and long that there could never be any improvement until the Tilden-Tammany-Morrissey reform party was put in charge of the National treasury. To these precious reformers the very evident revival of trade is terribly displeasing, as they would welcome any financial disaster to the country and any suffering among the working classes that would tend to aid a democratic restoration to power. Hence the democratic papers generally ignore the evidences that better times are close at hand, and still do all they can to put such better times off as long as possible, by keeping up a wail about the total ruin of the country. Now, as in 1861, their partisanship is far ahead of their patriotism.

The Herald does not mention the fact, which is a fact, however, that among the losses of the Messrs. Tilden was a cargo of medicines, captured while attempting to run the blockade into a Southern port, during the war, and confiscated by the United States Government. The Tildens afterward sued General Ben Butler personally for the capture and confiscation, and Governor S. J. Tilden was attorney against Butler and the Government to recover pay for the lost medicines of his brothers. The Tildens were beaten.—Bennington (Vt.) Banner.

The New York Sun opened itself to a centre shot when it remarked that the Brooklyn Argus is opposed to the democratic nominees "because Governor Tilden had not seen the proprietor of that paper." The only inference which it is safe to draw from this is that the proprietor of the Sun has been "seen" by Mr. Tilden.—Boston Journal.

—As the season of parties and balls approaches boys begin to feel gal-lant and girls buoy-ant.

Longevity of Bridge-Repairers.

The out-door labor of bridge-repairing is found to be more conducive to longevity than even reporting or writing articles for campaign newspapers. The persons appointed to make repairs when the bridge was first built, were, it is said, quite old men at the time; it is doubtful whether they have all even yet passed over the river more mystic than the Mystic. To the eye of the rapid traveller, no change is noticeable—there are the same venerable forms, the same snowy locks and beards, whose possessors more than thirty years ago he saw toiling in the "bays" (so they denominate certain numbered sections of the bridge.) They are always at their posts,—or their planks or their rails. A story is told that a worthy colporteur once accosted the pontifex maximus just as he had finished driving a nail: "Does it never occur to you that the time cannot be far distant when you will have driven your last nail?" "Never! Jim, bring me that other hammer." "Can't you stop work long enough to consider so important a matter as driving your last nail?" "No, sir! to pray and worship is to know one's work and to do it; and if I drive my last nail as well as the rest, I shall have nothing to repent of. Pass me the axe." "Your remark is epigrammatic; your frame of mind self-righteous, and therefore dangerous; but remember that when your last nail has been driven, there will be other nails to drive—the nails of your coffin." "That shows how little you know; I have made mine already, and it is fastened with screws!" Failing to make the impression he had laudably intended to produce, the colporteur hove a sigh and a tract, and thoughtfully departed. Should this meet the eye of the centenarian pontifex, let him understand that we have no sympathy with careless levity; that we hope he will not presume too much on the wholesomeness of his calling; for, even if confident of attaining the age of the patriarchs, preparations for the future should not be delayed.—Dr. Digg, in Chelsea Public.

Old Time Politics in Litchfield, Conn.

About the year 1800, as the local historian tells us, the hostility of the federalists and the democrats waxed exceedingly bitter, and continued thus for many years. "Prominent men living in the same neighborhood refused to recognize each other when they met; federalist ladies refused to call upon their democratic neighbors, and the children of federalists were forbidden to associate with those of the hated democrats." Parson Champion, the pastor of the Congregational Church, an earnest federalist, caused a division in his congregation by his partisan pulpit utterances. On one occasion it is related, after a fervent prayer for the President of the United States (John Adams), he added: "And, O Lord, wilt thou bestow upon the Vice President (Jefferson) a double portion of thy grace, for thou knowest he needs it;" Jefferson being then regarded by all Litchfield federalists as a kind of agent of the adversary. During a democratic mass convention an aggressive tavern keeper announced in a bold placard on his door, "No democrats entertained here." About this time, too, we learn how Osborn, a rather unscrupulous democratic editor—a sort of democratic John Wilkes—got into jail for libel, and refusing all terms of release, quickly became an idolized martyr of his party; how a democratic committee of investigation reported for political effect that he had been visited in prison with unheard-of cruelties; how his name thus became a democratic watchword in the State and nation, and how while he was in prison a vast mass convention of his party was held in Litchfield, and passed in procession before the prisoner's window with heads uncovered, giving the martyr, as they went by, a respectful and sympathetic salute. —Letter to N. Y. Post.

—There is a fellow in New York who invariably gets a seat in a crowded street car by carrying an old lobster can, which he deposits with extreme tenderness beneath the legs of the most timid-looking passenger, begging him not to move his feet around much, for there is enough nitro-glycerine in that can to blow up a thousand such cars. The passengers who don't happen to sit in the corner seats generally get through the window, so that, before throwing the can away, the man has a choice of seats on both sides, with the privilege, as far as the conductor is concerned, of putting both cushions on one side and lying down with his feet cocked up on the indicator. Another pleasant and efficient method is to label a small valise "Savannah," and carry it with the labelled side out, assuming meanwhile a distorted expression of countenance, as though the symptoms were approaching a crisis. This plan is rather more genteel than the oyster-can method and operates with equal suddenness.

—The Boston Sunday Courier says: "A thrifty citizen who effected insurance on the life of his wife to the amount of $10,000, the other day took home a box of little red Maryland plums and enjoyed a whole evening in watching his wife eat them. His enterprise had its reward. Deducting $298 for funeral expenses he is now $9,702 richer than he was a week ago."

—Charles Francis Adams is the gentleman who so impressed the little girl known to history. Mr. Adams visited the child's mother, it will be remembered. The little one was so afraid that she hid under the table. When Mr. Adams had departed she went up to her mother and asked in a voice heavy with awe, "Ma, was that Dod?"—Rochester Democrat.

—A Londoner having read in a Boston paper an advertisement headed "American Steam Safe Company," remarked that he was glad if the Americans had made steam safe company.

—Wendell Phillips has two new lectures—one on finance and one on the Indians—the latter being the least objectionable.—N. Y. Herald.

—"There won't be any Thanksgiving this year unless the republicans whip," said an urchin in an interior town to a companion. "Who told you so?" asked the youngster. "The Postmaster. I guess he knows, for he's just back from the Centennial."

—The foreside of a bonnet is now called "face garniture." Oh dear! The bustle will probably now be denominated "posterior upholsterization."—Graphic.

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complains, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The use of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

Spalding's Liquid Glue, always ready to use.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly becoming a general household remedy wherever coughs and lung complaints are known. In it is found a safe, sure, pleasant and speedy cure.

THE INTENSE ITCHING caused by certain diseases of the skin is speedily allayed by GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which entirely removes every species of eruption, is perfectly safe, and far cleaner and more effective than any ointment.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted with special reference to quiet and pleasant accommodations, at small cost.

BRIGHT EYES, REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot. dawtf277

AUTOMATIC BUOYS.

Congress at its last session voted (or was asked to vote) a new-fangled automatic buoy to mark the entrance to Portsmouth harbor, a description of the buoy stating tat it would be operated by the waves, and keep up a screeching whistle proportioned to the agitation of the waters, in times of heavy sea making itself heard a vast distance. An account of how a similar buoy operates in practice is given in a letter from B. J. Willard, a Portland pilot, to the Advertiser of that city, which we reprint, as follows:

"I wish to say a few words in reference to the Whistle Buoy lately placed by the government on Vapor Rock, more commonknown as Old Anthony. On September 11th, at 9 P. M., I passed the buoy with a southwest wind, a six knot breeze, and very little swell. We could hear the whistle from eight to nine miles to the windward of the buoy. On September 14th, coming east, with a light three knot breeze, and thick fog, with but little sea on, the whistle could be heard seven miles from Vapor Rock, at the same time with the steam fog whistle on Cape Elizabeth. I consider this buoy the best ever placed on our coast, and far superior to the costly bell-boat that has been stationed at Aldenis Rock by government. The bell-boats ride so heavily it is impossible to moor them so they will ride long at a time, and in comparatively smooth water they will not ring. The slightest agitation of the whistle buoy causes it to be heard a mile or more. When it is foggy on the coast, we have more or less swell, proving that at those times there is no wind at all. Government has done all possible, in the way of lights and buoys on this coast, and I would suggest these buoys would do good service if one were placed at Boon Island Ledge, off Boon Island, and one on Baritone Ledge, off Dana's Cove Island, the two most dangerous ledges on our coast. They are so located that it is impossible to get cross bearings to enable the mariner to obtain his position. Shipmasters consequently have to run many miles out of their course to be sure and give these dangerous ledges a wide berth by night, and in foggy weather. I think in a few years these buoys will so meet the approbation of all shipmasters, that all dangerous ledges will be provided with them."

We believe the "economical" tendencies of the House finally defeated or postponed the automatic-buoy scheme so far as this port is concerned; but if the contrivance is so effective as Mr. Willard says, such a buoy should at once be placed in position somewhere near the harbor's entrance, say about where Kitt's rock buoy now is. For a shelter harbor in winter the Piscataqua is of the first importance, but in thick and heavy weather there is nothing to guide vessels in, for the bell at Whale's-back is of no more use at such a time than a boiled carrot in a boot-leg would be, as it is impossible to hear it at any distance at all to windward, just where it needs to be heard.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, September 27, before Batchelder, Justice:

Robert Welch, an old offender and graduate from Brentwood, was up for drunkenness. The Court judged that he was drunk about $10 worth this time, and that the labor of proving him so was worth $6.90. At last accounts Mr. Welch had failed to remember in which bank he keeps his deposits.

COURTESY IN POLITICS.

In a recent issue we stated that the political canvass was wonderfully quiet on both sides, not only in this vicinity but all over the State. It seems to be a little more lively in the interior than it is on the seacoast, and in Tilton it is getting quite interesting. There is one democrat in Tilton who would be a tip-top rifle-club captain if he lived in South Carolina or Louisiana. His name is Perkins, and he owns a house. This house is occupied by a republican named Courtland Boynton, who floated a Hayes and Wheeler flag from it. It was no doubt a severe enough trial to Perkins to see the stars and stripes displayed from a house he owned, but when that flag bore the names of Hayes and Wheeler it was too much for democratic human nature to bear; so he ordered Mr. Boynton to haul it down, and on his refusing has served a legal writ of ejectment on him. An offer of $5000 has been made to Mr. Boynton to remain in the house and let Perkins prosecute, but he says he will move into the mill which he is running, if no other house can be obtained.

This incident reminds us of a little occurrence which took place in this city four years ago, in which Hon. Frank Jones was concerned. Mr. Jones is a strong partisan, but (unlike Mr. Perkins, of Tilton,) he is not an ass; and proposing to stretch a Greeley and Brown flag from his office to a house opposite, which he owned but which was occupied by a republican, he very properly asked his tenant if he objected to a rope being fastened to a chimney of the house for that purpose, of course receiving a negative answer. But the tenant's daughter, who did not favor Greeley and Brown by any means, determined to openly assert her political faith; and when Mr. Jones' big flag was displayed, and greeted with the music of a band and lusty cheers, the young lady suddenly ran out from a window of the dwelling a small flag bearing the names of Grant and Wilson. Instead of exhibiting any petty annoyance Mr. Jones enjoyed a hearty laugh, and the crowd, after gallantly cheering the lady and her little flag, moved off to assist at another flag-raising; and from that time until election day the big ensign bearing the name of the democratic candidates, and the little one with the names of the republican candidates floated side by side from the same house.

JOTTINGS.

It is reported that a committee of the Woman's Temperance League will shortly wait upon the city authorities, to urge greater vigilance against the sale of intoxicating drinks on Sundays.

The date fixed for the celebration of the semi-centennial of DeWitt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar is Tuesday, Oct. 3d, and not the 24th as first published.

The republicans of Dover are to have a grand torchlight procession and flag raising, on Thursday evening of next week. The Hayes and Wheeler Guards of this city have been invited to participate in the demonstration, and will act on the invitation next Friday evening.

The field day, to be participated in by the marines from the Navy Yard and local military, takes place on Monday next. There will be a grand review and dress parade in the afternoon. The Governor will be present. We are informed that the review will take place at the Plains, the marines, cavalry, light and heavy artillery and city guards all taking part, the whole to be commanded by the commanding officer of the marines. The affair is to be something like one of the old "general musters" of thirty years ago, with improvements added and the objectionable features left out.

Some thief or thieves effected an entrance into the store of John Stokell & Co., Tuesday evening, by breaking one of the large panes of glass in the front of the store and climbing into the show window, from there getting into the main store. To judge from the variety of articles stolen it may be supposed that the thief is intending to start a shop of his own, or perhaps give a party. Bottled porter, salad oil, flavoring extracts, boxes of cigars, tobacco, sardines, fancy biscuits, nuts, etc., were carried off, and a few dollars in scrip and coppers taken, some silver half and quarter dollars in the same drawer being overlooked. The entire loss, so far as is known, is estimated at about $30.

The Granite State base ball club will go to Hampton, Saturday, Sept. 30th., to play the Winnicummetts; a return game will be played here next week.

Duprez and Benedict's Minstrels had a good audience, Tuesday evening,—an immense audience considering the pouring rain-storm which prevailed. The pit was well occupied and the gallery filled. The show is one of the best of its class, and there is a good deal of fun in the programme. A first-class opera company at the Temple on such a night would not have cleared expenses,—which shows that amusement seekers know what kind of a show they like best, and that where one person enjoys opera a dozen prefer negro minstrelsy. Well, as people go to shows to be pleased we don't know of any reason why they should not go to such as please them most, particularly as they are the ones who have to pay for it. A musical education is necessary to the full appreciation of music of the highest order, while about all that the really "popular" singer needs is a powerful voice, as the average play-goer is not hypercritical about such trifles as purity of tone, rigid adherence to the key, and expression. Opera is the most high-toned, but minstrelsy pays best in this region.

—There is an unaccountable something in the philosophy of hair which causes a man of special and peculiar ideas to wear the hair long; the strong-minded woman, unlike the weak minded man, feels happiest when her hair is short.

—A Boston base ball pitcher refuses to sign articles to play next year, and all kinds o business is very much depressed on account of his action.—Detroit Free Press.

—At Professor Huxley's last lecture a young lady remarked to her escort, "I with Dr. Deemth 'ad anther the Profethor; Huckthley'th too thilly !"

COOKED

CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Had No Fun in Him.

One of the members of the Methodist Conference, recently held here, was out for a walk at an early hour one morning, and while on Howard street he encountered a strapping big fellow, who was drawing a wagon to the blacksmith shop.

"Catch hold here and help me down to the shop with this wagon and I'll buy the whiskey!" called the big fellow.

"I never drink," solemnly replied the good man.

"Well, you can take a cigar."

"I never smoke."

The man dropped the wagon-tongue, looked hard at the member, and asked:

"Don't you chew?"

"No, sir," was the decided reply.

"You must get mighty lonesome," mused the teamster.

"I guess I'm all right—I feel first rate."

"I'll bet you even that I can lay you on your back," remarked the teamster. "Come now, let's warm up a little."

"I never bet."

"Well, let's take each other down for fun, then. You are as big as I am, and I'll give you the under hold."

"I never have fun," solemnly answered the member.

"Well, I'm going to tackle you anyway. Here we go!"

The teamster slid up and endeavored to get a neck hold, but he had only just commenced to fool about when he was lifted clear off the grass and slammed against a tree-box with such force that he gasped half a dozen times before he could get his breath.

"Now you keep away from me!" exclaimed the minister, picking up his cane. "Bust me if I don't!" replied the teamster, as he edged off. "What's the use in lying and saying that you didn't have any fun in you when you're chuck full of it! Blame it! you wanted to break my back, didn't you!"—Detroit Free Press.

—An Illinois girl couldn't secure a certificate as a school teacher because she couldn't tell the committee why the hind wheels of a wagon were the largest. All the answer she had was "'Cause they are."

Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.
The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the institution.
Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.
LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.
YOUNG MEN addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thereby bringing themselves of the miseries of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.
Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—168 pages—full of plates, price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.
TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichol's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.
DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty-six, but as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and terrible hardships. Please send me by return mail another package.
JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS as the best medicine for pain they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be bought of, but he said he would give it all for one box that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.
Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Thirteen Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nervous I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who needed them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule o Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Nov. 26, 1875.
MR. DENNIS SHEA, Sir: The Water Cement Pipe you laid for us over three years ago has proved perfectly satisfactory to us in every respect, and although a part of it froze up last winter, we can't see any injury done. The Pipe was laid by you in a thorough manner, and we believe it to be the Best Water Pipe known, and if we lay any more shall surely lay the same, and you are to do the job if alive and well. Yours, D. CUMMINGS & CO.

Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW," after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes better much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

The Loon.

One of the strong and original strokes of Nature was when she made the loon. It is always refreshing to contemplate a creature so positive and characteristic. He is the great diver and flier under water. The loon is the genus loci of the wild northern lakes, as solitary as they are. Some birds represent the majesty of nature, like the eagles; others 'its cunning, like the crow; others its ferocity, like the hawks; others its sweetness and melody, like the song birds. The loon represents its wildness and solitariness. It is cousin to the beaver.

It has the feathers of a bird and the fur of an animal, and the heart of both. It is in the strictest sense an aquatic fowl. It can barely walk upon the land, and one species at least cannot take flight from the shore. But in the water its feet are more than feet, and its wings are more than wings. It plunges into this denser air, and flies with incredible speed. Its head and beak form a sharp point to its tapering neck.

Its wings are far in front and its legs are equally far in the rear, and its course through the crystal depths is like the speed of an arrow. I had never seen one till last fall, when one appeared on the river in front of my house. I knew instantly it was the loon. Who could not tell the loon a half a mile or more away, though he had never seen one before. The river was like glass, and every movement of the bird as it sported about, broke the surface in ripples, that revealed it far and wide. Presently a boat shot out from shore and went rippling up the surface toward the loon. The creature at once seemed to divine the intentions of the boatman, and sidled off obliquely, keeping a sharp lookout as if to make sure it was pursued. A steamer came down and passed between them, and when the way was again clear the loon was still swimming on the surface. Presently it disappeared under the water, and the boatman pulled sharp and hard. In a few moments the bird re-appeared some rods further on, as if to make an observation. Seeing it was closely pursued and no mistake, it dove quickly and when it came up again had gone many times as far as the boat had in the same space of time. Then it dove again, and distanced its pursuer so easily that he gave over the chase and rested upon his oars. But the bird made a final plunge, and when it came up was over one mile away. Its course must have been, and doubtless was, an actual flight under water, and half as fast as a crow flies in the air. The loon would have delighted the old poets. Its wild, demoniac laughter awakening the echoes on the solitary lakes, and its fierity or hardness was kindred to those robust spirits.—Galaxy.

A Misapprehension.

Many people in Bath have heard of the Knox and Lincoln railroad. Very many Bath people well know the obliging, genial and gentlemanly superintendent of the road. But everybody does not know that, in spite of his manifold excellences in character and conduct, he votes the democratic ticket. Now the railroad aforesaid has one of its termini in the city of Rockland; and in that city it embraces within its lines some land taken from an Irishman's lot. Last spring the superintendent told Pat that he might plant the ground with potatoes, which he did. Tuesday, when the said superintendent arrived in Rockland, Pat met him brimful of happiness and says to him: "Mr. Coombs, you was good to me last spring and so I thought I'd be good to you, and so begorra, yesterday I voted the black republican ticket, just to plaze you." The poor fellow, like many another innocent person, had been deceived by appearances, never dreaming that a decent and pleasant gentleman could do otherwise than vote on the right side. We have not yet heard that Mr. Coombs is to be indicted under the law against bribery of voters.—Bath (Me.) Times.

Feeding Apples to Animals.

In some parts of the country, through heavy crops and hard times, there is little market for apples. They should not be allowed to waste. They may be placed in heaps on the grass, and covered with straw or cornstalks, and will keep till winter; and if the straw is a foot thick, long keepers will remain uninjured till spring. In this condition they are readily accessible for feeding. Properly fed to milch cows, they largely increase both the quantity and quality of the milk. Always begin feeding in small quantities and gradually increase the rations. Large quantities given at the outset, will do more harm than good. Nothing is in more danger of choking a cow than smooth-skinned, round apples. They must, therefore, be either passed through a slicing machine, or cut on the floor with a clean spade, ground sharp. Fed in connection with corn meal, they are excellent for swine. Horses fed on dry hay are benefitted by a few apples. Sheep eat them with avidity. A few in the hen-house are eagerly sought. In all these instances, they do more good than the mere amount of nutriment they contain.—Country Gentleman.

A New Jersey Romance.

On a recent morning Miss Lulu Warner, a daughter of John Warner, formerly proprietor of the American Hotel, Jersey City, took all her clothing from her father's house on Bergen Heights to the house of a girl friend named Annie Carroll, living in the neighborhood, and then returned to her father's house where she spent the night. An elopement had been previously arranged with Charles H. Hamilton, a Paterson newsdealer, her parents having been opposed to the marriage because neither was of age. Two days later Lulu left home, leaving in the corner of the looking-glass in her bedroom a card on which she had written, "I am going away, and after to-day shall be no longer Lulu Warner." Mr. Warner secured the card soon after, and set out in search of his daughter. When the father got track of the party they had taken the train to Philadelphia, proposing to spend their honeymoon at the Centennial.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

The Centennial Awards

To the exhibitors at the great Exposition were announced in the judges' hall on the evening of Sept. 27. A different system of making the awards from anything ever before tried was adopted, and gives universal satisfaction. A uniform bronze medal is given to each successful exhibitor, which, instead of being the award, is simply a token that an award has been made. The real award is the report of the judge, and this is discriminating not only in regard to the degree of merit, but also as to what the merit consists of. The following is a list of the awards to New Hampshire exhibitors:

Marvin Brothers & Bartlett, Portsmouth, cod liver oil.

C. H. Hitchcock and W. P. Blake, Hanover and New Haven, geological maps.

S. C. Torraill & Co., Manchester, Abbe bolt forging machine.

Nashua Iron Company, Nashua, iron, and Siemen's Martin steel forgings.

H. A. Briggs, Shaker Village, washing machines.

J. Cheney, Hopkinton, washing machines.

Great Falls Manufacturing Company, Great Falls, cotton fabrics.

Stark Mills, Manchester, cotton fabrics.

Nashua Company, Nashua, cotton fabrics.

Langdon Manufacturing Company, Manchester, cotton.

Monadnock Mills, Claremont, cotton fabrics.

Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, Manchester, tickings, denims, domestic ginghams, etc.

Manchester Mills, Manchester, printed calicoes.

Eaton & Ayer, Nashua, bobbins, spools and shuttles, and skewers for spinning and weaving.

G. A. V. Smith, Manchester, tubular steel speeder flyers.

Manchester Mills, Manchester, stuff dress goods.

Sawyer Woollen Mills, Dover, fancy cassimeres, suitings, etc.

S. C. Forsaith & Co., Manchester, newspaper folding machine.

News and Notes.

Boss Tweed is on his way home. He was taken from the fortress of Vigo, and under escort of Spanish soldiers was marched through unfrequented streets and put on a boat belonging to the frigate Franklin, and taken on board. The citizens of Vigo are said to be indignant at his surrender to the Americans. Tweed offered very little objection to his removal. He was treated with every consideration, and the quarters of Rear Admiral Carr were assigned to him. Tweed's companion, who gave the name of William Hunt, and who had been a prisoner with him, was taken on board the Franklin, but almost immediately set at liberty and allowed to return ashore. In dress and appearance he looks like a mechanic. Hunt says they were well treated in prison, but refuses to give any account of Tweed's wanderings, and maintains that the man arrested is named Secor.

Divers who have examined the Hallett's Point reef report the rock as completely shattered. The bed of the river was almost even and they found no difficulty in walking. There will be no difficulty in removing the debris.

The war in Servia still drags along, notwithstanding the armistice agreed on between the Servians and Turks. Further Turkish atrocities are reported. A report has reached Vienna to the effect that Russia has warned that a rejection of the terms of peace submitted by the powers will be followed by a declaration of war.

General Braxton Bragg, formerly in the Confederate service, dropped dead in Galveston, Texas, on the 27th. He was about sixty years old, and was much esteemed in social circles. He was a man who firmly believed in the "lost cause," and his reconstruction was a thing of slow growth.

Editorial Pencillings.

AURORA, ILL., Sept. 25.

While the political contest in Illinois partakes of the usual humdrum characteristics which annually illustrate the frequently agitated mind of the American people, our neighbors over in Indiana are passing through a campaign which has been excelled in interest by none in the West since the famous Lincoln-Douglas stumping tour through Illinois in 1858. The sound of the battle reverberates throughout the Union, and although Indiana casts but fifteen electoral votes in November and Ohio twenty-two, the result of the gubernatorial contest in Indiana on the 7th of October absorbs public attention to such a degree as to overshadow completely the Ohio election on the same day. North Carolina gave Horace Greeley's Presidential prospects their death blow in August, 1872, and were Indiana to vote with Ohio in favor of republican principles now, and the Tilden ticket not be withdrawn, Mr. Tilden would be practically out of the Presidential race, and Gov. Hayes would probably receive the electoral vote of all the Northern, Eastern, Western and Pacific States with Florida, Louisiana, North Carolina and West Virginia, a total of 265 of the 369 electoral votes, leaving to Mr. Tilden but 104. With the battle for supremacy would be waged with desperation, in every State. To settle it on the first battle ground, to crush out Tildenism as completely in October as Greeleyism was crushed four years ago, is the aim of the republican campaign in Indiana; and the splendid organization of the party there and the grand assaults multiplying upon the Tilden forces are already having their influence. Confessedly, Indiana is not as likely to vote for Tilden in November as for Blue Jeans Williams in October. The masses of the democracy are for soft money and have no particular friendship for the champion income tax dodger and railroad stock jobber. Their utter defeat in October might lead the regulars to withdraw the Tilden electoral ticket in favor of the Peter Cooper organization, which in a single handed contest with either Hayes or Tilden would without doubt sweep Indiana like a whirlwind. But with Indiana lost to Tilden, the republicans would march irresistibly onward to another

OHIO REPUBLICAN AND INDIANA DEMOCRATIC

NATIONAL VICTORY.

The elements of uncertainty which at this time obscure the vision are the attitude of the Germans and the feeling of a large proportion of republicans in the West for a repeal of the specie resumption act. That superb specimen of political impracticability, Carl Schurz, eminent as an agitator, and restless beyond even self-control, isn't doing the republican cause a vast deal of good just now. It is conceded that the Germans do not follow his lead to any great extent and are largely democratic. Schurz' course has not during the past four years commended him to the confidence or respect of people who admire stability of character and steadiness of course. No more conspicuous failure marks the political field than that of the gifted Ex-Senator from Missouri.

Should the democracy win the October battle in Indiana, Ohio being conceded to the republicans, Mr. Tilden may possibly obtain the electoral votes of New Jersey, California, Connecticut, Indiana, Oregon and Wisconsin, casting forty-nine electoral votes, while the republicans would have an equally good prospect of securing New York, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida, with their fifty-six votes. With the South for Tilden, (except the Carolinas and Florida) assisted by the States of New Jersey, California, Connecticut, Indiana, Oregon and Wisconsin, the democracy would still lack nineteen votes of a sufficient number to elect a President, while Hayes and Wheeler, receiving the electoral votes of Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Vermont, 203 in all, 185 being necessary to elect, would have eighteen more than a majority. This is giving each party nineteen States. The probabilities at this time seem to largely favor the election of Hayes and Wheeler.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. David Abbott, of Fisherville, fell from a tree, while gathering apples, breaking his hip and otherwise seriously injuring him. Mr. Abbott is quite a heavy man, about sixty-five years old, and it is feared that the accident may be a very serious one.

D. Arthur Brown, manufacturer of the celebrated Concord wagon axle, has just received a heavy order for his goods from Buenos Ayres. Samples were seen at the Centennial Exposition, which doubtless led to the order.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Salmon Falls Manufacturing Company, held in Salmon Falls on Sept. 27th, the following gentlemen were elected Directors: Robert M. Mason, Amos A. Lawrence, Jno. A. Burnham, Charles W. Cotting and James Langley of Boston, True M. Ball of Portsmouth. For Treasurer, William G. Means; Clerk, O. S. Brown.

Rev. W. G. Todd, minister of the Unitarian Church at Concord, is about to leave the ministry to engage in literary work.

Mr. L. F. Fortney has been ordained as pastor of the Universalist Church at Enfield.

William C. Pratt of Stratford Hollow had twelve of a flock of seventeen sheep killed on the Grand Trunk Railroad a few days since.

Rev. John Malvern, formerly of Dover, but latterly of Chicago, has accepted a call as pastor of the Freewill Baptist Church in Newmarket.

The annual meeting of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company was held in Dover, Sept. 27. Amos A. Lawrence was elected President; Zymri S. Wallingford, Clerk; Howard Stockton, Treasurer; and A. A. Lawrence, John A. Burnham, J. J. Bowditch, T. Jafferson Coolidge, F. A. Whitwell, John McDuffee and Howard Stockton were chosen Directors. Forty million yards of prints were manufactured the past year. The Treasurer's exhibit, in view of the recent depression in the print market, was considered satisfactory by the stockholders.

Political.

The Chicago Tribune prints statistics showing that the democrats have carried Indiana in six out of the last ten October elections, and says: "Since 1868 Indiana has been a democratic State and if that party carry it on the 10th of October, they will merely hold their own; if they lose it, the republicans will have gained a democratic State. As the canvass now looks to us, Gen. Harrison will be elected governor."

The Charleston, S. C., News (democratic,) heads a telegram with the announcement that the whites in Robbins, S. C., are "in arms in self-defence," and under it we read; "Two Whites Certainly Killed—Hattieville in Danger—Only Twenty-five or Thirty Negroes Killed, so far."

In 1873 there were 130,000 children attending free schools in the State of Texas, ten months in the year. That was under republican rule. The democrats came into power and wiped out the whole free school system, not even allowing counties by local option to support them. Herein behold the true spirit of southern democracy. The debt of Texas increased half a million under the same rule the past year, and complaints are loud against it.

The Army of Officeholders.

The democratic papers are publishing a stereotyped statement of the number of federal officeholders The number is put at 94,119, and the allegation is made that there has been an increase in four years of 37,000. To put this matter in its true light, Senator Cragin, at the late session, secured the passage of a resolution calling on the head of each department of the federal service to report the number of officers employed for the years 1859 to 1875 inclusive. The resolution was complied with, and on the 15th of August Senator Cragin presented in the Senate a detailed report from each head of department. This report settles the question of the number of employees in the entire civil service beyond cavil or question, and it effectually explodes the false and misleading table given in the democratic organs. In 1859 the whole number of officeholders was 36,477; in 1865, 46,088; in 1871, 50,086; in 1873, 59,312; in 1875, 62,172. It will thus be seen that the entire number falls 31,747 below the number paraded in democratic newspapers. This gross misrepresentation is not surprising; for fifty per cent. of fact to fifty per cent of fiction is about the proportion of all their statements about republican administration.

The gradual increase in the number of officeholders is easily explained. The increase is almost entirely in the post office department, the annual average increase in the opening of new post-offices and the establishment of new post-routes being about 3000. The whole number of postmasters in the United States is 36,547, leaving 26,625 other officers in the departments at Washington and throughout the whole of this great country. This constitutes the grand total of that terrible army of federal officeholders which we are so often told by democratic orators and organs is eating up the substance of the people and threatens to rule and ruin the whole country. These democrats do well to be alarmed, but the real cause of their alarm is not the country but the democratic party. Every new post-office opened in the South and West is an outpost of civilization, a distributor of intelligence, a proclaimer of peace and good will, and an irresistible foe to the violence and influence of sham democracy.

A Sleepy Horse's Time.

At Dubuque fair, says the Waverly (Iowa) Republican, a sleepy, poor, homely horse called Lothair was entered in every race. He began by taking the 3:15 race, then the three minute, 2:50, 2:40, and won two heats of the 2:35 race, when the protest was entered that he had a better record than the race he was trotting in. His driver denied the soft impeachment and challenged proof. The judges called him up to the stand and swore him. About this time he had got his wrath up, and swore he would show them a trick worth looking at. In the third heat he let the sleepy horse out and distanced the whole field easily; cutting all others out of the chance of second, third and fourth money. The swearing of the army in Flanders was nothing to be compared to those horsemen who were looped. The air was so hot that Lothair and his driver lit out in the night with several thousand dollars pulled from the greenies who played with him. During the selling of pools the owner bought the field; $2 against $5, and in the end scooped the business. The query is, "Who is Lothair and where did he come from?" Nobody knows further than the owner said he came from Canada. At all events he cut the eye-teeth of the sharpest horsemen in the State, and did it so handsomely that they did not discover it until he had got their money and was gone.

—A Jersey City man has discovered an original method of settling his board bills. He moves with his wife and child into a new boarding-house, runs up a bill as large as the landlady will permit, and then deserts his family. His wife's friends then come forward and pay the bill, in order to relieve her from trouble. When this is done, the husband rejoins his spouse and seeks a new boarding-house. After accomplishing this feat for the third time, its ingenious inventor now finds himself in jail.

—The next great Hell Gate explosion will be on the occasion of the demolition of Flood Rock, or the middle reef, eighty feet from Hallet's Point. Its area is about seven acres, or fully twice the size of Hell Gate reef. The central shaft has already been sunk, and two tunnels excavated. The shafts are 41 feet below mean low water. One tunnel, 110 feet long, leading southwest, another, 81 feet long, leading northeast. It is proposed to get twenty-six feet of water, and to do this it will be necessary to move a reef of rock 900 feet long and 500 feet wide. It will be two years yet, however, ere New York and vicinity will be excited by this mammoth explosion. When it is accomplished the channel will then be 1200 feet wide.

—Now is the time for the advertiser to let the world know that he has goods for sale.

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complains, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

FALSE ECONOMY.

The democrats in Congress, in their eagerness to make political capital by a great show of retrenchment in government expenses, cut down the appropriations in all directions, utterly regardless of whether it was real economy to do so or not. The light-house service came in for its share of this patent democratic economy. For light-houses, beacons and signals, $789,400 was required; $351,200 was allowed. The democratic economists urged that the light-house expenditures for new buildings had increased immensely since 1865, so nearly all items appropriating money for new light-houses, new dwellings for light-keepers, etc., were stricken out of the bill as introduced in the House. The great increase in the expenditures for new buildings is easily explained. When the democrats attempted to destroy the Union, they razed all the light-houses and beacons and removed all the buoys along the entire southern coast; and after the rebellion was put down all those aids to navigations had to be replaced, so that eighty per cent. or more of the expenditures for new light-houses and buoys, for ten years, was expended on that part of the seaboard, the northern coast being comparatively neglected, few new light houses built, and even much needed repairs in many cases not made.

The Isles of Shoals light-station is an example of this neglect of the northern coast, and this false economy. The keepers' dwelling is a very poor thing, and the light-house authorities have for years talked of building a better one, but no decided move was ever made in that direction until this year, when an item of $6000 was inserted in the appropriation bill for that purpose, but was stricken out by the economists. But a new dwelling, though very much needed there, is not essential for the safety of vessels and seamen; another thing earnestly recommended by the light-house authorities, but refused by the democratic House, is of the utmost importance; we allude to a steam fog-signal. Such a signal would certainly have prevented two shipwrecks attended by loss of life, and probably three, within two years. The "Birkmyre" would certainly have had warning from it in time to have hauled off to seaward, at the time she ran upon Duck island in a snow storm, and became a total wreck with the loss of two men; the brig "A. Porter" would not have been shattered on White island ledge and "Lunging" island, with the loss of eight lives, had White island been supplied with such a signal; and it is more than possible that the brig "Hattie Eaton," which sighted Duck island an hour before she dashed on the rocks of Gerrish's island and was totally lost with seven of the crew, would have safely made Portsmouth harbor had a fog-whistle at the shoals enabled her to judge within a mile or two of her true position.

All the new works proposed in this department were estimated for and urged by the Light-house Board, and are indispensable for the safety of our commerce on the ocean and the great lakes. No person doubts their value or that they will be provided for hereafter, though now postponed, probably at the cost of life and property to citizens engaged in commerce, while mechanics and laborers are thus deprived of employment at a time when they most need it, and the work is not done at the time when it could be done at the least cost to the country. For buoys the appropriation was cut down $40,000. In some of our Northern harbors many of the buoys are carried out to sea and lost by the floating ice every spring; this reduction will prevent the replacing of such as are lost in this manner. Who can estimate the loss of life and damage to property that may result?

A FINE HALL.

The members of Kearsarge Engine Co., No. 3, with a degree of pride in their calling as firemen that is worthy of emulation, have just completed the re-furnishing and refitting of their Hall in the engine house on Court street, making it, we believe, far the most elegantly furnished apartment of the kind this side of Boston. The furniture consists of sofas, tete-a-tetes, easy chairs, a large extension easy chair for the presiding officer, marble-top table, a neat writing desk for the clerk, tapestry carpets, lace curtains with lambrequins, etc., all of which are of the latest improved styles. The walls are also filled with beautiful pictures, giving a pleasant effect and indicating the good taste of the boys. A general view of the hall, as one enters it, suggests a sumptuously furnished parlor, such as would be in keeping with the most costly furnished residence in the city. A small ante-room in the rear of the main hall is being fitted with bunks and furnished with bedding. These are to be occupied by members of the company by turns, so that some one will be at the hall ready for duty at any hour of the night. We believe it to be the duty of every citizen to encourage by word and act such an ambition as that evinced by the Kearsarge boys in thus beautifying their place of meeting. Anything that tends to elevate and refine a fire department makes the members just so much more valuable as firemen, and more efficient in their every-day life. It is a matter of boastful pride that the material of our fire department generally is far ahead of that of most cities of the size of Portsmouth, and one must needs travel far ere he will find a more orderly and well-behaved company of young men than that of Kearsarge, No. Three.

POLICE COURT.

Thursday, September 28, before Batchelder, Justice:

James McNeil was the only sinner before the Court at the regular morning session. He is a specimen—and a disreputable specimen at that—of the genuine "vag," or drunken tramp. It was shown that he had been around begging, and at places where he got nothing threatening vengeance—that is, if there were only women there. He managed to raise enough grog to get howling drunk on, Wednesday, and was locked up. The Court, possibly under the impression that a few months' good living at Brentwood is not objected to by fellows of McNeil's stamp, varied his prescription a little by giving Mr. McNeil three months in the county jail. Variety is the spice of life.

JOTTINGS.

Rev. Mason Clayton and wife are in this city, where they will remain for a few days. Mrs. Clayton has met with much success in Maine and the British Provinces, as a preacher and lecturer on temperance. She will speak in the Temple on Sunday evening next, in behalf of the temperance cause; lecture to commence at 8 o'clock.

The following is the new time table of the running of the navy yard ferry steamer Emerald: Leaves yard at 8:30, 9:15, 10, 11:45 A. M., 3, 4 and 5:30 P. M. Returns to yard at 8:50, 9:30, 11 A. M., 12:15, 2, 3:30, 4:30 and 6 P. M. On Wednesdays and Saturdays the steamer makes a special trip from the yard at 7:30 P. M., and returns at 10 P. M. On Sundays the trips will be as follows: From yard at 9:45, 10:15, 11:45 A. M., and 12:30 P. M.; return at 10 and 11:30 A. M., 12 noon, and 12:45 P. M.

The Centennial Exhibition medal has been awarded to Messrs. Marvin Brothers & Bartlett; of this city, for their exhibit of medicinal cod liver oil.

A correspondent writes us as follows, and as the firm he refers to use our columns to advertise their goods we publish his notice of them: "Summer has departed and with it the many visitors who throng the summer resorts. During the season of pleasure and gayety many are the articles of furniture which are destroyed and rendered unfit for future use; and as we look around among the ruins, our minds naturally turn to where we had best go, to replace that which has been wrecked. And again, many new homes will result from this summer campaign of flirting and love; and we would strongly advise both classes of people mentioned to make all haste to inspect the elegant stock of Messrs. Mendum, Whidden & Co., corner of Washington street and Haymarket square, Boston, and select such furniture as will add to their peace of mind and future happiness." That Messrs. Mendum, Whidden & Co. have a very large and well assorted stock of furniture we know, and that they sell it at very reasonable prices; but we doubt their having furniture that will make a man peaceful and happy after he is married.

The Young People's Social Union of the Methodist church at a business meeting on Wednesday evening, voted to have a course of lyceum lectures during the coming winter, and appointed the following-named gentlemen a committee of arrangements: Mayor John H. Broughton, Rev. James Noyes, Dr. Daniel W. Jones, Stephen W. Clark and Lewis B. Marden. It is proposed for $1 to give a course of six lectures, including such lecturers as Beecher, Talmage, Murray, and others of equal note. Should this prove remunerative, they will give a supplementary course immediately after. After the business meeting was over the members of the Union surprised the newly-married pastor and his wife by the presentation of a silver epergne, pickle dish and syrup pitcher, one of the young ladies making the presentation address, to which the pastor responded. The Union then served a bountiful banquet, and the evening up to a reasonably late hour was then spent in social amusements.

Mrs. Clayton, the temperance lecturer, will preach at the Methodist church on Sunday forenoon.

We understand that a large party is to leave this city for Philadelphia to attend the Centennial exposition on Monday, Oct. 9th, having availed themselves of the greatly reduced rates.

—A large Centennial party who visited the White House, the other day, asked to be shown "the kitchen where the President cooks." Upon being told that it was private, a slab-sided, shrill-voiced female exclaimed, "I guess it belongs to the United States, don't it?"

—Chicago gas rates have been reduced to $1 50. Courtships, however, are still conducted with a very exaggerated idea of economy, as the young people put out the lights and sit in the dark every chance they get.—Brooklyn Argus.

COOKED

CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Daily Chronicle.

Historical Research about Fire.

The Revue Scientifique prints a curious paper by Prof. Joly, in which he inquires by whom and when fire was first discovered. Alluding to the fable of Prometheus, he finds it of Indian origin. In the Vedas the god of fire, Agni, (compare with the Latin Ignis,) is concealed in a secret place whence the god Matarishvan forces him out, and makes him communicate the celestial fire to Manou, the first man. The very name of Prometheus is traceable to the Vedas, and calls to mind the process employed by the ancient Brahmins to obtain the sacred fire. For this purpose they used a stick, called pramatha, which they ignited by friction. The prefix pra gives the idea of taking by force, a circumstance which strengthens the evidence afforded by the resemblance of that word to Prometheus. There were several ways for obtaining fire by friction; the most primitive one consisted in rubbing two pieces of dry wood against each other; but this was improved in course of time. A stick was made to slide very fast up and down in a groove; then came the "fire-drill," consisting in a piece of wood having a cavity in which a stick was inserted, which was pressed upon by the operator who at the same time made it turn very fast after the fashion of a wimble. The Brahmins used this drill, but with a cord rolled round it, by pulling which they gave an alternate rotatory motion to the stick. Another mode of obtaining fire was that of striking two flints together. Prof. Joly now arrives at the question as to whether prehistoric man was in possession of fire. The Abbe Bourgeois goes so far as to say that it was known as early as the miocene period, because in the sands of the Orleanais he has found a piece of artificial paste having cinders adhering to it, and lying in the midst of bones of the mastodon and dinotherium. Our author considers the thing not impossible, but not sufficiently proved; nevertheless he is positive that the most ancient quaternary man did use fire; many fire-places with ashes, cinders, half-calcined bones, and fragments of rude pottery having unquestionably been found in caverns pertaining to the period of the reindeer, the bear, and polished stone.

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.
THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
IN THE
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.
Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.
The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, who, for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now dead, transacted the business of the Institution.
Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.
LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.
YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.
Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.
TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.
DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's Celebrated Galvanic Belts.
Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:
Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.
WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1
MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.
Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.
WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875
MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.
Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.
WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.
MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure their aches and pains, and relieve from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.
JOHN W. LORD.
Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."
EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and how highly they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.
Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.
Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.
DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.
MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could not get relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for six or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mills, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Lane, Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.
Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.
LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.
MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious trying climate of New England,
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Going Courting.

One of the chief compensations of a woman's life is found in the fact that she does not have "to go a-courting." It must be confessed that, in these days, the modern belle does her share of the wooing, but she does not have to dress up in a stiff collar, and a pair of boots two sizes too small for her, and walk up to cannon's mouth of her inamorata's family, consisting of father, and mother, and grandmother, and maiden aunt, and half a dozen brothers and sisters, and inquire, in a trembling voice: "Is Miss Arabella at home?"

Whenever a man go-a-courting, everybody seems to know all about it. His demeanor tells the observant spectator the business he is intent upon. He might just as well placard himself with the legend, "I go a-courting." Everybody is cognizant of it, and looks knowing; and asks him if the "northern lights were bright last night about one o'clock," and "how the market is for kerosene up to Daddy Brown's," and a score of other questions equally out of place.

We have in our family, at present, a young man who is deeply, we trust successfully, engaged in going-a-courting; and our warmest sympathies have been aroused for him. When Sunday afternoon arrives it is plain to see that something is about to happen. Our young man is fidgety and uncommunicative, and cannot sit in one place half a minute at a time. He is continually interviewing his watch and comparing it with the old eight day coffin-shaped clock in the corner. He looks in the glass frequently, and draws his forehead locks first back and then forward, and combs them up and pats them down, and is unsatisfied with the effect throughout.

The smell of bay rum and bergamot is painfully apparent. When he shakes out his handkerchief musk is perceptible. His boots shine like mirrors. There is a faint odor of cardamon seeds in his breath when he yawns. He smoothes his budding mustache with affectionate little pats, and feels his invisible side whiskers continually, to make sure they are still there, a fact which is not established to outside observers by the sense of sight. He tries on all his stock of neckties without finding what is just the thing; and he has spasms of brushing his coat, that commence with violence, and last till one grows nervous for fear the broadcloth will never be able to stand it.

He declines soup that day at dinner. He says it is because he doesn't feel hungry, but we know it is because there are onions in it, and onions, as every one knows, do not sweeten one's breath to any great extent.

If spoken to on a sudden, he starts and blushes, and looks as guilty as if he had been caught stealing something, and directly one does not speak to him, he goes back to the delightful occupation of staring at nothing, and waiting for the hour-hand to creep around to seven.

And at seven, he sets forth, clean and tidy from top to toe, looking precisely as if he had just stepped out of a band-box.

Searching for Information.

Miss Dimity knows all about it now. She languished a long time in ignorance, and felt her situation keenly, but at last she is wiser and sadder. She always wanted to talk politics and belong to some party; but how could she, when she did not even know the difference between a democrat and a republican? She looked anxiously through all the papers to gain some information on the subject, but the only plain statements she found were that the democrats are all liars and swindlers, and the republicans all thieves and scoundrels.

Finally she asked her papa about it, and he looked at her over his spectacles and said: "A democrat, my dear child, is—by the way, you left lumps in the heels of my stockings when you darned them last week. Girls nowadays are good for nothing."

Then she asked her big brother, and he said, "That's easy; ask me a harder one. A democrat supports the Government as long as the Government supports him, and a republican lets no guilty man escape until he has crammed all of his pockets and the crown of his hat."

She next asked her sweetheart, but he turned pale, and falling back on his chair, fanned himself furiously while he gasped, "Emeline, my love, I hope you are not getting strong-minded. I could not think of marrying a woman who knows more than I—than other woman."

Next she asked a wise and learned man and he looked pompously at her and said: "Too deep, my dear, too deep; difference in the platforms, very complicated subject, could never explain it to a woman. In fact, it's so deep that I don't exactly under—ah, believe you could understand it."

Then she went to an editor. They always know everything. It is a peculiarity of the profession. They can get up a theory or explanation of or remedy for anything inside of forty-five seconds. She asked him with suffused eyes, if he would please tell her the difference between a democrat and a republican. He looked a little startled at first, stuck his pen into the glue-pot, tumbled a pitcher of ice-water over a pile of exchanges, and was "himself again." He said: "A republican has an office and wants to keep it. He thinks rag money good, hard money better, but either kind good enough. He thinks the country needs reform, salaries are too low, and the people too inquisitive. He cannot buy a $2000 team of horses on a salary of $1500 a year, but some one must ask impertinent questions. His country is dear to him, but he is dearer to his country. A democrat has no office, and wants one. He scorns to ask whether the money is hard or soft; he only gasps, 'How much?' He thinks the country needs reform. He wants change in office and change in his pockets. He holds his country's honor above price, and sells his own to the highest bidder. He—" but Miss Dimity put her hands over her ears and cried:

"Please tell me the name of the other party to which honest men and patriots belong."

Then that editor laughed an inhuman laugh, and said: "Long ago they took a lantern when they wanted to find an honest man; you had better borrow a half a dozen headlights and a garden rake and go and look for that party. However, if you are a true patriot you will work for the republicans, for they all have cottages at Long Branch, and villas in Washington and Paris, and are pretty well supplied with funds, but the democrats have been out a long time, their money is all gone, and their villas are mortgaged. It will be a dreadful strain on the Treasury, and—"

Miss Dimity did not wait for more. And now when any one talks politics in her presence she listens with that benign sadness born of superior wisdom.—Omaha Republican.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

The National Credit Under Democratic Rule.

The statement that the Buchanan Administration borrowed money at 12 per cent. has been challenged repeatedly by democratic speakers and writers. This is sheer folly. The fact that a small loan of $10,000,000 could be obtained only in driblets, and at rates of interest ranging from 7 to 12 per cent. per annum, is a matter of official record, running through several of the annual reports of the Treasury Department. (See Finance Report for 1874, pages 40 and 41.) The authorized loan was for $10,000,000. Of this sum $9,940,700 were raised at the following rates of interest:

	Int. per annum.
$ 284,500 at 7, 9½ and 10½ per cent. Average, 9 per cent.	$ 54,605
3,283,500 at 10¼, 10½, 10¾, and 11 per cent. Average, 10¾ per cent.	344,767
6,272,700 at 11 to 12 per cent. Average, 11 per cent.	731,900
9,940,700 total principal, Average 11 1-6 per cent.	1,110,720

Interest on this loan was stopped in February, 1862, by Secretary Chase, by refunding the principal at lower rates of interest or paying it off.

The contrast: The Government is now funding its debt at 5 and 4 1-2 per cent. and the 4 per cent. funding bonds will be eagerly sought for as soon as the 4 1-2 per centums are disposed of and authority is given to put the 4 per cent. bonds upon the market. The increased strength of the public credit is indicated by the rates of interest paid under republican rule, as compared with those paid by the Buchanan Administration.

News and Notes.

Mr. Boker, the United States Minister to Russia, will resign at the end of the year in consequence of ill health. The climate of the country does not agree with him nor with his wife, who is now at a German watering place by the advice of her physicians.

The schooner R. M. Brockings, which arrived at Portland on Thursday, reports that off Cape Cod, Wednesday, two unknown schooners collided during a gale, and one of them, evidently a collier, sunk in five minutes, it is supposed with all her crew. It is also unknown what became of the other schooner. The collier sunk is supposed to have been the Mary E. Woodhull.

The London Telegraph says that during the last few days the sentinels at Chatham Prison have been strengthened so as to prevent any surprise. The Fenian convicts are carefully watched, and are not allowed to mix with other prisoners. Their actual place of confinement is known only to a few warders.

Schooner John Griffith, from Savannah for York with lumber, has been picked up at sea, water-logged and abandoned.

New Hampshire Items.

Awards were made at the Centennial to the Manchester Board of Education for display of pupils' work, and to Dartmouth College for models, drawings, publications and map.

Diphtheria is prevailing at Hampton Falls. Within a period of four days three children of Alfred and Hannah Wright died with it. The school in the town is closed for the present.

A dry goods peddler, named A. Stillings, stopped at a house in Nashua, Tuesday night, and, Wednesday morning, he found that his cart was broken open and robbed of its entire contents, amounting in value to about $800. No trace of the thieves discovered as yet.

Little Mary Newton's Work.

Very many, especially among the little folks, will enjoy the following description of what little Mary Newton had to do with the Hell Gate explosion. It is from the New York Herald:—

Mr. Striedinger stood near his batteries on the east end of the platform, on his left sat Mrs. Newton, in front was the improvised table on which the key was laid, on the west side of that stood the little girl, and between her and Mrs. Newton stood the General.

"Come, little Mary," said the General to the tiny, blue eyed little three-year old maiden as she stood upon the box with the nurse beside her, "play with this," at the same time placing her hand upon the key. The little girl smiled in her mother's face as she toyed with the silver knob.

"Come, what are you going to do, Mary?" said the General; "you have been talking about it for some time."

The General's eyes nervously watched the river. It was quite free from craft. He looked at his watch.

"Six minutes yet," said Captain Mercur.

"Oh, now," exclaimed the General, "what is the Pleasant Valley coming down here for. I don't understand it," he added, in a tone of vexation. "They had strict orders. They will spoil all."

The boat indicated appeared to be drifting down toward the mine. Her progress ceased in a minute, however, and the General said in a relieved tone, "Oh, well, she is not too near, anyhow."

"There, the white flag is up on the scow," cried Captain Mercur. "Why not fire it now?"

"No," replied the General; "I gave the people notice that I would wait ten minutes after the gun to give them time to get out of their houses, and I will stick to it, though I feel exactly like letting it go!"

"There, the white flag is up again," exclaimed some one. All was breathless silence among the little group, and even the spectators, straining their necks over the fence above, seem to feel the awfulness of the occasion.

"Oh," said Mrs. Newton, "it seems just like waiting for an execution!"

Two men near the battery now closed the switch, and little Mary's hands are kept from the key, for the slightest touch on the delicate silver knob would now precipitate the climax. A few moments more of breathless waiting. Captain Mercur's watch declares the time arrived. Mr. Striedinger's fingers twitch nervously about the wires. Suddenly the white flag is seen moving from the scow. The General says, in a collected and affectionate tone:

"Come, little Mary, touch this key again."

The chubby white little hand of the child approaches the key. Mrs. Newton's eyes are fixed on the little girl with motherly pride, and the General seeing the direction of her look, cries:

"Come, come, look out there toward the blast. You don't want to look here."

The lady's eyes follow the direction indicated, as do those of all within the structure. The child's hand rests innocently upon the key, a slight tremor shakes the earth, followed by a dull, rumbling sound, which seems to travel along the direction of the ledge and to come from an enormous subterranean depth. Ere the senses have fully perceived these, the water over the blast seems to boil for a period not exceeding half a second, and then a column of water 320 feet wide and 75 feet high shoots up from the midst of it. The top of this mass was gleaming white foam, towering up into pinnacles like inverted icicles, while near to the surface of the river the column is darker until near its base it is a dark yellow. In the centre of the mass a monstrous stone weighing many tons twirls around like a spinning top. Half a second after this column rose thus a second one ascends in toward the shore. It evidently comes from the mouth of the shaft, and it rolls in dense black clouds, like smoke. The blackness is the mud from the bottom of the heading. This column rolls over the shore 200 feet inland. Descending it strikes the top of the bombproof and washes off a couple of feet of the earth placed on its roof. In its passage it strikes the little one story office described and washes it five feet away, throwing it partially over on its side. Strange to say, Quigley's plan of opening the windows was successful, for not a single pane of glass is broken! The party gaze in silent awe on the mighty mass of water, until it subsides in a low wave which traverses half the river. Turning toward the party the General says, jocularly:

"That's something like an explosion, gentlemen."

Before the words have left his mouth a spontaneous cheer for the success of the work and of admiration for its director rises from the throats of the assembled thousands and is re-echoed from the other side of the river and from the Astoria shore.

Beauty of German Women.

German girls are often charmingly pretty, with dazzling complexion, abundant beautiful hair, and clear, lovely eyes; but the splendid matron, the sound, healthy, well-developed woman, who has lost no grain of beauty and gained a certain magnificent maturity, such as we see daily with daughters who might well be her younger sisters—of such women the Fatherland has few specimens to show. The "pale, unripened beauties of the North" do not ripen; they fade. "The style is the man," says Buffon; and what style is to literature, taste to dress and refinement to manners, distinction is to beauty. There must be a certain line, certain proportion, a healthy development, a harmony, grace and strength, before we can acknowledge that a greater than the mere passing prettiness of youth, freshness and good looks is there. Polish, Hungarian and Austrian women, whom we, in a generally conclusive way, are apt to class as Germans, are "beautiful exceedingly." But here we come upon another race, or rather such a fusion of other races as may help to contribute to the charming result. Polish ladies have a special, vivid, delicate, spirit-haunting loveliness, with grace, distinction and elegance in their limbs and features that is all their own; you cannot call them fragile, but they are of so fine a fibre and so delicate a coloring that they only just escape that appellation. Of Polish and Hungarian par sang there is little to be found; women of the latter race are of a more robust and substantial build, with dark hair and complexion, fine, flashing eyes, and pronounced type; and who that remembers the women of Vienna will refuse them a first prize. They possess a special beauty of their own—a beauty which is rare in even the loveliest English women; rare indeed, and exceptional everywhere else, a beauty that the artist eye appreciates with a feeling of delight. They have the most delicately articulated joints of any people in the world. The junction of the hand and wrist, of foot and ankle, or the neck with the back and shoulders, is what our neighbor would call "adorable." But, alas, that it should be so; the full, gracious figure—types at once of strength and elegance—the supple, slender waists, the dainty little wrists and hands, become all too soon hopelessly fat from persistent idleness and luxury of the nerveless, unoccupied lives of these graceful ladies.—Frazer's Magazine.

Running in Debt.

I dwell on this point, for I would deter others from entering that place of torment. Half the young men in this country, with many old enough to know better, would go into business—that is, into debt—to-morrow, if they could. Most poor men are so ignorant as to envy the merchant or manufacturer, whose life is an incessant struggle with pecuniary difficulties, who is driven to constant "shinning," and who from month to month barely evades the insolvency which sooner or later overtakes most men in business; so that it has been computed that but one man in twenty of them achieves a pecuniary success. For my own part I would rather be a convict in the State prison, a slave in a rice swamp, than to pass through life under the harrow of debt. Let no man misjudge himself unfortunate, or truly poor, so long as he has the full use of his limbs and faculties, and is substantially free from debt. Hunger, cold, rags, hard work, contempt, suspicion, unjust reproach are disagreeable, but debt is infinitely worse than them all. And if it had pleased God to spare either or all my sons to be the support of my declining years, the lesson which I should most earnestly seek to impress upon them is: "Never run in debt." Avoid pecuniary obligations as you would pestilence or famine. If you have but fifty cents, and can get no more for a week, buy a peck of corn, parch it and live on it, rather than owe a dollar. Of course I know that some men must do business that involves a risk, and must give notes or other obligations, and I do not consider him in debt who can lay his hands directly on the means of paying, at some little sacrifice, all he owes. I speak of real debt—that which involves risk or sacrifice on one side, obligations and dependence on the other—and I say from all such, let every youth humbly pray God to preserve him evermore.—Horace Greeley.

—A little domestic episode in an elephant family enlivened Virginia City, Nevada, recently. A baby elephant connected with a circus strayed away, and, after exploring the town, walked into a Chinese gambling house, and began nosing around for opium, to the consternation of the celestials. As soon as the mother elephant noticed the absence of her child, she broke loose, and, knowing the dissipated habits of the infant, made straight for the gambling den. As the aperture was too small for her entrance, she began to enlarge it to the jeopardy of the edifice. The Chinamen, seeing the cause of the trouble, succeeded in forcing the "baby" within reach of the parent's trunk, and he was jerked out without ceremony. The ways of sin, however, had stronger attractions for the young opium devotee than the virtuous walls of the circus tent; but the old one was equal to the emergency, and, coiling her trunk around his middle, lifted him clear from the ground and marched with him back to the tent.

—Juvenile practical jokers in San Francisco revenge themselves by pasting upon the doors of their enemies' houses signs bearing in large letters the words "beware of small pox."

—"The more I try to put the sugar-bowl lid on quietly, the more she rattles," is what the little boy says when he hears his mother's footsteps on the hall stairs.

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complaints, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

Spalding's Liquid Glue, always ready to use.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly becoming a general household remedy wherever coughs and lung complaints are known. In it is found a safe, sure, pleasant and speedy cure.

THE INTENSE ITCHING caused by certain diseases of the skin is speedily allayed by GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which entirely removes every species of eruption, is perfectly safe, and far cleaner and more effective than any ointment.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted with special reference to quiet and pleasant accommodations, at small cost.

BRIGHT EYES, REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot.

POLICE COURT.

Thursday afternoon Robert Welch, (already under sentence for drunkenness,) was brought up to answer to a charge of breaking into the store of John Stokell & Co He has given contradictory accounts of his whereabouts on the night of the robbery. It was in evidence that at a late hour that night Welch went to the gas-works and borrowed a pipe of a workman, filled it from a bag of tobacco, and left the bag behind him when he went away. Some small biscuits and castane nuts were found on him when he was arrested, and he could give no account as to where he procured them. Messrs. Stokell & Co. had tobacco of the same brand that Welch had, and similar biscuits and nuts, stolen from their store. Welch was held in $500 to appear at the trial term of the Supreme Court in October.

CITY AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday, Sept. 20:

Petition of John T. French to have trees thinned out, petition to have tree-boxes repaired, petition of John F. Shillaber to have tree in High Schoolhouse yard trimmed, petition for raising crosswalk on Pleasant street (at Court), and petition of Mrs. Conn and others were all referred to committee on streets, with power to act.

Resolution appointing agents to examine Portsmouth and Dover Railroad accounts was passed, and Messrs. John R. Reding and Andrew J. Penhallow were appointed for that duty.

John W. Berry was appointed special police officer without pay, at Puddle Dock and vicinity.

Hearing on petition of Newton Thurston and others, for a new highway from Lincoln avenue to Middle street, was commenced, but adjourned for one week. Messrs. C. H. Mendum and Robert Shillaber appeared in opposition to the proposed highway.

Bills relating to fire department were ordered paid.

On request of A. R. Hatch it was voted that a time be appointed for a hearing on the debt of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad.

Petition of Women's Temperance League was presented, and advocated by Rev. John A. Goss, Rev. James Noyes and Mr. Durgin. The petition is as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Portsmouth the petition of the Women's Temperance League respectfully sheweth:

That the wonderful progress of the temperance reform movement, and the deplorable condition of our city with regard to the large number of places where intoxicating liquors are sold, demand that some action of the city authorities toward closing these open doors of perdition should be taken. The temperance work in our city is going forward with the blessing of God upon it, and hundreds have taken the pledge and been saved from eternal ruin. A great deal remains to be done, and in this work the authorities of our city are respectfully called upon to close the places where such intoxicating liquors are sold as a beverage. If you will consider the great temptation thrown in the way of our young men by the large number of places where liquors are sold, you will readily perceive the great difficulty the friends of temperance reform have to encounter every step of the way; if you desire to have our city a model city and a prosperous one, and worthy of the great principles possessed by its present efficient and honorable authorities: then we earnestly beg, in the name of all that is noble and humane, that you will close the liquor shops and forbid the sale of intoxicating liquors under penalty of law.

Very Respectfully,

THE WOMAN'S TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.

The petition was accepted. Ald. Norton considered it impossible for the police to close up all the liquor shops, as it could not be done without evidence of sales, and such evidence is harder to be procured by a police officer, who is know to the liquor sellers and who wears a badge, than by persons. If any one produces proof of sale against a liquor dealer, the police and courts must punish the person so selling, the same as any other infringement of a State or municipal law is punished; but it is too much to expect that the police, unaided by the public, can stop liquor selling, for all they can do is to punish proved cases of infringement of the law. If the reformed drinkers, and opponents of liquor selling in general, were to take hold of the matter of furnishing evidence themselves, they could do far more than any uniformed police toward stopping the traffic.

Ald. Marcy said he had always been in favor of temperance, and was one of the first shipmasters to do away with the use of grog on board ship. But he considered it impossible to enforce a prohibitory law, as public opinion did not heartily support it, and he believed a strong license law would be far more effective in restraining the liquor traffic, as such a law would be easily enforced.

Ald. Yeaton said he was a temperance man, but was not prepared to vote on the question brought up by the petition without further consideration.

It was voted that the petition be further considered at the next meeting of the Board.

Committee on claims reported on the claim of J. W. Weeks for damage to horse at the Eastern railroad crossing on Islington street, recommending that the city clerk be directed to request the railroad company to adjust the claim or otherwise to protect the city from all charges in relation to the same.

Committee on streets reported favorably on C. E. Myers' petition for sidewalk; the report was accepted and the matter referred to same committee, with power.

Committee on fire department reported it inexpedient to raise pay of members of extinguisher companies at this time; also that they had fixed the number of men in hook and ladder company at one foreman and twenty men. Report accepted.

Subject of crosswalk on Elm street was referred to proper committee, with power.

Power was given to Ald. Spinney to repair wood shed at Lafayette School house.

The Mayor was requested to call the attention of the Eastern Railroad to the condition of the crossing at Green street.

The vote providing for the building of a brick stable, passed at last meeting, was reconsidered.

Adjourned.

JOTTINGS.

To-day, at noon, Col. Hackett will sell at auction, on the premises, the dwelling house No. 41 Hanover street, with land attached.

Sunday services at the Methodist Church: Preaching in the morning by Mrs. Clayton, wife of Rev. Mr. Clayton of the Wesleyan Methodist Church; subject, "The immortality of the Soul." Preaching in the afternoon by the Pastor; subject, "The cross of Christ;" the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered immediately after the sermon. Prayer-meeting in the evening at half-past six o'clock.

Bow Mission service Sunday afternoon at 4:15; subject, "The superstructure of Christian character."

Rev. Eugene M. Grant begins his pastorate of the Universalist church on Sunday.

The temperance lecture by Mrs. Clayton, at the Temple on Sunday evening, will be given under the auspices of the reform club, and the club temperance songs will be given. Mrs. Clayton is a native of Amherst in this State, and has lectured extensively in New England and the Provinces, and wherever she has spoken the local press has given her the most flattering commendation as a graceful, eloquent and convincing speaker. The music will be conducted by Dr. Goodall, who will preside at the organ; the Reform Club Songster will be used.

"Washburn's Last Sensation" is coming, and will give an entertainment at the Temple on Friday evening next. A troupe of genuine Indians has been added to the attractions of the show since it was last here.

Maynard's Scenes at the Centennial—six hundred views, shown by the stereopticon—will be exhibited at Franklin Opera Hall each evening of next week. The advertisement will appear in Monday's issue of this paper.

There was an animated discussion between two countrymen on Market square, Friday forenoon. It commenced about the sum of fifty cents, and drifted into politics; from the latter topic to "fighting talk" the transition was natural. One disputant offered to bet $5 that for fifty cents he could buy the other's vote in November; then coats came off, the belligerents hit furiously at each other once, from a safe distance, and then the coats went on again. No insurance.

A company of Tilden and Hendricks Cadets was formed at Washington Hall on Thursday evening, officers being chosen as follows: Captain, J. Albert Sanborn; 1st Lieutenant, George E. Hodgdon; 2d Lieut., Frank W. Rand. The company adopted a uniform consiting of a white double-breasted blouse trimmed with blue, fatigue cap and white leggings. It was voted to organize four companies of fifty men each.

It will be seen by reference to our advertising columns that arrangements have been made by which those who intend visiting the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia during the week in which New Hampshire day occurs, can procure their tickets of Mr. Samuel Barrett at the Eastern Railroad ticket office, on Saturday, Oct. 7th, at the low price of $10.70 for the round trip.

A large party of the friends of Mr. William Brooks of Eliot, (father of Joshua Brooks, Esq., of this city,) assembled at his residence on Tuesday last to celebrate the occasion of his ninetieth birthday. The company were entertained by Prof. Little of Concord, N. H., with vocal and instrumental music. Among the notable visitors was Mr. Brooks' old school teacher, Maj. Mark Dennett, to whom Mr. Brooks was a pupil seventy-one years ago. Congratulatory addresses were made by Rev. S. A. Hutchinson and Maj. Dennett, which were responded to by Mr. Brooks, after which the company partook of a sumptuous repast.—Journal.

The Sunday Republic of Philadelphia thus refers to the Kearsarge Flute and Drum Band, which accompanied Captain Marvin's command to the Centennial: "It exactly represents a new feature in band music. It is composed of sixteen flutes tuned to the keys of E flat, B flat and F, producing harmonies in five parts, and adding bass and snare drum and triangle. This favorite band was organized by an English musician, Prof. Abraham Kay, who sent to England for the flutes and also the written music. Yesterday it gave a concert at the New Hampshire building in the Exhibition grounds, to a very large company, who cheered for and received the encore. The band played in the escort to the 8th Massachusetts Regiment and gave a concert at its camp."

COOKED

CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Daily Chronicle.

—Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, of New York, is attracting much attention by his protest against the wickedness of allowing the Hell Gate blast to take place on Sunday. All of which reminds us of a story. In Scranton, Pennsylvania, closely connected with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, are some of the largest iron works in the world, and in the ownership and control of which Mr. Dodge is largely interested. It occurred to them, many years ago, that their immense blast furnaces ought to stop on Sunday, and Mr. Dodge insisted upon a trial. The first Sunday it worked very well. The second Sunday one of the furnaces got "sick," and despite the most vigorous efforts, insisted upon getting thoroughly chilled. It cost ten thousand dollars to blast out the solid mass of iron in the vast cavity, and restore the furnace to working condition. Since that time Sunday work has progressed without interruption or objection. The moral, we think, is plain.—Cincinnati Times.

—On the North London Railway, a short time since, a passenger remarked in the hearing of one of the company's servants how easy it was to "do" the company, and said he often travelled from Broad street to Dalston Junction without a ticket—"Any one can do it—I did it yesterday." When he alighted he was followed by an officer, who asked him how it was done. For a consideration he agreed to tell him. This being given, "Now," said the inquirer, "how did you go from Broad street to Dalston Junction yesterday without a ticket?" "Oh," was the reply, "I walked."

—Some twenty men and women, charged with sleeping on the sidewalk in New York, were brought before Judge Kasmire, at the Harlem Police Court, Tuesday. They said they had been overcome by Sunday's blast. The Judge prescribed a trip to the Island, where they will remain until all the effects of the concussion have passed away.

Marcellus Bufford,

No. 4 Exchange Buildings, Chronicle Office, will attend to the settlement of estates, adjustment of accounts, transfers of real estate, and any other business that may be entrusted to him.

ESTABLISHED IN 1833.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
IN THE
UNITED STATES.

No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.

SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 29 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichoi's Emenna Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

There are martyrs to headache who might be cured by using

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient.

The stomach, overburdened until its recuperative power is weakened, revenges itself upon the poor head, which it makes to ache and torture the offender. The use of this aperient will carry off naturally and almost imperceptibly, the offending cause. The disease is removed and the head ceases to ache.

DR. QUAIN'S

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the joy they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no purpose. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I sent to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not send them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yea, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried almost every medicine with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they had done all they could do to send the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. M. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Shirrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

MAGIC BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Spikit Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as the best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 21. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

"IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN."

Dear Pat, it's in sorrow I'm writin',
And sorry, ye'll own, that the news is,
For Saymore, the dimocrats' darlin',
The honor we've done him, refuses.
Refuses as flat as your hat, Sir!
Has got up his back, and is mad;
Says, "Won't you take 'no' for an answer?
I'm sick wid your questions, bedad!"

They say, now, he railly does mean it,
But, it's none of us can't understand—
How a dimocrat, offered an office,
Should refuse it like this, out of hand!
Could dimocrats, old as the country,
Says the likes of it niver was seen!
How could they believe, then, that Saymore
Didn't say more, bedad, than he'd mean?

But he didn't, and no use in cryin'!
Yit I've sat here, dear Pat, and I've mused;
Thinkin' over the glorious futur
'Ud been ours, if he hadn't refused!
Wid Tilden an Hendricks an Saymore
We'd 'a jist had the thrue kingdom-come,
For Greenbax, Secession, and Whiskey
Make the dimocrat Millay-neum!

Wid Hendricks to grind out the greenbax,
And make money cheaper than dirt,
Every dimocrat son of his mother
Might, at least, have a tail to his shirt!
They talk about "hard money," "soft money,"
But what is the differ, who knows?
All money is hard—in the comin',
And all money soft—when it goes!

They say Tilden stands for the "hard" sort,
But there's nothin' so stubborn as fax is!
And he proved that in soft 'twas his faith was
When it come to the question of taxes!
For so diffidah soft was his income
That he squeezed it ridiculous small,
So that when the collector came callin'
He found—next to nothin' at all!

So, if Saymore had only accepted,
We'd 'a had Tilden, President, shure.
And this when the tax man came botherin,
We'd 'a all up and showed him the door.
For, Sammy would ne'er had the meanness
To force us our taxes to pay,
When, how Uncle Sammy to diddle,
He'd a showed us the handiest way!

An' the South! Saymore, Tilden, an Hendricks
'Ud a brought back the jolly ould days
When a man could raise niggers to wallop,
And could wallop the niggers he'd raise!
But now all our fat's in the fire,
And it make a ridiculous blaze.
I'm afeard it will turn out a bayconn
To whicome the 'lection of Hayes!

An Annoyed Reformer.

CONFEDRIT X ROADS,
WICH IS IN THE STATE UV KENTUCKY,
September 16, 1876.

It takes a great deal of wear and tear to be a leedin democrat, more than I feel I kin stand at my time of life, pertikelerly ez Boscom is watrin his likker more and more every day. On insufishent sustenance it's impossible to watch all the pints and keep all the sheep safely in the fold. I'm longin for the elecshun and inoggerashen uv that great reformer, Tilden, so that in the postoffis I kin enjoy the froots uv my labor, and by gittin my likker by the gallon, insted uv in desultory and infrekent drinks, I kin be shoor of both quality and quantity.

My last trouble wuz my wust, and it took me an entire day to get it straitened. Pollock and Joe Bigler had got hold of a Noo York dimocratic paper, one which I hed been quotin as authority, and went from one bar-room to another and red it to every dimokrat in the village. They even penetrated Bascom's, and before I got in hed diffoosed ther pison in that sakred precint. It contained long articles showin that Tilden, our standard barer, wuz committed, sole and body, not only to hard-money and imejit resumpshen, but that he wuz a reformer uv the reforminist kind, goin so far as to pledge hisself never to pay a dollar uv Southern war claims, never to re-establish nigger servitood in form, and never to appoint to offis any but them ez wuz fittid for it, and sich ez wooden't steel.

They did this while I wuz out organizin a hundred dimocrats to go over into Injeany to vote in the interest uv reform in October.

When I returned there wuz trouble. I wuz surrounded by a hundred indignant dimocrats demanding uv me wat I wuz goin to do about it.

"I am for reform" sed Deekin Pogram, "But I am going to be paid for them sweet potatoes and them fence rails wich Federl plikkits seezed."

"I am for reform," sed Captain McPelter, "but I want pay for them horses wich John Morgan seezed, wich he wooden't hev done but for Fedrel invaders, which makes the Government clearly responsible for them!"

"I am for reform," sed Issaker Gavitt, "But wat is reform to me ef I can't be Collector uv this deestrick?"

Shakin uv em off I smiled a sad and pensive smile at ther child-like innosense, and mountin a stump, addressed em.

"My friends," I remarkt, "does water ever git higher than its fountin-hed? Is a Christian ever better than the Ten Commandments? (Then I had to explain to em wat the Ten Commandments wuz.) Did yoo ever know a party to rise above the source uv its strength? It's all very well for this vile sheet in Noo York to talk about hard money there, for the bloatid bondholders of the dimocrisy there want it, but do we? Not any. We want paper and lots uv it, and we're going to hev it. Wat kin the East do about resoomin? Hev the democrisy any strength there? Jist cruff to hold the postoffisses in case the democrisy elect a President. But who elects the dimocratic President? We uv Kentucky, uv Virginny, uv Maryland, and uv Georgy. Massachusetts wants hard money, but is our beloved Tilden gom back on Kentucky, where he has friends, for the sake uv Massachoosits, where he hezn't a corporal's guard?

And spekin uv the payment uv the claims of Deekin Pogram and Captain McPelter. How is the Government ngoin to refooso it? Ain't we the dimocratic party—we and sich ez we from the Southern States. Will there ever be a member uv Congress elected in the South whose constituoents didn't lose fence rales and mules and sweet potatoes? Ah, my friends, when Sherman swept to the sea he didn't realize wat a debt he wuz a pilin up wich his very soljers will hev to pay when we reformers git control agin. Possibly hed them soljers know'd that they'd have to pay for them sweet potatoes, with the cost uv collection, they woodent hev gobbled so many uv 'em. Our representatives will be safe on this question, and ez the Northern reform dimocrats will git their whack in, they will be satisfied uv the justis uv the claims. Wat else hev we to consider the matter?

And ez to the offises, wher does Samyooel Tilden git his support from in his own State? Is it out in Delaware county, where the people make much of skool-houses and churches and sich, them twin destroyers uv dimocrisy? No! Baxter street and sich is his strength. Is John Morrissey and John Kelly and Oaky Hall and Boss McLaughlin a supportin of him? Methinks they are. Hev they experienced a change uv heart? Hev they got so good in their matoor years that they won't take an offis or see that ther friends hev em? Is Tilden again to take his tone from Delaware county or from the cities where he gits his majorities?

Oh, ye uv little faith! I am ashamed uv yoo. Don't trouble about the spoils till yoo see the thieves opposin uv him. Go home and repent. I ought to wash my hands uv yoo, but I will stay and leed you awhile yit. Go home and be content with wat your leaders are a doin. The dimocrat wich asks questions is lost."

And the Deekin and I went into Bascom's and after takin a drink or two, and lamentin Bob Ingersoll's infidelity, separated. The Deekin forgot to pay for the likker, and left it to be charged to me. Bascom stopped in the middle uv a denunciation uv the republicans for hevin on the stump sich an impious wretch ez Ingersoll, to remark that takin likker and gittin out without payin for it wus a d—d outrage. I think everything is right here now. Were-noo our strength like the eagles.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY, Reformer.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would 'leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

A Peaceful Democratic State.

The northern democratic and "independent" papers are fond of asserting that there is no disorder in the Southern States that are under democratic rule, and that it is only in the republican States that bloodshed and terrorism are universal. This, if true, would only show that the republicans are a law-abiding class and the democrats just the opposite; but it is not true. Take Texas, for example. Under republican rule human life was safe in that State; but in 1872 the democracy carried the State, and one of their first acts was to repeal the State Police Law, under which the desperadoes had either been imprisoned or hung, or driven to Mexico or the "Indian Nation." Since then an absolute reign of terror has prevailed, and the bowie knife and rifle now have absolute control. We will give a few extracts, from northern and Texan papers, to show that in places where the northern press claims all is lovely the southern press finds plenty to lament. The following is from the New York Nation:

"The condition of the South is too serious, we repeat, to be used as electioneering material. We are sorry to observe, too, that once more the campaign uproar and tumult breaks out in the two States where the negroes and their friends have a decided majority. How is it that peace and order reign in the States in which the whites are in a majority? We ask the question in all seriousness; a candid answer to it would go to the root of the Southern trouble."

The Nation asserts that "peace and order reign in the States in which the whites are in a majority;" the white democrats are in a majority in Texas, so we will quote from Texas papers to show how peaceful and orderly that State is. The following extract is from the Houston Age—a democratic paper, which goes for "Tilden and reform"—of Sept. 6th:

"It is a lamentable fact that in the midst of the red carnival of crime at present deluging the State of Texas and disgracing its people abroad, hardly a single paper has a word to say denunciatory of murder and violence. Interior papers, when recording some fiendish outrage or cold-blooded murder perpetrated in their counties, hardly ever have a word even of disapprobation, and in some instances it is easy to see that the editor absolutely sympathizes with the murderer. When the press of this State thus sides with assassination, what else can be expected but its continued unholy and blighting reign in this State? If there is one great duty devolving upon the press of Texas at this juncture, it is a united effort to enlighten the masses and turn public opinion in the direction of a wholesale and fierce punishment of criminals and murderers, which is the only road out of the present wilderness of crime, and toward the safety of life and property in this State."

That doesn't sound much like "peace and order." "The red carnival of crime at present deluging the State of Texas," and the charge that "the press of this State sides with assassination," seems to indicate that "peace and order" in Texas is not of the kind that is most favored at the North. The next extract is from the Dallas Herald—also a democratic supporter of Tilden and reform—and we invite attention to the fact that the wholesale murder of negroes and white republicans is earnestly reprobated because such crimes "imperil the safety of the State when committed in the face of a desperate contest for party supremacy in the National government," though another reason why the assassins should halt in their bloody work is because the people are "heart sick and weary of murder." The Herald speaks as follows:

"The murder of J. N. Baughman, a former sheriff of Wharton county, by assassins, following immediately upon the slaughter of eight negroes, but aggravates the danger of the hour. These crimes, beyond all question, do imperil the safety of the State, when committed in the face of a desperate contest for party supremacy in the National government, and it is not the part of wise, honest or honorable statesmanship to tacitly acquiesce in their commission. * * The people are heart sick and weary of murder. They hang their heads in very shame at the character Texas is obtaining abroad. They know and feel that it does her every interest infinite hurt, retards immigration, drives back capital, arrests internal improvements, bankrupts and beggars our citizens."

The San Antonio Herald, another Tilden paper, says:

"Instead of the number of murders committed being exaggerated not more than half are published. There are comparatively few newspapers on the frontier, and in some localities where they are published, owing to the supremacy of desperadoism, no mention is ever made of outrages that occur almost in the presence of the editors."

Texas, under republican rule, supported 3000 free schools, and had an accumulated school fund of $800,000; it did not have any State debt worth mentioning—not more than a few thousand dollars; and it was about as orderly as any State in the Union. The democrats have been in power nearly four years, and during that time have abolished the school system, so that there is now not one free school in the State; they have (we speak on the authority of the democratic papers of the State) stolen the $800,000 school fund; they have run the State in debt $4,000,000, the State expenses last year exceeding its income by over $500,000, and they have allowed crime to run riot until when one democratic paper asserts that placing the number of murders at a thousand a year is an exaggeration, another democratic paper asserts that "not more than half the murders are ever published."

Terrible Accident.

Springfield, Mass., had a frightful accident on Friday afternoon. Shortly after two o'clock the upper floor of a three-story brick block, occupied by the Buck Cigar Manufacturing Co., S. Palmer & Co., flour dealers, and J. Walker & Son, pork packers, gave way and carried all the other floors down into the cellar, together with a number of men who were in the building. On the upper floor was stored a quantity of tobacco, some 80,000 pounds; on the second floor 400 bbls. of flour; and it was this weight which caused the floor to give way. G. N. Walker, of the firm of J. Walker & Son, Martin Sheridan, a German named Peter Kesler, and Ryan and Erskine Pease, were killed. Three of the men who were carried down extricated themselves from the wreck, all badly but none dangerously hurt. The ruins immediately took fire, but the fire department soon had the flames under control, and the hook and ladder men and firemen set to work to remove the debris. Walker's body was found at about four o'clock; Kesler's body was taken out at about ten o'clock, and Sheridan's at two o'clock Saturday morning, Pease's body being found an hour later. All were frightfully mangled, and all must have died instantly, Ryan's body was not found until a later hour. The cause of the disaster was the flimsy manner in which the block was built, which rendered it unable to support the heavy weight (over eighty tons) on the upper two floors.

News and Notes.

A Havana dispatch says: An expedition of over 100 Spaniards, which had started out to entrap the Cuban leader Gomez, was captured recently. Some 1,500 Cubans recently captured the city of Sagua, sacked all the stores and left it in flames after twice driving away the Spanish troops.

Mrs Woodhull at last managed to get a chance to deliver her lecture, "The human body the temple of God," in Boston, Paine-Memorial Hall having been opened to her on Sunday evening.

It is found by the auditing officers of the Treasury Department that the whole amount appropriated during the recent session of Congress for the payment of Southern claims growing out of the war is $485,000.

Fighting is lively again between the Servians and Turks.

Two vessels from Brunswick, Ga., arrived at Boston, Friday, with yellow fever on board, and were quarantined.

The fare on the Eastern Railroad, between Lynn and Boston, which was thirty cents per passenger prior to the building of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, with an added penalty of fifteen cents if tickets were not purchased before entering the cars, was reduced to ten cents on a special cheap train last June, and is now to be still further reduced by the sale of tickets at twelve for a dollar.

New Hampshire Items.

Dr. C. W. Perkins's house and office at Alton were burned Thursday. Loss $2000; insured.

The uniformed Hayes and Wheeler companies of Manchester, six in number, with a membership of five hundred, had a torch-light procession on Friday evening. Three campaign flags were raised. Residences of republicans along the line of march were illuminated, and a collation was served by the citizens.

Flather & Co's machine shop, in Nashua, was burned Friday evening. Loss $15,000; insured $4000.

John S. Richardson, of Manchester, has died of yellow fever at Brunswick, Ga., where he was employed as an engineer on the Brunswick & Macon Railroad.

The State Fair opens at Manchester to-morrow, and will continue three days. Reduced fares on the railroads.

The New Hampshire State Teachers' Association will hold its twenty-third annual meeting at City Hall, Concord, October 12th and 13th, the session beginning at 3 o'clock P. M., Thursday, Oct. 12th. Teachers, Committees, Superintendents, and citizens of New Hampshire are urgently invited to be present and participate in the exercises. The Concord Railroad will sell tickets at reduced rates from Manchester, Nashua, New Market Junction and Portsmouth, to Concord and return. Persons taking these trains at other stations can procure tickets, to Concord and return, of the conductors on the train.

Frank Marsh committed suicide Wednesday evening at Laconia, with a shot gun, having made three previous unsuccessful attempts.

The Centennial Exhibition.

The Philadelphia Ledger states that up to Saturday evening, Sept. 23, 4,071,313 paying visitors had passed through the turnstiles since the Exhibition was opened—115 days—against the number of 3,492,622 attending the Vienna Exhibition during the whole time of its continuance, 186 days. The receipts of the Vienna Exposition amounted to $994,035.25. Already $1,834,534 have been received at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia despatches say the number of paying visitors to the Centennial Exhibition Thursday is officially estimated at 251,468, and to the live stock exhibition, 5823—total, 257,296. Including free admissions the number exceeded 260,000. This number exceeds by 80,000 persons the largest single day's attendance at any international fair ever held, and the cash receipts are more than twice as great as those of any former day of this or any other fair. This was caused, of course, by the day being a legal holiday, and largely owing to the immense attendance of school children, who attended in a body.

Political.

The "Literary Bureau" devised by Tilden has its little difficulties. The New York Sun and the World had smart editorials on the same day that were almost identical. Everybody laughed, and the World was obliged to say its matter came from "an anonymous correspondent." Ungrateful name for the bureau!

A Louisiana court held Col. Neal Dow responsible for damage done by his soldiers during the war, and the United States Circuit Court in Maine has recently rendered an opinion that the Louisiana decision was just and still holds good. Judge Daniel Clarke of New Hampshire dissented. This is Tilden's theory of individual responsibility, and is only the first of thousands of similar decisions that will be brought against Union soldiers if he is elected.

What is it but war, when any Union soldier is prosecuted in the courts for damages done by him at the South? A democratic judge, Mr. Clifford of the Supreme Court, decides that Gen. Dow is personally liable for sugar taken by him during the war for the use of his command. If he can be prosecuted for supplies taken during the war for the use of troops, every soldier of Sheridan's army can be prosecuted by inhabitants of the Shenandoah, every soldier of Sherman's army by inhabitants of Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, and the Carolinas, and every soldier of Grant's army by residents of Richmond and Petersburg; nay, Grant himself can be made to pay for damages to the apple orchard at Appomattox. This is not peace, nor is peace possible as long as these claims are set up on behalf of the Southern democrats. Union soldiers will not vote to plaster their own homes with lawsuits. The fair consideration of questions of administrative and economic reform becomes absolutely impossible so long as pretensions like these are made by southern and encouraged by northern democrats. The war will not end at present if it is proposed to punish the soldiers who suppressed the rebellion.—N. Y. Tribune.

"I would rather see all the soldiers starve to death than give them one cent," said Samuel J. Tilden in the fall of 1863, when solicited to aid in the noble work of the Christian commission. The facts are sworn to by Daniel P. Jones, authorized agent of the Commission. Tilden's war record is gradually coming to light, and is of a kind to gain him many votes—down South.

POLICE COURT.

Saturday, September 30, before Batchelder, Justice:

Georgs F. Sanborn, of Rye, was charged with selling liquor—two complaints; he waived examination and was bound over in $200 on each complaint to appear at a higher court.

John S. Wendell was brought up to explain why he stole a horse from George W. Brackett. He developed a very strong defence—handed the Court a bill of sale of the horse from Mr. Brackett, on reading which, a nolle prosequi was entered on application of plaintiff's counsel.

JOTTINGS.

Maynard's "Evenings at the Centennial" commence this evening at Franklin Opera Hall. The entertainment is warmly endorsed by literary men, clergymen, and the press of every place it has visited. The Concord Patriot says it is the verdict of those who attended it "that no exhibition of equal merit" has ever visited that city. The Providence Journal says "these views are clearly presented, and give one a better idea of the magnitude and magnificence of the Centennial Exhibition than can be obtained by the most vivid description." The agent of another show, speaking in our office last week of this one, emphatically pronounced it "a good thing, worth anybody's while to see." In other places the last nights' exhibitions have been uncomfortably crowded, and the same will probably be the case in this city; so go to-night, (if you can go but once,) and avoid the crowding later in the week. At the close of this engagement here this entertainment is to open at the Old South Church in Boston for the season.

Frank L. Chauncy, of Kittery, has been appointed Asst. Keeper at Whale's back Lighthouse, vice John Q. A. Martin, resigned.

Read John P. Sweetser's advertisements before purchasing a stove or range, or if you are in want of a clothes wringer, kerosene lamp or any other article in the kitchen furnishing line. If you don't see what you want specified in the advertisements, take a look through the large and varied stock in store at No. 46 Market street, where you will find most everything.

The Times has an article headed "The rings all for Hayes." Not all of 'em. The Tammany Ring is "solid for Tilden;" and so is the New York Canal Ring — every member of it—though Tilden's record as an "aggressive reformer" is based entirely on his attacks upon that ring. And, according to the democratic Brooklyn Argus, the Brooklyn Ring, which is about as bad as the Tweed Ring was, is enthusiastic in supporting Tilden, and two of its leading members were Tilden delegates to St. Louis, though they were both under indictment at the time for gigantic stealing; every member of the Brooklyn ring now goes in for Tilden and reform.

Some sneak thief "went through" the till of J. W. P. Carter's store on Daniel street one day last week, and it is said made quite a haul.

Mr. Wm. P. Walker, having received a large portion of his stock of Fall and Winter goods, is ready to fill all orders for custom work in his line at the old stand, No. 8 Market square, and as in the past to make up goods "into garments of the latest style or according to the fancy of the purchaser," and guaranty perfect satisfaction,—at rates as reasonable as the quality of materials and first-class workmanship will admit. See advertisement.

The field day of the local military companies has been postponed until Tuesday, October 24th, on account of the inability of the Governor to be present to-day, the day originally fixed, a telegram having been received from him on Friday evening to that effect.

Look out for thieves. The office of Messrs. Critchley & Whalley's machine shop was broken into on Friday night, and the scrip in the money drawer stolen.

Charles A. Shannon & Son, harness makers and dealers in all kind of wares usually kept in a first-class harness store, occupy the stand formerly occupied by E. Underhill & Co., and are prepared to furnish harnesses and harness goods of all grades, whips, etc., on call, and to do repairing with promptness, the best materials only being used and only the most competent workmen employed. Give them a call.

The Newburyport Herald reports that a prize fight came off at Smuttynose island, Isles of Shoals, early last week, between a Boston rough and one from Providence.

Considerable excitement was occasioned about town on Saturday by rumors of the failure of a number of business firms. These rumors were in several cases—two, at least—entirely unfounded.

Schooner Leocadia, Capt. Brown, from Philadelphia for Newmarket, with coal, was run down and sunk on the afternoon of Sept. 27th, off Cape Cod, by schooner L. Rose, Capt. Adams. The Leocadia had just tacked, and before she had gathered headway the other schooner struck her, sending her to the bottom in three minutes. The crew of the lost vessel scrambled on board the other, but lost everything except the clothes they stood in. The L. Rose was light, and suffered no damage to her hull, though her jibboom and bowsprit were carried away. This collision is no doubt the one reported by schooner R. M. Brockings, which arrived at Portland on the 28th and gave an account of witnessing the sinking of a deep laden vessel by a light one off Cape Cod the day before, the sunken vessel being supposed to be the schooner Mary E. Woodhull. The Leocadia was a good vessel of 103 tons, owned by James & Williams, Boston, and valued at about $4000.

There is but one place in town where the celebrated "Brilliants" spectacles and eyeglasses can be obtained—at H. B. Buzzell & Son's extensive fancy goods store, opposite the Post-office.

Some time Saturday night Walker & Co's coal wharf gave away in the middle, under the weight stacked upon it, and about one hundred and fifty tons of coal fell through the hole into the water, which is quite deep there. Two hundred tons remained upon the end of the wharf, beyond the break, and on Sunday men were busily engaged in removing it with gondolas, a further caving in of the wharf being feared.

On Saturday the house No. 41 Hanover street was sold at auction by Col. Hackett, Mr. George Stott being the purchaser. The price paid was $1800.

There was a baptizing on Sunday at the Raynes shipyard, which was attended by the usual crowd of spectators. Two ladies were baptized, by the pastor of the Advent church.

The match game of ball at Hampton, Saturday, between the Granite States of this city and the Winnicummetts of Hampton, was won by the former, score 31 to 32. The return game will be played in this city next Saturday afternoon at the Plains, when the Hampton boys will possibly make it warm for the Granites.

The cavalry company, or twenty-nine members of it, had a drill at the Plains on Saturday afternoon.

Major Alfred Little, the well known musician, is in town, the guest of S. W. Clarke, Esq. He will not give any entertainment at present, but may return for that purpose later in the season. Those who have heard the Major will be most happy to welcome him.

OBITUARY.

On Saturday morning, after a painful and wearying illness, Jeremiah D. Goodrich, Esq., passed to his rest, in the 77th year of his age.

Mr. Goodrich was born in the town of Bradford, Mass., and came to this city, with his parents, when about eight years of age. He has permanently resided here since, and has added another shining name to the roll of long and honorable careers lived out in our community. When sixteen years old, he was indentured as an apprentice by his father; but in a spirit of ambition, notable then and now, he purchased several of the latter years of his time (till he was twenty-one) by the payment of $500. He began his life upon the old maxims of truth and honor; and with a persistency heroic he fulfilled the mission—without one single deviation known to kin or neighbors—of an honorable citizen, a loving husband and father, a devoted friend, and a Christian gentleman. With the business of his early life, there was inseparably connected the vending of wines and liquors; and, though pursued by him with a conscientiousness iron in its rulings, he abandoned the traffic more than thirty years ago, influenced solely by his recognition of its growing harmfulness.

Mr. Goodrich served the town and city in many elective capacities, as State legislator, City Treasurer, and in other important posts. He has been vested with a large number of private and public trusts, filling them with a fidelity and justness rare in any times. In his religious convictions he was a Universalist, because of his earnest faith in the goodness and mercy of God, and his high appreciation of the grandeur and worth of the human soul. His fervent love of peace, and his belief in the sacredness of human life made him to advocate the olive branch, and to deprecate the sword. His whole life has been a noble illustration of that divine injunction, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Pure and chaste in speech and deportment, honorable and unselfish in all personal intercourse and transaction, patriotic and public-spirited in the duties of citizenship, he leaves an example worthy the highest encomium and the widest imitation.

A PLEASANT OCCASION.

A pleasant surprise party was given on Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Holmes, near the corner of Pickering and Water streets, the occasion being the thirty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. The matter was kept an entire secret from Mrs. Holmes, who was led to believe that the preparations which had been going on for a day or two previous were in honor of a friend of hers, and she, with a characteristic generosity and self-sacrifice, devoted herself assiduously toward helping make arrangements for an affair which turned out to be given in her honor! When, in the early evening, (being ushered from the residence of a neighbor into her own house, and seeing so many guests present) the truth flashed upon her, the good lady could not suppress her glad emotions, but gave vent to her feelings in a flood of tears.

Substantial tokens of esteem were brought in as donations, among which was a beautiful bed-quilt, made and presented by some of the immediate neighbors of Mrs. Holmes. After discussing a bountiful supper and interchanging kind wishes and happy expressions of good will, the party broke up. Such occasions are worthy of record, inasmuch as they present to view the better side of human feeling and neighborly relation, for others to imitate. ‡

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complains, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

Spalding's Liquid Glue, always ready, to use.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly becoming a general household remedy wherever coughs and lung complaints are known. In it is found a safe, sure, pleasant and speedy cure.

THE INTENSE ITCHING caused by certain diseases of the skin is speedily allayed by GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which entirely removes every species of eruption, is perfectly safe, and far cleaner and more effective than any ointment.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted with special reference to quiet and pleasant accommodations, at small cost.

BRIGHT EYES. REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Autumn Maguring.

We have long since made repeated observations, confirming the truth that for many purposes, manure is worth at least twice as much spread in Autumn, as the following Spring. Yet the practice is not uncommon with farmers, who may have manure lying in their yards through Summer, to omit the drawing out till wanted the next season. Those who feed cornstalks for fodder find it too long and coarse to apply in the Spring next after feeding out, but the heaps into which it should be thrown will be well rotted by September. It is then in perfect condition to be drawn and applied. It does most good on grass lands; and if these are intended to be inverted next Spring for corn, it will give at least double the results produced by Spring application. It will impart a vigorous start to grass intended to remain in pasture or meadow. The advantage will be two fold—it will increase the grass all through the growing season of Autumn, and thus produce a good Winter mulching for the roots, and the wash of the manure by rains will run down the roots and become diffused in a more perfect manner through the soil, than could be accomplished by any mechanical means.—Country Gentleman.

—"Only to think," said a young Christian matron the other day at tea, "how these poor heathen in Tahiti and the other places of South Africa and India are superstitious. Why it one of their children meets a cross-eyed man, the mother with a scream of affright, seizes the little one, and to prevent the influence of the evil eye—Hiram Snedicor Perkins!" she cried, interrupting herself, "what are you doing, holding that blessed innocent pudgy wudgy before the looking-glass? Don't you know that if it sees itself before it's three months old it will never have a day's luck as long as it lires? And this is Friday, too!"

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past two years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1873

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to work every day, and am happy to say I feel perfectly very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 16, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I feel it my duty to send you praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.
Yours with respect, ELI F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I feel I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicine with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

TROS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nervous I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.
MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, cottonseed, rapeseed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

A Chinese Mathematician.

Wong Chinfoo, the highly-educated Chinaman, rather "out away" with a young professor at Greencastle on Friday evening. During the course of the evening Mr. Wong stated that among the Chinese, mathematicians were hired at $4 per week, and were not as good as the most ordinary men here. They do this work by machinery, as it were, and it is the dirty work of the empire. When Mr. Wong first came to this country to enter college he was told that it would be necessary to study mathematics two years; he at once told them that he knew mathematics better than those who were to teach him in this particular branch. Illustrative of this, Wong, in his address at Brown's Hall, offered to foot up several columns of figures. For convenience, his manager, Mr. Hawkins, was to name the figures, but the young professor of mathematics at Ashbury, who was present, thought he saw a flaw there, and at once rose to his feet. He asked:

"Will you, sir, allow me to give you the figures?"

"Certainly, sir; I will be glad to have you do so," was Mr. Wong's courteous answer.

"Now, then, sir," began the professor, and he named sum upon sum, not going beyond the tens of thousands, but giving him at least thirty sums to add. When all were on paper Mr. Wong asked:

"And now is that all, sir?"

"That's all," replied the professor. "Get ready to add."

Mr. Wong stood smiling, when the professor had straightened himself up and said, "Now begin." He quietly remarked: "Very well, sir; here is my amount." This before the astonished professor had time to get half way up the first column.

"But you're not through already!" remarked the professor.

"Here is the footing of my figures," was the response; and he read them, the footing being exact.

"Please read that again, sir," asked the professor.

He did so, and the astonished professor was forced to admit that he was right. The professor was astonished, and was forced to admit that Mr. Wong did know something about mathematics. The mandarin stated that he was not an extraordinary mathematician as compared with some of the educated Chinese.—Watertown Times.

The Weight of Sin.

Father Desmond cleared his voice, took a sip of toddy, and began in a dry, solemn way: A friend of his, a priest, was hearing confession one Saturday, and a boy came to him and said he had a rale bad sin in his mind. "Well, me good boy, come on wid it," said his reverence, "sure we must all be forgiven; so what is it now?" "Augh, den, your riverence, I do be always sayin', Be the Holy Father." "You do?—that's very bad me boy. Now, how often do you be sayin' that? Do you say it twice a day?" "Oh! begor, an' I do, an' more, your riverence." "Do you say it twenty times a day, me good boy?" "Augh, begor, an' I do, an' more than forty times a day, your riverence!" "This is very bad, indeed, me good boy. Go home now," said the priest, "and get your sister to make you a bag and hang it round your neck and every time you say Be the Holy Father, drop a little stone in it, and come to me this day week." Well, that day week his reverence was hearin', as usual, in his box, and he heard an awful noise in the church, so he looked out av the dure, and what does he see but his penitent, an' he draggin' a sack up the body of the church! "Tady Mulloy," says he, "what do you mean by such conduck as that in the church?" "Shure, yer riverence," says the fellow, "dose is all Be de Holy Fathers, an' de rest of um's outside on the dray."—Alta Californian.

An Interesting City.

The town of Nissa, where the invading Servians were lately defeated by the Turks, has a remarkable history. It has a fortified citdel on the banks of the Nishawa, and is an important strategic point. Constantine the Great, who adorned the place with magnificent buildings, was born at Nissa. There the Emperor Claudius II., in the year 1268, defeated the Goths, 50,000 of whom were killed. Attila destroyed the palace, but it was rebuilt by Justinian. There Julian the Apostate received the news of the death of his adversary, Constantine. The Crusaders marched through the town repeatedly. It was conquered by Sultan Amurad in 1375, when the Servians and Bulgarians were compelled to pay him tribute. The town fell into the hands of the Christians when Vladislay, king of Poland and Hungary, joined with the Voyvod Hunyod to destroy the Turks in 1389, but the Turks regained it in 1544. It remained so until 1689, when the grand vizier was defeated there by the Germans. In 1690 it capitulated to the Turks. It was retaken by the Austrians in 1737, but again surrendered. Near there the Servian prince, Stephen Singelich, intrenched himself in 1809, but, being overcome by superior force, blew up his intrenchments with powder, destroying himself and his assailants. It was then the Turks built the "tower of skulls," putting 2,000 Servian heads in the front wall.

New Hampshire Week at the Centennial.

Arrangements have been matured for a Grand State Excursion of the citizens of this State to the Centennial Exhibition, Oct. 9th and 10th.

Fare for the round trip, good for 30 days, with baggage checked through from Nashua, Manchester and Portsmouth $10.70.

In case 300 or more tickets are sold, a drawback of $1.00 each will be obtained.

Arrangements have been made with the managers of the Patron's Encampment, to furnish board for $1.25 per day when two persons will occupy one bed and remain three days. Steam cars run direct to the main entrance of the Exhibition, every half hour. Fare for the round trip 15 cents. Good board can also be obtained elsewhere at prices varying from $1.00 to $5.00 per day.

Persons making the excursion will consult their convenience by taking as little baggage as practicable.

This is the only State, and liable to be the last excursion made from New Hampshire, and in view of its occurring on New Hampshire's week at the Centennial, it behooves all contemplating visiting this, the greatest Exhibition the world ever witnessed, to avail themselves of this opportunity.

For further information apply to Col. Geo. W. Riddle, Centennial Commissioner for New Hampshire, No. 885 Elm street, Manchester, or of C. C. Shaw, Milford.

"Reform" Tactics.

The "Mississippi plan" of conducting a political campaign seems to be growing in favor with the Tilden reformers of the North. In Worcester, Mass., Friday evening, the republicans had a street parade and three flags raisings. The Worcester "reformers," having no doubt read glowing accounts of how such republican outrages on the rights democrats are met in South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, expressed their indignation with proper vigor. The Worcester Gazette says:

"As soon as the procession began to move, a large crowd, mainly boys, began to insult those in the line, and hoots and hisses were to be heard on every side, during the march through the streets. The first stone was throwo when the halt was made on Harvard street, but the men were under the control of their officers, and showed no resentment, though they were continually disturbed by hisses and "catcalls." The next demonstration by the crowd outside was at Lincoln Square. Here men as well as boys participated. The speaker was grossly insulted, names being called which were too vulgar to appear in print or to be repeated. As the procession was passing Court Hill men whose hair and beard were white with age and who should have been the ones to invite the crowd to be quiet, were urging them on. No notice of it was taken by the men in the line, and amidst hisses and insult, they passed up Main street to the Bay State House. Soon after the head of the column was halted and as the first speaker was about to be introduced by Mr. Mowbray, the hisses were renewed, followed by stones thrown into that company of the Guards which was composed largely of colored men. The stones were thrown not only from the sides of the street but from the tops of the buildings. When several men had been struck, one of the number turned in time not only to be struck with a stone but to see a white man throw it. The colored man immediately proceeded to take the defence of himself into his own hands and to severely chastise the man who threw the stone, by vigorously applying his torch to the top of his head. This act of the colored man caused the fight to become general, and before the police under Assistant Marshal Dyson arrived on the spot, the wounded increased rapidly. But one revolver was drawn, a six shooter, and the owner was arrested before he used it. Among the wounded was Capt. Charles Parker of Co. "H." He was struck by a large stone on the left side of the head in front of the left ear. A colored man, member of Co. "E," was struck on the back side of the head and carried senseless into the Bay State House. Another received a long cut on the side of the face. One received a hard blow in the abdomen, while at least a half a dozen others were struck with stones, but not seriously hurt."

And the party which numbers in its ranks ninety-nine per centum of such fellows as were engaged in the above mentioned outrages claims to be the only safe repository of the "rights of the people!"

—The author of "Sweet Home" never had a home, and now the friends of Dr. Muhlenberg, the author of "I would not Live Alway," have presented him with a purse of $20,000 on his 81st birthday.

News and Notes.

James Lick, the California millionaire, died Sunday at the age of eighty years, having been born at Fredericksburg, Penn., on the 25th of August, 1796.

Ship Herald, Capt. Gardner, 772 tons register, has been lost at sea; crew saved. She was built in Newburyport, and owned in Salem.

Two of the celebrated Halifax crew of oarsmen lost their lives on Sunday. As the steamer Nova Scotian, the regular mail steamer from Baltimore, was entering Halifax harbor Sunday morning, she ran down and sank a small boat, containing, among others, the Halifax crew, who were returning home from the International regatta at Philadelphia. The boat was completely cut to pieces and disappeared, while the unfortunate passengers were precipitated into the water, and two of the Halifax crew, the Smiths, were drowned. The others were picked up by the steamer's boats, which were promptly launched and manned. The responsibility for the accident is not definitely settled, but it is thought the small boat did not observe the necessary caution.

By the explosion of the boiler of a thrashing-machine engine, at Plymouth, Ind., Saturday, five men were killed. One man was blown to pieces, and cannot be found.

John Gencken and a man named Smith had an altercation on the street in Bristol, Conn., Saturday night, during which Gencken stabbed Smith, killing him instantly. The murderer escaped.

Capt. Timothy Peckham, lately in command of the surveying schooner Phantom, has created a great sensation in Newport, R. I., where he lived, by eloping with Mrs. Mary Ann Braman, of Block Island. Mr. Peckham left a family, consisting of a wife, to whom he had been married 21 years, and two daughters, aged 18 and 16 years. His paramour was living with her third husband, she having secured divorces from his predecessors. An improper intimacy had existed between the parties for the past two years. Previous to taking his departure Peckham made over to his wife all his property, including his house, valued at $4000. Mrs. Peckham and her daughters are highly respected. Previous to his intimacy with Mrs. Braman, Capt. Peckham was considered an exemplary citizen.

The fourth annual meeting of the American Public Health Association takes place this week in Huntington Hall in the Institute of Technology, Boston, commencing on the 3d and closing on the 6th.

New Hampshire Items.

A young man named Parsons, of Dover, was killed on Saturday by the accidental discharge of a gun while out shooting.

Frank Thompson, seventeen years old, and George Pearl, sixteen years old, who escaped from the Reform School, September 28, were arrested Saturday in Dover.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the New Hampshire State Teachers' Association will be held in Concord, Oct. 12 and 13.

E. J. Hurley was indicted at Laconia, Saturday, for selling liquor, and remanded to jail to await trial on Monday, but escaped from the Sheriff.

The annual parade of the Concord Fire Department took place Saturday afternoon. All the precinct companies and organizations from East and West Concord and Fisherville participated. The department was inspected by the City Government, after which a supper was given at the City Hall.

C. C. Frost, a prominent temperance man of Auburn, Me., held a temperance meeting in the College church at Hanover on Sunday evening, which was attended by almost all of the students. After his address, the immediate results of which prove its effectiveness, Mr. Frost read the ironclad pledge and invited the students to sign it, and to organize a reform club. After a short pause, one student went forward and signed the pledge, amidst the encouraging applause of his fellows, and as Mr. Frost mentioned number after number as having been attained, as an auctioneer would, one after another of the students, with here and there a citizen or a lady, amidst much excitement, followed until the members were swelled to over one hundred. This number will doubtless be greatly increased at subsequent meetings.

Mrs. Woodhull

Lectured in Boston on Sunday evening, at Paine-Memorial Hall. The Globe says:

"The hall was crowded; and from the beginning to the close of her discourse, which occupied an hour and twenty minutes in delivery, the closest and most respectful attention was given her. At 7:49 she walked upon the platform, much after the manner of the late Charlotte Cushman in Queen Catherine, with haughty mien and measured tread, with a copy of the Bible in her hands. She was attired in a brown silk with brown velvet trimmings, not over elaborate in style, but tasteful and becoming, with lace at the throat and at the cuffs, and with a single rose upon her breast. She really looked imposing and handsome, and her dramatic action at once captivated her audience. Her discourse was moderate both in thought and expression, and was far more sensible and less racy than some who attended anticipated. At the close a little child arrayed in white was placed upon the stage, and in a neat little speech, that no one heard, crowned Mrs. Woodhull with a crown of roses and pinks. In the middle of the discourse also a handsome floral offering was presented to her in the design of a broken anchor. These floral tributes, while to many of the auditors they appeared the offerings of zealous friends, who properly expressed their appreciation, to others seemed much more to savor of the claptrap show business, and there is no doubt that they took off much from the effect of the discourse itself and from the earnest tone of conviction with which it was delivered."

Political.

Mr. Kelly will undoubtedly vote for Tilden's electoral ticket, but were we betting men, we should be willing to wager large odds that his personal friends will vote another ticket. Said a prominent officer in the Tammany committee to us the other day: "Of course I shall vote for Tilden, but I have a host of relations who will vote for Hayes or Peter Cooper."—Brooklyn Argus, (dem.)

The Charleston, S. C., News and Courier is the most conservative and moderate of all the leading Southern democratic journals. As such it spoke out manfully in denunciation of the Hamburg massacre. But here is its version of the attitude of the parties in that State: "We propose to say to the republican voters: 'We shall, no matter what the inconvenience, employ those who are members of democratic clubs and vote for Hampton, in preference to those who vote for Chamberlain and Elliott. We will give work to those who fellow Hampton and go with us; and we will not give that work to those who, by their votes, seek to defeat, hurt and ruin us. They who vote with us are our friends, and we will take care of them. They who vote for the robber ticket are our enemies, and we will have nothing to do with them.' Let the democracy say this and act upon it, and every republican will have one good reason for hurrahing for Hampton for every dollar he expects to earn during the year." What would be thought in this section of so unblushing an avowal of a purpose to bribe and corrupt voters by the wholesale.

Unhappily, this war is still prosecuted with great vigor by democrats. It is an absolutely undeniable fact that they have virtually deprived a large part of the people of Alabama of their freedom of suffrage. About the methods used there may be dispute. But the vote speaks for itself; in many counties, thousands of republican votes were cast at the election two years ago, and only hundreds, and in some cases less than one hundred, at the election this year. Whether this result was reached by the systematic refusal to employ colored republicans, of which abundant proof appears in the Southern papers, or by armed organizations attending republican meetings, or by assassination of leading men, in any case there is war against that freedom of suffrage which the Constitution guarantees. The war will not cease, peace will not become anything except base surrender, so long as the attempt is made by any unlawful or unfair means to deprive voters of their freedom of choice. This, it seems to us undeniable, has in many cases been done by Southern democrats, and precisely to that extent they are making war upon the Constitution, and rendering impossible the peace which Northern democrats pretend to desire.—N. Y. Tribune.

PROPOSALS FOR MATERIALS TO BE SUPPLIED TO THE NAVY YARDS UNDER THE TONNAGE OR THE BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR,
Washington, D. C., September 28, 1876.

SEALED PROPOSALS to furnish Timber and other materials for the Navy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock M. of Tuesday, November 7, 1876, at which time the bids will be opened.

The proposals to be addressed to the "Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, Navy Department, Washington," and must be indorsed "Proposals for Timber, &c., for the Navy," that they may be distinguished from ordinary business letters.

To prevent delay and facilitate the opening of the bids, parties bidding for supplies at several yards will enclose their bids in separate envelopes for each yard, indorsed with the name of the yard for which the bid is made.

Printed schedules for such classes as parties deal in and intend to bid for, together with instructions to bidders, giving the forms of proposal, of guarantee, and of certificate of guarantors, with printed forms of offer, will be furnished to such persons as desire to bid, on application to the Commandants of the respective Navy Yards, and those of all the Navy yards on application to the Bureau.

The Commandant of each Navy Yard, and the purchasing Paymaster for each Station, will have a copy of the schedules of the other yards, for examination only, in order that persons who intend to bid may judge whether it is desirable to make application for any of the classes of those yards.

The proposals may be for the whole of a class, but the Department reserves the right to reduce the whole class, should the interest of the Government require it, before the execution of the contract. All applications for information, or for the examination of samples, must be made to the Commandant of the respective yards.

Bids or offers will be received only from parties who are bona fide dealers in, or manufacturers of, the articles they offer to furnish. The guarantors must be certified by the collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which they reside.

The contract will be awarded to the person who makes the lowest bid and gives the guarantee required by law, the Navy Department, however, reserving the right to reject the lowest bid, or any which it may deem exorbitant.

Under the provisions of section 3722 of the Revised Statutes, no money will be paid to any person who, or any surety, has been a defaulter in any previous contract with the Navy Department will not be received.

Duration of the contract will be required to sign the contract, and their responsibility must be certified to the satisfaction of the Navy Department.

As additional security twenty per centum will be withheld from the amount of the bills until the contract shall have been completed, and eighty per centum of the amount of each bill, approved in triplicate by the Commandants of the respective yards, will be paid by the Paymaster of the station designated in the contract, or, if none is specified, by the Paymaster of the station nearest the yard where the goods are delivered, within ten days after the warrant for the same shall have been passed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

THE TEN CENTS SAVINGS BANK.

To the Depositors of the Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank:

The undersigned, your Committee to investigate the affairs of the Institution, would respectfully state that, on account of the hindrances at present in the way of another public meeting, and to make a form of answer to the numerous inquiries from a distance, we have decided to make a circular, as follows:

We have given very careful and thorough attention to the matter thus far, and find—

1. That the Institution has not the least amount of recuperative power.

2. That the present management seems to be faithful and judicious.

3. That the Assignee is laboring diligently to make a dividend, as he hopes, in the course of sixty or ninety days.

4. That there is no reason for abating the original estimate of the Commissioners, &c. sixty-five per cent.; on the contrary, there exists the hope that the result will be something better.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, October 2, before Batchelder, Justice:

Two men (one of whom at least knows better than to be engaged in any such disgraceful business as getting into a drunken row on Sunday, and who must do better than that if he would maintain a good name,) were brought before the Court in the morning on a charge of brawling. They admitted the charge to be only too true, and were fined $5 each, and each to pay one-half of the costs. We suppress their names, as we do not remember to have seen either of them on the Police Court records before, and hope we shall not again.

In the afternoon a young man, who has served a term at the Reform School, was charged with an indecent assault upon a young lady. He has committed more than one such offence, but was brought up on only one complaint, the insulted parties having a very natural reluctance to appear. The culprit acknowledged his guilt and received the heaviest sentence the Court could impose,—six months at Brentwood. We "keep his name out of the paper," too, not for his own sake, however, but on account of his respected family, to whom he is a sore trial.

PUT TO FLIGHT.

On Saturday afternoon, while the cavalry company was drawn up in line at the Plains, a stout, hearty looking country woman drove past, in a wagon drawn by a horse so fat that he had hardly room enough between the shafts. The old pony was moving along at a very leisurely jog-trot when his driver (on passing the Sherburne house) came in full sight of the martial array, when with one horrified glance she sprang to her feet, jerked fiercely at the reins with her left hand and with the right "put on the string" on the old pony's back, and went across the Plains and half way to the railroad bridge like a whirlwind, the horse on a clean run—and he can run, too—and his driver standing up the whole distance, looking like the picture of Bellona in her chariot which headed the chapter devoted to ancient Greece in the Child's First History we used to wrestle with some years ago. Having got a safe distance away from the warriors the lady checked her flying steed, stood up on the wagon seat and looked back to have a better view of the perils she had escaped. She probably thought the cavalrymen were going to fire off something, or possibly be fired off themselves by their horses; but neither of these occurrences took place.

AN ANCIENT CARRIAGE.

A rare specimen of old time carriage building was halted in front of our office on Monday while on its way to the New Hampshire State Agricultural Fair at Manchester. It was an old chaise which was built in England, probably shortly after the accession of the House of Brunswick to the throne. Whether the notorious Georges or such royalty ever occupied its spacious seat is not known, but its history commences with its importation to this country for the comfort and convenience of the French Consul, in 1750. It was subsequently purchased by the late Col. William Gardner, a banker and commission merchant who resided at the corner of Gardner and Mechanic streets, and who was rated among the first men of the town in point of business enterprise and knowledge of maritime industries. He amassed quite a fortune, which enabled him to indulge in the then uncommon luxury of a carriage, with a colored servant for a driver. And the chaise referred to was the carriage. To attempt a description of this unique and grotesque concern is impossible. One must see it in order to appreciate it as a curiosity. There is actually material enough in one of its wheels to build a modern trotting gig, such as are used upon regular tracks. The seat is deep and wide enough for three full grown persons, with sufficient space in front and between the little stool-like seat for the driver to stretch the longest legs. It has a hunchy, squatty, homely look now,—the same lumbering outlines a century ago, however, being the admiration of all beholders, insomuch that many a covetous glance has been cast toward it, and the sound of its lumbering wheels has awakened feelings of envy against the fortunate possessor. Indeed it was the only vehicle that could be found suitable to convey about the town that great and good man, the Marquis de Lafayette, during his famous tour through this country.

But as kingdoms tremble and fall, and as thrones moulder and decay, so even the usefulness and beauty of this time honored relic of barbarism (in the art of carriage-making, at least) has passed away; and the irreverent beholder cannot conceal a smile as he looks upon it, even while remembering its antiquity and its famous history. It should properly have gone to the Centennial, where it would doubtless take the first prize among American antiquities and Revolutionary relics.

The chaise is now the property of Mr. John S. Wendell of this city, to whom it was bequeathed by the second wife of Col. Gardner, an aunt of Mr. Wendell.

JOTTINGS.

Mr. Harry Lombard was thrown from a wagon near the Eastern depot, Monday evening, and considerably hurt, being taken up insensible.

We regret to learn that George W. Guppy, Esq., of the Times, met with an accident on Saturday evening in the shape of a bad fall, from which he had not sufficiently recovered on Monday to take his accustomed place. Monday evening we were informed that his shoulder-blade is fractured—a very serious injury.

The Heavy Artillery have secured the second and third stories of the building containing Mr. J. Woodman Moses' store, for an armory and drill room, the upper floor being used for the latter purpose. The second story has been fitted up as an armory and reading room, and furnished with a large table, writing desk for the clerk or the convenience of members who may wish to write, chairs, etc., the floor being carpeted and the walls set off with pictures. The effect of the whole is very neat, and the room will no doubt be a popular place of resort during the winter evenings for the members of the company and their freinds.

Mr. L. V. Newell, at No. 31 Market street, (lately occupied by J. Rider & Son,) has flour, teas, and a full assortment of all such goods as go to make up the stock of a first class grocery store, for sale cheap, for cash. See advertisement.

On Monday morning a splendid team of twelve yoke of oxen was exhibited on Market square, before starting for exhibition at the State Fair at Manchester. The team is the property of Hon. Frank Jones, and attracted a great deal of attention and admiration. While on the square the team was photographed, and while the artist was fixing his camera considerable amusement was occasioned among the bystanders by the engineer of a charcoal wagon unconsciously driving his serious-looking horse and vehicle into such a position that his establishment would be pictured with the noble ox-team; this was not down in the programme, however, so the charcoal team was driven a little aside, and left out in the cold so far as the picture was concerned. If Mr. Jones does not get the prize for the best team of oxen owned by any one man, some other man must own a magnificent team.

Mayor Broughton has appointed Wednesday evening as the time for the hearing relative to the debt of the Portsmouth and Dover railroad. A lively session is anticipated, and the public are invited.

Messrs. C. H. Mendum & Co., having laid in even a larger stock than usual of seasonable goods, to which they are daily adding, invite the attention of ladies and gentlemen to the same before purchasing elsewhere. The quality of goods sold by this firm is known, and they have arranged their prices to suit the times; and any one in want of underclothing, small wares, dress fabrics, or anything else in their line, will do well to read Mendum & Co.'s advertisement,—and then deal with parties who advertise, who are always the most liberal in their dealings.

The committee of the depositors in the Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank agree with Mr. Kimball, the assignee, in recommending to depositors not to dispose of their bank books at a great sacrifice as some have done, but to hold on to them and wait the result. It is probable that a dividend of say 20 per cent. will be paid by the assignee in about sixty days, and the final result it is hoped may be as good or better than the estimate of 33 per cent. loss made by the Bank Commissioners.

Maynard's "Evenings at the Centennial" opened at Franklin Hall on Monday evening, a very large audience being present. The entertainment fully justifies the warm encomiums bestowed upon it by the press. It is the most extensive exhibition of the kind ever attempted, and three classes of persons in particular should not fail to visit it,—those who have been to the Centennial Exposition, those who are going, and those who won't be able to go,—the first to have their memories refreshed and to find out how much that is worth seeing they failed to see, the second to get an insight into what at the great Fair is best worth the attention of a person who has but a few days or a week to spare for sight-seeing, and the stay-at-homes to get (what they can get at this entertainment) a better idea of the Exposition than a hurried visit to Philadelphia would give them. The entertainment will be given each evening this week and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, with a change of views on each occasion.

—We don't know how long General Newton, Chief Engineer of the Hell Gate improvement, has been married, but it must be some time. When a newspaper interviewer asked him if he did not apprehend danger from his proximity to the preparations of the explosives, he said, "No; I feel easier here than I do at my home."—Danbury News.

—It was Pope who used to swear "God mend me," and swearing his favorite oath one day in the presence of a little boy, the boy looked at the diminished and misshapen form of the great poet and said: "God mend you, indeed! I think it would be a good deal easier to make a new one."

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complains, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

Spalding's Liquid Glue, always ready to use.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly becoming a general household remedy wherever coughs and lung complaints are known. In it is found a safe, sure, pleasant and speedy cure.

THE INTENSE ITCHING caused by certain diseases of the skin is speedily allayed by GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which entirely removes every species of eruption, is perfectly safe, and far cleaner and more effective than any ointment.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted with special reference to quiet and pleasant accommodations, at small cost.

BRIGHT EYES, REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 250 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel continually to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such inimitable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. How He Secured a Good Fit.

A middle-aged son of the Emerald Isle went into a Detroit clothing store recently, and said he wanted a "good, chape coat." He was a big, round-shouldered man, and his arms were almost as long as those of Sir Dan Donnelly, who could "button the extremities of his knee-breeches without stooping." The largest trade size of coats is No. 42, and the salesman took one of that size from the pile and tried it on his customer. It was too small every way, particularly in the sleeves. The cuffs were six inches above the wrists, and the customer said he felt like a pot of porridge that had boiled over. The salesman handed the coat to an assistant and said, "Bring here a 44 coat." The assistant fumbled a little at the pile, and brought back the same coat. It was tried and rejected, the customer remarking, "Sure, if I wore that coat they'd be sayin' I was a gossoon that wasn't done growin'." "You are an awful big man," said the astute salesman, winking at his fellow clerk; "I'll try a No. 48 on you." "Make it forty-nine, for the honor of ould Ireland," said the patriotic Milesian. "Forty-nine," was brought (the same coat) and also found too small. A Napoleonic look of decision illumined the face of the salesman as he confidently cried: "Bring here a fifty-two coat. I'm bound to fit you anyhow." The identical coat was again tried on, and the customer appeared satisfied. "I never get sleeves long enough for me," said he, "but I'll get them lengthened out, and then they will be all right." He bought the coat.

—The parties who captured the Minnesota bank robbers, seemed to think the dead ruffian a much more slippery customer than the living ones. A local paper states that "the four robbers were conveyed to Madelia, the dead man placed in the lock-up, while the living occupied rooms up stairs in the Vought Hotel."

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. For two years I was taken sick four years ago, lost one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I need not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been travelling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I would be able to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The improvement seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins County, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a well-tested English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the leading counties of Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc., and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Fashion Notes.

New bonnets have high, pointed crowns and close fitting capote fronts; in fact, the brim, or front, is so near the head that there remains only space for a slight plaiting of lace or silk, or a small twist.

Long and ample strings tied under the chin, are likely to be worn on bonnets. They are gros-grain on one side and satin on the other.

Velvet will be the fashionable material for dress bonnets.

Felt has had its day for hats.

There is no doubt but that the peculiar shade known as "cardinal red" will be much patronized.

In artificial floral trimmings, foliage is preferred to flowers, especially dark, quaint autumn leaves spotted as if by decay.

The most fashionable ear-rings are arrows of small diamonds.

Many tourists are investing in Indian cashmere costumes.

The new navy blue is almost black, it is so dark in shade, and it is most stylish when in combination with cardinal red.

Silk cords for fans and chatelaine bags, and moire bows for the same purpose, are replacing metal hooks and chains.

There are bright silk pockets introduced to wear with any toilet.

Russian belts studded with silver nails are a novelty.

In ornaments silver abounds.

New sleeve studs represents a calendar, with the date of the month, and the name of the saint for the day. On one of the blank spaces is the name of the wearer, and in the other, that of the donor.

Link-buttons are again fashionable, in place of sleeve studs.

The crowns of some of the new capotes are made entirely of feathers, and the brim is bordered with a band to correspond.

After foliage and flowers, fancy feathers will be the favorite trimmings on winter bonnets.

Ostrich plumes, so long in vogue, will give way for a time to blue-green lophophore feathers, the plumage of blackbirds, guinea-hens, peacocks, ducks, gulls and Russian green cocks.

Some of the feathers are tipped with jet.

Silk skirts of cardinal red are talked about to wear under cream-colored polonaises.

The new blue-violet velvet makes up charmingly into fanciful bodices.

There are velvets of two colors, such as Havana brown and chestnut brown, separated with thin yellow lines of satin.

Hell Gate.

There is a great deal yet to be done before the Hell Gate channel shall be opened to commerce. There are two other reefs almost as formidable as that at Hallett's Point, yet to be removed—and there is probably labor for a year in grappling for and removing the fragments of rock broken up by the recent explosion, so as to deepen the channel to the desired water-way of twenty-six feet. Besides the Mill Rock and Flood Rock reefs yet to be removed, work must still go on upon Diamond Reef, further down East River. In fact, gauging the labor by the estimated cost, the work at opening Hell Gate is not yet one-third completed. There has thus far been spent upon it about $1,700,000, and there is an unexpended balance of appropriation, yet available of about $250,000. The whole estimated cost of the work is over five and one-half millions, so that it will be seen there is a good deal yet to do. Sunday's explosion, however, was the critical point of experience, and what remains, though costly and tedious, will be comparatively easy of accomplishment if the money shall be provided. It appears that the recent explosion by "letting down" the Hallett's Point reef into the cavities excavated beneath it, had given in the channel, as demonstrated by soundings on Monday and Tuesday, a depth varying from eighteen to twenty feet at low water. This is ample for all vessels likely at present to use that channel, but the plan contemplates the grappling for the broken rocks and taking them out until twenty-six feet depth is secured. The channel will be dredged to this depth clear up to the newly-formed bank at Hallett's Point, that being a perpendicular wall of rock, so that the largest vessels can sail close to the shore. The next work done will be dredging out this channel and removing the surface of Diamond Reef. The latter is to be excavated, so as to give a depth of twenty-four feet at low water. Philadelphia Ledger.

A Curious Apple Tree.

There is growing in Pochuck, Vernon township, Sussex county, an apple tree which bears both sour and sweet apples. Not only this, but sour and sweet grow on the same limbs. One can pick an apple and find it intensely sour, then pick another from next to it and find it exceedingly sweet; still another can be picked from the same limb and it will be both sour and sweet—one half sweet, the other sour. Over a quarter of a century ago, one William Babb, now deceased, in experimenting, took a bud from an apple tree which bore greenings and another from a tree which bore sweet apples. Cutting them in half, he placed the sour and sweet halves together, and, budding them to the tree, the above has been the result. Some of the apples are entirely green in color, while others have a yellowish cast.—Newark Advertiser.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

One Amendment Needed.

There is soon to assemble in our State a Constitutional Convention to see if some amendments can be agreed upon to that respectable old document which has since 1792 done service to the people of New Hampshire. There are some cases which the law cannot reach, and perhaps some wise statesman can devise a plan by which a Constitutional safeguard may be adopted which will protect the people and the printers from the perpetration of what is commonly known as "original poetry." For example, take the following lines at the commencement of a "poem" published in an otherwise respectable newspaper, in one of the cities of New Hampshire, the editor of which claims to be a statesman and a scholar, (we wager he is off to the Centennial and will be mad enough on his return,) but as far as we know, the publisher of the paper and the poet are both at large, while the Insane Asylum was established for just such cases—but to the "poetry:"

"Come wife, come wife, upon my life,
The girls are nearly grown up,
I'll wager you they are courted too,
Let's see if they will own up!"

We submit that the clause in the bill of rights that provides that the "liberty of the press is essential to the security of freedom in our State" ought to be retouched! There should be some limit to the liberty of the press in these inflictions, and we earnestly commend the existing evil to the candid consideration of all candidates for the coming convention.

Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.

The excitement here in regard to the canvass in Ohio and Indiana continues to increase. From information obtained from reliable sources there is no doubt that the Ohio republicans will elect their ticket on the 10th of October. Some fears are entertained for Barnes, on account of his having been a temperance crusader,—but then it is claimed that what he will lose from this cause will be made good by gains from the temperance men. The republican nominees for Congress are men of ability and character, and making allowance for all possible losses, it is believed that Barnes will carry the State by a larger majority than Hayes did last year; and that with a possible loss of one district there will be a republican gain of seven or eight members of Congress. In Indiana the fray grows hot. Such monster mass meetings have never been known in the State before as are being held by the republicans. At the grand rally on the Tippecanoe battle grounds, it is estimated that over 20,000 persons were present; and their enthusiasm was unbounded. Powerful speeches were made by Gen. Harrison, Hon. James G. Blaine, Gen. Kilpatrick and others.

The recent speech by Col. Bob Ingersoll to the Boys in Blue at Indianapolis has been the absorbing topic of conversation among republicans here since it was first received. Of all his eloquent, masterly efforts, this is said to be the best he has ever delivered. And now Senator Conkling comes to the front, as appears from a Utica dispatch, announcing his first speech of the campaign in the Utica Opera House on Tuesday evening.

The success of the new four-and-a half per cent. loan is beyond all precedent in our financial affairs. In less than three weeks $40,000,000 of this loan has been subscribed for, and it is confidently expected by the Treasury Department that the whole $300,000,000 will be speedily absorbed. This is republican financiering, and as a political barometer shows the faith that large capitalists have in the success of the republican party next November. Capital is sensitive; and if it was believed by the business men of the country that there was any chance for the Tildenites to get control of our Government and by their financial policy unsettle securities and bring about a shrinkage of values, they would have been very chary about taking hold of the new loan. Democrats who are bond-holders will more than likely take this view of the matter, and hesitate about placing in power a party that by its financial policy will disturb the stability and depreciate the value of their securities.

The commission authorized by Congress to select the site for the Naval statue, "Peace," have selected the intersection of Pennsylvania Avenue and First St. N. W., just at the main entrance of the Capitol grounds. There will be a large circle at this point, and in the centre of this the statue will be erected. The monument was made by Franklin Simmons in Rome, and was recently brought to this city on the U. S. S. Supply. It is of white marble, and was paid for by contributions of officers and men in the navy.

Centennial visitors continue to pour in and out of the city. The centennial year will do much for Washington; not by the amount these visitors leave here, but by the impressions they carry away with them. Washington is now the most beautiful city in this country, and is destined to be the most healthy and beautiful city in the world. These visitors go away, feeling that the capitol of the Nation is common property, in which all have an interest and all should have a pride. The denunciations which have been spread broadcast by the press of the country have done much to prejudice the minds of people at a distance, but this disappears as soon as they "see with their own eyes." MAXWELL.

YORK, ME., Sept. 30.

Eds. Chronicle: After studying the "puffs" that ye editors are profusely scattering around regarding "The Shoals Hotels" and others nearer your vicinity, I want to say a word in favor of the Marshall House at York harbor, in every respect the finest house for location and appointments, of any along shore,—and under its new management the present season, the proprietor has made for the House a reputation better than it ever before held. Mr. Edward S. Marshall has loaded the tables promptly and fully from all the regular edibles, as well as from the delicacies of the season.

The old Cape Neddick House—of ye olden time under "Ma'am Freeman,"—has, under its new proprietor and worthy lady, re-established its former reputation for "a good square meal at a fair price." "Likewise the Horse" fares properly; Mr. Grant feeds as directed, and as the country-hotel keeper had it, "No korn ner otes takin from the krib after feedin." Suffice it to say that man and beast are properly cared for and courteous treatment is allotted to all. P.

News and Notes.

Edward Hopkins, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., a retired Methodist minister, has disappeared, leaving $20,000 of debt behind him. Forgery is charged against him.

In Yougal harbor, Ireland, on Saturday evening, a ferry-boat swamped and fourteen persons were drowned.

Mr. James Redpath is negotiating for a large emigration of negroes from Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, where their civil rights, as he believes, soon will be overthrown. He proposes, if the United States will not set apart a territory for them, to arrange with Mexico and Brazil for gigantic emigration, until the loss of labor in the Gulf States thus created compels the land-owning class to stop what Mr. Redpath terms their "hypocritical deprecating of violence," and to rise up and end it in fact. Throughout Mississippi and Alabama the negroes are said to be eager for this movement.

Mr. Theodore Tilton belongs, apparently, to the blow-hot, blow-cold family. He is cold enough thinking about other's people's interests, but seems to have his warm side. The smallest of several figures in a scandal once colossal but now picayune, since such general worthlessness has fallen upon all its participants, Mr. Tilton made the best of it commercially, and, we had hoped, purchased his opportunity to get out of the way and bathe his sorrows in cambric. Instead of this behavior, Tilton goes to the wrong berth, lies down in it, is found in it, and is exposed standing up in his night-shirt with his back hair down. No doubt he wears long hose and silver buckles above his knees, for he was built in sections, and the top section is imperfect.—G. A. Townsand.

John A. Jordan, the janitor of the Albany depot in Boston, who killed an unknown tramp last June, was on Saturday sentenced to two years in prison. The evidence showed that the tramp commenced the trouble which resulted in his death.

Hon. Joseph Warren, editor of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier and a member of the democratic State Central Committee and National Executive Committee, died on Monday.

Greece and Russia are hurrying up their preparations for war. The reports from Servia and Turkey conflict, agreeing only in the statement that the fighting last week was the severest that has yet occurred. Each party claims to have utterly defeated the other, of course.

George Russell, son of an Episcopal clergyman of New York, died suddenly in Chicago, Monday. He was a gambler.

Mr. J. L. Thompson, freight agent in Camden, Me., received a letter last week stating that a half-barrel sent from Calais and directed to Mr. Dana, editor of the Sun, remained in the freight house in New York, Mr. Dana refusing to take it, saying that somebody might "be trying to blow him up with dynamite." Mr. Thompson, in apprising himself of the contents of the package, discovered a fiendish plot on the part of Hon. J. S. Pike to disintegrate Mr. Dana's atoms. The explosive compound employed in the fell attempt was a barrel of Quoddy cranberries preserved in water.

Mr. Nathaniel G. Fuller, of Boston, with his wife and five children, are supposed to have been lost at sea through the wreck of ship Radiant, which left Calcutta some time ago, and has not since been heard of. The ship is supposed to have foundered in a cyclone, with all on board.

The sinking of an unknown schooner, about two miles off Clinton, Conn., on Thursday last, was witnessed by a number of Clinton people. Charles Stevens, a messenger between Clinton and New Haven, witnessed the sinking of the schooner, which was a two-master, and says that in his opinion all on board were drowned, as no boat was seen to leave the craft. The Bridgeport Farmer of Saturday says: "It is reported that an unknown schooner sunk off Penfield's Reef, yesterday, spectators of the disaster saying that she could not have gone under any quicker if the bottom had dropped out. The crew of the vessel White Rock, of Southport, also report seeing about eight feet of the mast of a vessel sticking out of the water at the place where the wreck is said to have occurred. The wrecked vessel lies in nearly sixty feet of water. Nothing is known of her name or destination, or the cause of her sudden submersion. It is supposed that all the crew went down with the boat."

John Bullard, a farmer of Shrewsbury, Mass., was murdered in his house with a hatchet by some unknown person on the evening of Oct. 2d. Robbery was the object.

A blind music teacher in New York killed his wife and three-year-old child, and then himself, on Sunday.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company went to Worcester from Boston on Monday.

A French woman named Dominique was run over by the cars at Great Falls, Monday, and fatally injured.

The entire sophomore class at Williams College was expelled on Monday for rushing the freshmen on Saturday. A few such examples will go far toward stopping the exhibitions of ruffianism which disgrace the various colleges.

Two revolutionary leaders named Padilla and Melquiades, of Mexico, recently agreed to settle a difficulty with broadswords. Padilla severed Melquiades' head from the body by a stroke of his sword. A friend of the headless chief took a turn at Padilla next, killing him on the spot, and all were happy.

The London News hears that Russia and the United States concluded a treaty last August, by which the former cedes the port of Okholsk in Siberia, and the adjacent territory on the seashore, in exchange for iron-clads and the sum of 16,000,000 rubles, and that a Russian crew has already left for America.

William Francis and his brother Isaac have been arrested at Lewiston, Me., for stealing articles from the Maine Central Railroad freight cars. Both are in jail.

A gang of boy burglars, ranging from thirteen to seventeen years old, who have committed several robberies, has been broken up by the police of Portland, Me. The boys were of respectable families, but their ambition to become noble thieves and outcasts had been fired by reading "dime novels." The vigorous application of a shingle to the silly boys would be a good thing in such cases, with a small dose of imprisonment—say forty years at hard labor—for the authors, publishers and venders of the contemptible trash which is doing so much to poison the minds of the young.

—The Independent says: "A late English traveller found a simple-minded Baptist mission church in far off Burmah, using for the communion service, and we doubt not with God's blessing, Bass' pale ale, instead of wine. The opening of the frothing bottle on the communion table seemed not quite decorous to the visitor, who presented the pastor with a half-dozen bottles of claret for sacramental use."

—An Iowa Judge says that a man may legally kiss his hired girl if he can swear he thought it was his wife. That's rather putting a premium on perjury.

JOTTINGS.

Franklin Hall was filled again on Tuesday evening by visitors to Maynard's great Centennial Exposition, which fully merits the large patronage it is receiving. There is to be a matinee this (Wednesday) afternoon for the express accommodation of children and such ladies as cannot attend evenings; the hall should be crowded with the little people, for it is the only chance they are likely to have to get an idea of the great National exhibition.

The tickets from Portsmouth to Philadelphia advertised by Mr. Barrett at $10.70 for the round trip, will be good on any train from this city on Monday or Tuesday, Oct. 9th and 10th, and to return any time within thirty days. The trains on the Fall River Line leave the Old Colony depot in Boston at 4:30 (accommodation) and 6 o'clock, (steamboat express.) The ticket includes transfer of baggage (if any) in New York, but does not, of course, include stateroom on board the steamer, which are always a special charge, and should be secured in advance if possible.

The meeting of the City Councils, called for this evening at the Court House by Mayor Broughton, is one which will interest every tax payer, as the advisability of the city taking its pro rata of the new issue of Portsmouth & Dover Railroad stock will be considered.

Mr. L. V. Newell thinks a squash in his store is "some pumpkins" just because it weighs one hundred and seventeen pounds. Squash pie is expected to be quite cheap this Fall.

A six-year-old daughter of Mr. B. F. Burke, who resides at No. 28 Hanover street, was knocked down by a team one day last week while on her way to school, and a wheel passed over the upper part of her chest, injuring her somewhat internally but breaking no bones. She is now getting along all right.

The Rye correspondent of the Exeter News-Letter writes that paper that "the town has several road-fights on its hands, which are destined to be expensive affairs, whether it is beaten or victorious in the legal battle. If beaten, we shall have to build the roads at an expense of several thousand dollars, and if not beaten, the law's delay and the extortionate charges of the lawyers will amount to about the same thing. One case has already been decided against the town, and the others undoubtedly will be. The simple truth is, the town has "put its foot in it" by proclaiming open warfare upon all new roads. Had it been wise it would have exercised a just discrimination. As it is, it stands a lively chance of being beaten in all its contests."

DeWitt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar paraded shortly after noon on Tuesday, with the Cornet Band, and proceeded to the depot where they took a special train for Dover Point. Dinner was served the Sir Knights at the Cocheco House. On their return to this city they had a street parade; and in the evening there was a levee at Congress Hall.

At the ninth annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of New Hampshire, held at Keene on Friday, Rev. W. H. Hadley of Newington gave an address, and Rev. William A. Rand of Seabrook conducted a praise meeting. Dr. E. B. Goodall of this city was chosen a member of the State committee for the ensuing year.

Messrs. J. E. Ham & Co., 27 Market street, advertise the receipt of their stock of Fall and Winter suitings, which they will be pleased to make up for their customers in the latest styles. They have also a full line of gentlemen's furnishing goods and small wares.

The United States Official Postal Guide, revised and published quarterly by H. O. Houghton and Company, Boston, is a recognized authority on postal matters, having the sanction of the Post-office Department, of which, indeed, it is the official organ. The October number, just issued, is literally crammed with valuable matter and information, useful to every one who employs the mails. Its four hundred pages contain two complete alphabetical lists of all the post-offices in the United States, one arranged by States and counties; a list of money-order offices, domestic and international; rates of foreign and domestic postage on all classes of mail matter; hours of arrival and closing of mails in all the principal cities; days of sailing of foreign mail steamers; hints and suggestions to the public about money orders, registered letters, etc. The present number also gives the new rates of postage on third-class matter, as fixed at the last session of Congress, with new regulations relative to unmailable matter; and an ingenious device showing the geographical position in their respective States of all the counties in the United States. Price 50 cents a number; $1.50 a year. Cloth bound copies of the October number can be obtained for $1. Subscriptions received at the Post-office.

David L. Magoon, the alleged wife poisoner, is to be tried here on the 24th inst., —that is, his trial is set to commence on that day, though it will probably last till the cows come home. The government counsel claim to have important new evidence to introduce. Messrs. Small and Frink will conduct the case for the State, Hatch and Page for the defence.

The New York correspondent of the Times says of Gov. Hayes: "Examination of the Congressional record shows that he stood by the infamous salary steal like a man, always responding with a prompt 'aye' when any question arose to help the grab through. When it was past Hayes took the money and still keeps it." This is a fair illustration of the reckless disregard of truth and honor by the Tilden "reformers." The writer of that letter—whether a member of Tilden's "literary bureau" for furnishing campaign letters and editorials to the country press, or some one else,—knew that he was telling a flat-footed lie when he wrote it, as Gov. Hayes was not in Congress at the time of "the infamous salary steal," and had not been for years. He must furthermore have known that Gov. Hayes voted "no" at every stage of the bill which raised Congressmen's salaries when he was in Congress, years before the "infamous salary steal," though Thomas A. Hendricks voted "yes" every time! But it is not a matter to wonder at that the democracy have to stick to campaign falsehoods against Gov. Hayes even after they have a hundred times been proved to be false, for "reformer" Dorsheimer in his Boston speech said that one of the first moves made by the Tildenites after Hayes was nominated was to "send a man to Ohio" to hunt up his history, and that the reform spy could actually find nothing on which to base even a campaign slander.

We have received from O. Ditson & Co., Boston, the following pieces of music: Thy Name, song, by Harrison Millard; Kissing Through the Railing, song, words by J. L. Feeney, music by Sam'l H. Speck; Goodbye, Sweetheart, galop, by J. S. Knight; Compositions for the piano-forte, by George Lamothe; Flowers of Autumn, herbsthuthen, by Gustav Lange.

ATTENTION!

Portsmouth Cavalry Co.: You are hereby notified to meet at the armory on Fleet st. on FRIDAY at 2:30 P. M., for drill at the Plains. Per order of the Captain.

C. B. MASON, 1st. Segrt.

Political.

The solid South is in favor of Tilden. Did ever the South make a mistake in the selection of their agents and tools at the North? Did they make a mistake in Franklin Pierce? Did they make a mistake in James Buchanan? Is it likely they have made a mistake in Samuel J. Tilden?—St. Paul Press. (Ind.)

"We incline to the belief," says the New York Public, "that Tilden and reform will not win. There is too much Tilden and not enough reform about it."

Judge Abbott, democratic member of Congress from the Fourth District of Massachusetts, declines to run again, and it is probable that Hon. Wm. Gaston will be nominated in his place. Judge Abbott was never elected, but was squarely defeated by Mr. Frost, but he secured the seat by a partisan vote in the House, he evidently does not care to try it again, as he has no hope that there will be another Confederate House to seat him when defeated at the polls. Ex-Gov. Gaston will be allowed the honor of receiving a crushing defeat from Mr. Frost, in return for having been thrown overboard by the democratic State convention at the dictation of Tilden, Kelly, Morrissey & Co.

A tremendous mare's nest has been discovered by the Washington correspondent of the Boston Post, and his account is honored with "double leads" in that paper. It is nothing less than the fact that the republican leaders have absolutely given up Indiana and have scarcely a hope of Ohio, and that on a democratic victory in those two States Mr. Hayes is to be forced off the ticket and Gen. Grant substituted! Hard up for a sensation, that writer.

It is a little against the theory that these race disturbances in the South are promoted wholly by the blacks, when each report contains the news: "Six negroes and one white man were killed," and so on in this proportion. Such warfare is hardly encouraging for the negroes. It is singular that none of the carpet-baggers ever get slaughtered. Perhaps being more intelligent and cunning, it is not all one-sided to tackle them.—New Haven Union (dem.)

Chester Fair.

Farmers and citizens in general need a Fair as a sort of holiday, although this is not its chief benefit. County Fairs were the earliest which were established. They were called Agricultural Societies, Rockingham County had one as early, we think, as 1823. It continued several years, as we are sure it had its annual exhibit in Exeter in 1829. The address that year was by Col. Cutter, of Portsmouth. A parody of the Fair was published in a small paper printed in Exeter, called the Hive. In it was the following relative to the address.

"Into the meeting-house I went
To hear the great oration.
'Bout pork and cheese and other things,
In this ere Yankee nation.
A little man addressed the folks,
They called him Mr. Cutter;
Who, grindstones called our best of cheese,
And soap grease named our butter.
He said our hogs had heads too long,
Our horses were not stout;
By gosh! I could not bear so much,
And so I cleared right out."

This Society ran down. In later years a County Fair was established; that ran down. Another followed and that failed. Before it ceased to be, Portsmouth and vicinity organized one, and that went the way of the others. So in time, in some places, town fairs were established. Chester has had one a number of years.

Chester Fair this year was held Sept. 29. The attendance was large. The town team appeared about half-past ten o'clock. It was not so large at this time as formerly, twenty pairs being in line. It was driven through some of the principal streets, with music by the band. In the pens on the grounds were horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, some of them making a good show. There were also different breeds of hens. In the Hall was a good show of fruits and vegetables. Ladies had an exhibition, not only of the products of the dairy, but of different fabrics of their hand work. The day was pleasant, and all things passed off finely. We suppose there was speaking, but we left before that came on. J. F.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. Robert Sandown, of Haverhill, has a bushel-and-a-half basket which has been in use more or less for 110 years, and is still in a good state of preservation. The basket was made by Mr. Sandown's great uncle, who died 103 years ago.

L. Hastings' barn, at Monroe, was burned on Sunday. Loss $800; insured in the New Hampshire for $650. It is supposed to have been fired by a man who was drunk.

A Grand Record.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first brought to the notice of the American public. To-day, it is the most popular remedy on this continent for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, nervousness, urinary and uterine complains, gout, rheumatism, intermittent and remittent fevers, and is widely used in South and Central America, Mexico, the West Indies and Australia, as a preventive and remedy for malarious disorders, and for many other maladies to the relief of which it is adapted. The record of its victories is written in the testimonials of thousands whom it has cured, to many of which the widest publicity has been given; it has won the emphatic sanction of leading members of the medical profession, and it has repeatedly been made the subject of encomiums by the home and foreign press. Comment on the above facts is unnecessary. We leave the public to draw its own conclusions.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

Spalding's Liquid Glue, always ready to use.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly becoming a general household remedy wherever coughs and lung complaints are known. In it is found a safe, sure, pleasant and speedy cure.

THE INTENSE ITCHING caused by certain diseases of the skin is speedily allayed by GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which entirely removes every species of eruption, is perfectly safe, and far cleaner and more effective than any ointment.

The new Atlas Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted with special reference to quiet and pleasant accommodations, at small cost.

BRIGHT EYES, REGULAR FEATURES and a graceful figure fail to produce their due effect if the complexion is defaced with pimples or blotches, or the skin is rough or harsh. To remedy these defects use GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP.

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first-class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.,

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case, which unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

Daily Chronicle.

—The red and gray squirrels do not lay by winter stores; their cheeks are made without pockets and whatever they transport is carried in the teeth. They are more or less active all winter, but October and November are their festival months. Invade some butternut or hickory-nut grove on a frosty October morning, and hear the red squirrel beat the "juba" on a horizontal branch. It is a most lively jig, what the boys call a "regular break-down," interspersed with squeals and snickers and derisive laughter. The most noticeable peculiarity about the vocal part of it is the fact that it is a kind of duet. In other words, by some ventriloquial trick he appears to accompany himself, as if his voice split up, a part forming a low guttural sound, and a part a shrill nasal sound.

—A British journal pays this pretty compliment to an American bard; "Aldrich says: 'As wild as the winds that tear the curled red leaf in the air, is the song that I have never sung.' The man who knows a song like that, and nobly forbears to sing it, is a credit to any country."

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the last three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.
Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 8th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken four years ago I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.
Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, and they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.
JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take great pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.
Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I treat I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been travelling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well, and advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Texas, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.
Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.
MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating, it increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious trying climate of New England.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the choice of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cow weed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Experience with a Spook Tester.

It seems that a spook tester has been invented (or rather adjusted to circumstances) that is more effective than a shot gun. Sweet Katy King might have been killed, you know, if there had been a naughty person with fire-arms wicked enough to interrupt the proceedings with a gunpowder test. But there is a tack that saves life and yet has a very happy influence in making apparent the material element in the mediumistics. See this little brightness in the records, taken from the editorial page of the New York Times:

"There is nothing more revolting to a sensitive ghost than the sharp, flat headed tacks known to the artists as 'drawing tacks.' When one of these tacks is tossed on the stage where materialized ghosts are disporting themselves, it invariably remains with its point upward. It may readily be conceived that the unsuspecting barefooted ghost who treads heavily on such a treacherous and penetrating tack would have a right to manifest a hearty and violent indignation. Indeed almost any amount of language would be pardoned by all humane men. But what did the ghost of Daniel Webster do when he recently tried to walk over a stage strewn with drawing tacks, during a 'materializing seance' in a Wisconsin town? When the first tack entered that ostensible ghost's right foot he calmly lifted up his injured limb and undertook to withdraw the intrusive bit of steel. It was not until, in his efforts to balance himself on one leg, he ran another tack in his left foot, that he broke the silence by softly remarking an 'ouch,' and it is doubtful if he would have repeated that statement or ventured upon any other had he not incautiously sat down, and thus inserted two more tacks into his person. In these circumstances he might have totally lost his temper, and no man could have had a word of blame for him; but instead of letting his ghostly passions rise he merely expressed his views of the matter by the simple and touching remark: 'Well! by gosh!' and he hurriedly withdrew into the mystic cabinet."

Newspapers at the Centennial.

The special correspondent of the London Times says it would be difficult to find an apter illustration of the big way in which the Americans do things than that furnished by the "centennial newspaper building," in the exhibition grounds. Here you may see any one, or, if you like, all of the 8,129 newspapers published regularly in the United States, and see them, one and all for nothing! You are not only permitted as a favor to see them, but invited, nay, pressed, to confer the favor of entering the building and calling for what paper you like. It is about as cool and agreeable a place—quite apart from its literary attractions—as a visitor to the exhibition could wish to be offered a chair in. He may at first wonder how, among 8,000 papers, among them such mighty sheets as the New York Herald, he is to get at the small, loved print of his home, thousands of miles away, it may be, over the Rocky Mountains. But the management is so simple that, by consulting the catalogue, or even without the aid of the catalogue, any one can at once find whatever newspaper he wants. They are pigeon-holed on shelves in the alphabetical order of their States or Territories and their towns, the names of which are clearly labelled on the shelves. The proprietors of the centennial newspaper building are advertising agents,—Messrs. G. P. Rowell & Co., of New York. Their enterprise will cost altogether about $20,000, or £4,000, including the building and the expenses of "running" it for six months. The 8,000 and odd American newspapers are declared, by the same authority, to exceed "the combined issues of all the other nations of the earth."

Tit for Tat.

A Paris paper relates, on the occasion of the recent journey of the German emperor to Italy, a piquant anecdote, the event having occurred in 1864, when William I., then King of Prussia, was travelling incognito in Hungary. In the neighborhood of Treplitz he met a judge leisurely walking on the high road and smoking a porcelain pipe. His majesty accosted the functionary with his usual freedom: "Who are you, my man?" "Judge in the district law court," replied the magistrate, a little surprised. "Are you satisfied with your position?" "Certainly." "Then I congratulate you." The king was moving off, when the Judge detained him by saying: "And you, my man, who are you?" The sovereign made a start of surprise, then, expecting to confound his questioner, "I am the king of Prussia." The Hungarian remained impassable. "Are you satisfied with your position?" continued he. "Certainly," exclaimed William, disturbed by the indifference of his interlocutor. "Then I congratulate you," said the Magyar, saluting his majesty with an air of good fellowship, and continuing his promenade. The tale was told throughout Germany, but not by King William.

Seeing for Two.

I saw a youngish negro man, who was very black and very stalwart, and he spoke in a low, mellow voice. He had a rugged, uncouth, but kindly face; and he was tenderly and carefully leading about an old blind woman whom he called mother. He stopped before anything that interested him, and explained it to her in a very curious and graphic manner. His attention was arrested by a beautiful Cupid and Psyche: "Dis is a white mammy and her baby, and they has just got no clo' onto 'em at all to speak of, and he is kissin' of her like mischief, to be shush. I'se kind o' glad you can't see 'em, 'cause you'd be flustered like 'cause they don't stay in the house till they dresses themselves. All these figgers seem to be scarce of clo', but they is mighty pooty, only they be too white to be any 'lation to you and me, mammy. They be one nigger among 'em which is crying over a handkerchief. They call him Othello. Mebbe his mother is dead and he can't fetch her to the show, poor fellow! Everybody ain't as comfortable as we be, mammy, be they?" Chicago Times' letter.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would 'leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

The Shrewsbury Tragedy.

The excitement over the murder of John Bullard at his home in Shrewsbury has not abated, and speculation as to the murderer continues. A closer examination of the body of the murdered man indicates that a heavy blow was struck upon the back of the head, knocking the victim unconscious to the floor, after which the head had been nearly severed from the body with the edge of the axe. There were no marks of a struggle upon the limbs or trunk of the body, and the clothing was not so disarranged as to indicate a struggle; in this regard there was only such a displacement of the clothing as would be necessary to take the wallet and keys from the trowsers' pockets. It was apparent that the assassin approached his victim stealthily from behind, and stunned him by the blow upon the back of his head, and then finished his bloody work at his leisure. There were bloody finger marks on the pocket-book, and also upon the front door. When found, the blood was still oozing from the body, and had only partly coagulated on the floor, the awful deed having evidently been committed within an hour. The fatal axe was a small one which had been in use about the place for some time. Charles, the brother of the victim, is not able to tell where it is, as it had been the custom of the brothers to leave it lying about wherever they had use for it.

The town officers, have made all possible investigations, but succeeded in establishing no theory which points to the assassin. It was evident that Charles Bullard was innocent, his absence from home when the deed must have been committed, and the entire absence of blood upon his person or clothing exonerating him. Attention was next turned to his brother John, living a mile away, and he was visited. He was found in bed, and satisfied his examiners that he was innocent, he having been at home all the evening with several neighbors, who did not leave him until nearly 9 o'clock, or about the time the murder was discovered. The general impression at first was that the deed was perpetrated by tramps, but against this theory is the fact that the use of the hatchet, which was found by the murderer in the dark, indicates the presence of some one familiar with the premises.

The only suspicious circumstance against the brothers is the fact that the trio here had disagreements, growing out of their domestic affairs, and it is said, have sometimes exchanged blows; but those who know them best do not credit the idea that either of the survivors is guilty.

New Hampshire Items.

The New Hampshire State Fair is a success in point of a good show, and good attendance. The modern game of Polo (skilled horse back riding) was down on the programme for Wednesday.

About a year ago some citizens of North Hampton tore down the old school house there in order to allow John W. F. Hobbs to build another one and give it to the town. John French, his sons, Oliver and John, and Abraham Hobbs were arrested, on Monday and tried as principals in the tearing down of the school house. The affair created great excitement at the time, and the persons engaged in it were strongly supported.

News and Notes.

Julius Green, a colored preacher, was shot at on Wednesday night, in West Feliciana, La., but escaped in the brush. The same parties then shot and killed Isaac Mitchell, a leading colored republican.

The republicans have undoubtedly carried Colorado by a decided majority and elected the entire State ticket, the Congressmen, and secured the Legislature by a majority in both branches. This Legislature elects two United States Senators and three Presidential electors.

A Maine Romance.

About the time Camp Berry was established, says the Portland Press, a young lady of this city and a soldier who was stationed there became acquainted. The couple met quite often after the acquaintance was formed, and a strong attachment ending in an engagement followed. The young man presented his betrothed with an elegant ring. Soon after the engagement the regiment to which the soldier was attached was ordered to report to the front at once. The news of the intended departure was a hard blow to the young people. But both were patriotic and they parted as hundreds of others did during the rebellion. After the departure the billet doux were received and sent in rapid succession. This state of affairs went on for something like a year, when alas it came to a sudden termination. One day the young lady received a very cool letter from her lover so much unlike all other letters she had received that she at once wrote to him, saying she wished to be released from her engagement, but giving no reason for the change in her affections. When the letter was received by the soldier in camp, he was utterly confounded. He had never written any but words of kindness and affection to her, and why she should treat him so cruelly was more than he could tell. He grieved for some months over his disappointment, and at last left the army and went to California to "rough it" and, if possible, forget his sorrow. Here he remained until a few months ago, when he unexpectedly received a letter from an unknown source. It was the dying confession of an old comrade who had caused all the trouble, and on his death-bed had confessed that he had got hold of the lover's letters and destroyed them, sending others of his own manufacture to the lady in this city. He had palmed off his writing by copying the original. He being an excellent penman, this was not a difficult matter.

When the confession was fully authenticated the man at once started for this city to find his first and only love. By a few enquiries after reaching this city he learned her residence, and better still, that she, like himself, had remained unmarried. He made haste to call upon her, and to his surprise discovered the ring upon her finger where he had placed it fourteen years before. A few words of explanation made them as near and dear to each other as ever, and to cut a long story short, it was arranged that they should be married at once, and the wedding is to take place the present week at one of our city churches. The happy couple will start at once for the Centennial.

The Advertising Columns.

Regarded in a liberal light, the advertising columns of a newspaper are of no inconsiderable importance, for no reader of the public press is properly informed or fully acquainted with the news of the day until he has thoroughly read the advertisements. They are the pulse of commerce and universal activity, and contain not only rare specimens of human idiosyncrasies, but are illustrative of life in every possible phase, and are a necessary auxiliary to the development of arts and sciences as well as to the agricultural interest of the locality of their publication. They minister to love; they speak of change; they betimes excite a smile, sometimes a tear. To the sick they promise health, to the poor wealth; the pleasure-seeker is posted on current amusements; the book-buyer learns the price, popularity, and title of the last new work; in fact, every want of ordinary life is expressed or suppositiously supplied by the advertising department of the ordinary newspaper.

Advertisements are addressed to an entire community, whether they are of a personal or general nature, and are an infallible index of the prosperity of the community from whence they emanate. That advertising pays is evinced by the long continuity of different specials in the press generally; and hence, where it has proven remunerative to advertisers from the extreme limits of the Union, to insert their briefly worded descriptions of specialties in our local press, so it will for our local dealers and manufacturers to patronize this same local press.

The depression of business offers no tangible argument against advertising; rather should the advertiser be stimulated to renewed activity, for the ostensible purpose of waking up customers, and thus animating the general commercial, agricultural, and domestic interest of depressed communities. Every paper is devoted to some special purpose, that is, to expound and advocate the interest of certain industries; and on this plea we are told that "it is of no interest to me to advertise in your paper, as you do not reach my class of customers." We cannot see the anomaly, for though a paper may have a larger rural than a city circulation, yet the wants of the farming community are identical with those of crowded thoroughfares.

Therefore it behooves the merchants and manufacturers, the professional and non-professional men, to advertise liberally, advertise courageously, and the public to read the advertisements and profit by them in patronizing the advertisers.—Printers' Circular.

Tell-Tale Lips.

I have observed that lips become more or less contracted in the course of years, in proportion as they are accustomed to express good humor and generosity, or peevishness or a contracted mind. Remark the effect which a moment of ill-temper and grudgingness has upon the lips, and judge what may be expected from an habitual series of such movements. Remark the reverse, and make similar judgment. The mouth is the frankest part of the face; it cannot in the least conceal its sensations. We can neither hide ill-temper with it or good; we may affect what we please, but affectation will not help us. In a wrong cause it will only make our observers resent the endeavor to impose on them. The mouth is the seat of one class of emotions, as the eyes are of another; or rather, it expresses the same emotions, but in greater detail, and with a greater irrepressible tendency to be in motion. It is the region of smiles and dimples, and of trembling earnestness; of a sharp sorrow, or full-breathing joy, of candor, of reserve, of anxious care, or liberal sympathy. The mouth, out of its many sensibilities, may be fancied as throwing up one great expression into the eye—as many lights in a city reflect a broad lustre into the heavens.—Leigh Hunt.

—Having plenty of bread, a man should not be particular as to which side it is buttered on.

—Old Mr. Thorp went into the parlor the other night at the witching hour of 11.45 and found the room unlighted, and his daughter and a dear friend, one of the dual form of garmenture variety, occupying the tete-a-tete in the corner. "Evangeline," the old man said sternly, "this is scandalous." "Yes, papa," she answered sweetly, it is candleless because times are so hard and lights costs so much that Ferdinand and I said we would try and get along with just the starlight." And the old gentleman turned about in speechless amazement and tried to walk out of the room through a panel in the wall paper.

—When Araham Lincoln was a lawyer in Illinois he and the Judge once got to bantering one another about trading horses, and it was agreed that the next morning at nine o'clock they should make a trade, the horses to be unseen up to that hour, and no backing out, under a forfeiture of twenty-five dollars. At the hour appointed the Judge came up, leading the sorriest looking specimen of a horse ever seen in those parts. In a few minutes Mr. Lincoln was seen approaching with a wooden saw-horse upon his shoulders. Great were the shouts and the laughter of the crowd, and both were greatly increased when Mr. Lincoln, on surveying the Judge's animal, set down his saw-horse and exclaimed; "Well, Judge, this is the first time I ever got the worse of it in a horse trade!"

How to Grow Cheerful,

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority—of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, October 4, before Batchelder, Justice:

Eliza Lolley and Jennie W. Hanscom whose business it is to enact the part of the spider in the familar drama of the "spider and the fly," took two or three extra drinks rather than say "no," and made the air resound with their drunken brawls. As there was more rum than melody in their voices the neighbors didn't enjoy it and said so to the police, who introduced them in a formal manner to our new Judge. Judge Batchelder read the letter of introduction and concluded that the expense of this effervescence of bad rum should be about $11.90, which was promptly liquidated. And now these two young damsels are at liberty again to ply their vocation, flavoring their breaths with bad whiskey and onions meanwhile.

Charles T. Tibbetts failed to clearly show that he was not guilty of a charge of drunkenness that had been preferred against him and he was held within the iron grip of the law while he fumbled over his scanty stock of scrip for $9.90.

The case of Angus McLean differed slightly from that of his comrade Tibbetts in that Angus when confronted by the charge of drunkenness, acknowledged the corn, or rather admitted that he was corned. Extenuating circumstances were put in as a reason for the indiscretion, however, which only served to add to the expense of the trial, and so when Angus came to settle up he found staring him in the face those inexorable figures that so thoroughly spoil a ten dollar bill, $9.90; $3 fine and $6.90 costs.

A poor, miserable specimen of broken down humanity, who goes by the name of George Alton, and whose livelihood is obtained by bumming on the public, was adjudged to be able to render some equivalent for his bread and was sentenced to three months' labor at Brentwood, to work out the sum of $9.18, his fine and costs.

David Welch was arraigned to show cause if any he had why he allowed his restless spirit to move him to desert from the House of Correction before the expiration of the time for which he was sentenced. His argument being weak and his explanation thin, he was sent back to try it over again with 30 days additional to his former sentence, and pay costs of prosecution.

JOTTINGS.

The Supreme Court for this county opens here on the 17th inst. There are 528 civil cases on the docket and but 21 criminal cases left on it under the administration of the late Solicitor, Hon. John S. H. Frink. At the opening of the court there will probably be 250 new entries of civil cases and 50 new entries of criminal cases, making 800 cases on the docket to be adjudicated. Hon. Charles Doe, Chief Justice, will preside at this term. Hon. William B. Small, the recently appointed Solicitor, will look after the interests of the Government cases, and Colonel J. Horace Kent, the new Sheriff, will take charge of the court.

Another bread manufactory is soon to be started in this city, to be called the "People's Bakery," the old Rice stand at the foot of Daniel street having been leased for the purpose. Quite an attractive looking bread wagon lettered "Domestic Home Bakery" represents the establishment. It is to be conducted by Mr. William McIver, son of the proprietor of the Seaman's Home.

The young lady who writes such gushing love letters as were picked up near the Post Office on Wednesday morning, should take better care of her missives, and see to it that her pockets are tight.

Maynard's Exhibition at Franklin Hall is eminently worthy of a liberal patronage. Every evening this week.

The Portsmouth Cavalry company has a drill at the Plains to-morrow afternoon. They are evidently getting posted up for the Governor's inspection, Oct. 23.

Mr. Wm. J. LeMoyne the celebrated actor with a good cast will play "Dombey and Son" at the Temple Oct. 10. See advertisement.

The members of De Witt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar speak in the highest terms of praise of the dinner prepared for them at the Cocheco House, Dover Point, on Tuesday. It was a rarely sumptuous repast, and proved the proprietor, Parker Spinney, Esq., to be one of the best caterers in this vicinity.

Political.

A very curious editorial article in the Richmond Whig (dem.,) which seems to have been written to prove that hereafter the mission of the South is to force New England to stay in the Union, closes with the declaration: "New England has had her day. The Middle States and the Western States are tired of the tribute paid to her, and that being wanting, 'Pilgrim Rock' will be all that is left to New England. Mercenary, selfish and cruel, she will then, as oftentimes before, reassert her right to leave the Union; but we repeat we cannot, we will not let her go. She has gathered wealth from the prosperity of the country, she must now take her portion of its poverty."

Dorsheimer says a miss is as good as a mile. He missed travelling hundreds of miles on which he drew constructive mileage.

The democrats affect great ignorance in regard to Governor Hayes. Tilden they know, and they claim for him great things as a reformer and economical Executive;—but who is Hayes? Well, Governor Hayes is the man who, during the years in which he has been Governor of Ohio, has reduced the State debt by $2,773,406 and the State tax from three and a half to two and nine-tenths mills on the dollar, who has made an annual saving of State expenditures of $914,593, and has by persistent effort induced the Legislature to reduce local taxation in the State over seventeen millions. That is one item of Governor Hayes' record as a reformer. How does Tilden's record in the same line compare with it?

The Greenback movement in Indiana hurts the republican State ticket morethan it hurts the democratic, and may be the means of defeating the republicans in October. Mr. Wolcott, the Greenback nominee for Governor, was for twelve years a republican State Senator, and nine out of the twelve greenback nominees for Congress are men of republican antecedents. It is therefore to be expected that these nominations will draw more largely from the republican than from the democratic ranks; and in that event a plurality for the democratic ticket in Indiana is assured. In Ohio, the hard money and the soft money democrats are all united on the same democratic State ticket, and if the democracy do not carry the State in October, there will be no possible hope for Tilden in November, when the Cooper electoral ticket will take away part of the democratic vote.—Albany Times, (dem.)

Governor Hayes happened to be on a railroad train in Ohio a few days ago when a vote was taken on the Presidential question. When the canvasser approached him he said, "I have no vote this Fall."

A Despicable Act.

For several days past a young man, and a cripple from a fall on shipboard, named Thomas Rankin, has been drawing with crayon marine craft on the sidewalk in Pemberton square, near Tremont row, and was thus enabled to pick up a few pennies and give amusement to many people. Monday morning, while quietly at work, two brutes in male attire came out of an alley and drenched the young man and his work with cold water. This cowardly and despicable act caused great indignation among the spectators gathered about the young man, and loud threats were made of punishment, which so frightened the wretches that they ran away. The young man renewed his drawing, surrounded by a sympathetic crowd, about forty feet from the Palace of Music, but was soon warned away by the proprietor of the establishment named. Permission was then given the young man to draw all the pictures he wished in front of the State Police headquarters, but being somewhat frightened, he limped away to the Common, but returned later to the latter place, where he will not be molested. In view of the fact that peddlers of various kinds are permitted to harangue crowds of people in the same place every day, the abuse of this young man bears the stamp of the most despicable and unmitigated meanness.—Globe.

—As a rule, boys do not like to assist in doing any sort of housework with the single exception of picking over raisins.

—A young poet of the realistic school writes: "Time marches on with the slow, measured tread of a man working by the day."

—A Scott county, Va. jury rendered the following verdict: "We believe he broke into Jett's meat-house; we believe he stole the meat, yet we believe he ought not to be sent to the penitentiary."

—Judging from a two hours' conversation with a young lady who visited the Centennial Exhibition a few days ago, the only things she saw while there were the $26,000 lace dress, the $60,000 set of jewelry, and a young man who had such a sweet moustache and lovely eyes.

—"These Beaverwyck oarsmen," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "seem to have been anything but what we should consider amateurs. They are recorded by their own local journals as plumbers and tinsmiths. In England an artisan is out of the pale of amateurship. In America, it seems, they are more free-and-easy in their notions."

—A Nantucket woman is seeking to scoop in the shekels of tourists at the expense of her misfortunes. Her husband was struck by lightning while shaving some months ago, and she exhibits the room, the shattered mirror, the razor, and a photograph of the corpse after death, all for the small sum of twenty-five cents. This is a sort of centennial exhibit of American enterprise.

—Two persons were once disputing so loudly on the subject of religion that they awoke a big dog which had been sleeping on the hearth before them, and he forthwith began to bark most furiously. An old divine present, who had been sipping his tea while the disputants were talking, gave the dog a kick, and exclaimed, "Hold your tongue, you silly brute! You know no more about it than they do."

—On a child being told that he must be broken of a bad habit, he naively replied, "Papa, hadn't I better be mended?"

—A four-year-old boy drank half a pint of lye, and is expected to recover, though the doctors say he will never be good for anything but to edit a political newspaper.

—Mrs. Stowe says we never know how much we love until we try to unlove. To a man who has tried to quit smoking this needs no argument.

—When a load of hop-pickers drives by the Waterville Times office, the editor and all hands quit work and stick their noses out of the front windows, making a novel but striking illumination.

—War-cries are coming in fashion again. The English Horse Guards have issued an order directing the revival of the old English practice of cheering while charging an enemy, and the Fifth Fusliers have been drilled in the art and science of hurraing.

—A young man of this city who had been waging his matrimonial interests under parental interferences, brought his suit to a happy close one evening last week. Knowing the peculiaritics of his intended father-in-law, he supplied himself with the necessary quantity of family disturbance and proceeded to the house, where he engaged the old gentleman in social converse, and each imbibed freely of the quieting element, and the result was a contract and sale of the much prized daughter for five cents. The payment was made in full, and it seems, with a view to seal the contract for life, the necessary matrimonial papers had been secured. A passing clergyman was called in and performed the ceremonies of the occasion, and the scene closed with many happy congratulations to the newly wedded pair.—Ohio State Journal.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we see nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

Dickens.

A new story is told of Dickens. When he was in this country, some years ago, he went to Albany to lecture, and put up at Congress hall. General Woodford was then lieutenant governor, and had an elegant suit of rooms there, and, as he was absent with his family, he kindly hastened to place his rooms at the disposal of the great novelist. Dickens accepted the courtesy as a mere matter of course, and had not the grace to express any thanks. He lectured, pocketed the money, and went away like any other showman. A few months afterwards he returned to lecture again, and was shown to other apartments, with which he was not pleased. He sent for the landlord and demanded his former rooms. Mr. Blake said that they belonged to the lieutenant governor of the State. "That does not matter," said Dickens, "go ask him, if he will give up his room to me." Blake demurred to this, but Dickens insisted. With a very long face, at last Blake went to General Woodford's room with the question. Woodford looked quietly for a moment at Blake, and then said: "Two months ago in my absence I gave up my room to Mr. Dickens as a personal accommodation to yourself and him. Mr. Dickens had not the grace to express any thanks. Perhaps these are English manners. They are not good manners, anyhow. Say to Mr. Dickens that the lieutenant governor of the State of New York is not in the habit of turning himself out of his home for the accommodation of travelling showmen."

—"Borrow as you go" is popular, but "borrow all you can and then go" is more so.

—Such men as Jefferson Davis, Theodore Tilton, and John S. Phelps, of Missouri, should be given a wide berth.

—Warren, the nitro-glycerine maker, testified in the Hell Gate explosion case that his stuff is so perfectly harmless that he carries a sample of it round in a valise with him. Baggage-smashers, take notice.

—In California, not long since, a man was tried and found guilty of stealing a pig. In writing out the verdict the foreman wrote, "Wee fine the prisner knot gilty." One of the jury, who had seen the inside of a school house, wanted some slight change made in the spelling of the verdict, but the foreman whispered: "I know that spelling is sorter shaky, but you have to pander to the Sheriff and the Judge and the District Clerk, for that's the way they all spell. If I was to spell a verdict right, and they were to find it out, the whole jury would be indicted next term of the court, and we wouldn't even get our jury fee for this day's work. You see they have got the drop on us. Let us not exasperate them as long as they are in power."

There are martyrs to headache who might be cured by using

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient.

The stomach, overburdened until its recuperative power is weakened, revenges itself upon the poor head, which it makes to ache and torture the offender. The use of this aperient will carry off naturally and almost imperceptibly, the offending cause. The disease is removed and the head ceases to ache.

DR. QUAIN'S

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose the money.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, and I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardships in the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 15, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take great pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The improvement there seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anything. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins County, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as these pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who "discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

Geese as Practical Humorists.

A goose has perhaps the keenest appreciation of humor of any animal, unless it be her own arch enemy, the fox. The writer once saw in a little grassy paddock some eight or ten fat and healthy pigs and half a score of geese. From this paddock a narrow, open gate gave entrance into the farmyard, and as evening drew on, the geese ranged themselves in a row at this Thermopylae. Obviously, supper time was approaching and the pigs wished to return home to their troughs. Equally clearly, the geese had given each other the word not to let them pass through the gate which they guarded, without paying toll. First came up a jolly, good humored little pig, who trotted cheerfully along with a confidence which ought to have disarmed criticism, till he came among the geese. Then, with a cackle and a scream, every neck was stretched to get a bite at him, and squalling and yelling, the poor little porker ran the gauntlet. The same fate befell six or seven more of his brethren in succession, each betraying increasing trepidation as he approached the fatal pass, and made a bolt through the geese, whose chattering and screeches of delight were almost indistinguishable from human laughter. At last, the biggest pig of the party brought up the rear. He was a pink-fleshed, clean young fellow, with fat limbs and his tail sharply twisted in the intelligent, wide-awake manner which so completely distinguishes the intellectual pig from the mere swine multitude. With a loud grunt of defiance, this brave beast charged through the flock of geese and had actually almost gained the gate, when a large gray goose made one grab at his fat ham, caught up the skin in a bunch, and gave it a tremendous pinch with her red beak. Needless to say, the air was rent with the squeals of agony of the injured pig and the ecstatic paeans of the flock of geese in chorus. From the order in which the transaction took place, we derive the impression that a similar game of prisoner's base probably formed the entertainment of the geese every evening.—Ex.

—When the locusts swarmed in Central China in mid-August, the mandarins offered prayers in the temples. The peasants were too ignorant to distrust the mercy of Heaven. Thinking that the locusts must be a blessing in disguise, they gathered them in baskets and fried them for supper.

Dr. YOUNG,

SUCCESSOR TO

Dr. TELLER,

DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation at entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—100 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichol's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would 'leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

News and Notes.

The Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad was sold at public sale on the 4th by order of the Circuit Court for the Fifth Judicial Circuit, Southern District of Alabama. It was purchased by A. P. Balch, Esq., for the sum of $310,000. Mr. Balch is a well-known and successful railroad man of New Hampshire.

W. H. Harrison, grandson of William Henry Harrison, once President of the United States, attempted to assassinate Miss Mary Moore of Boone County, Ky., directly opposite the tomb of President Harrison at North Bend, on the 3d. Miss Moore was stabbed seven or eight times, and it is thought she cannot recover. The only reason assigned for Harrison's attempt at her life, was her refusal to marry him. It is thought Harrison is crazy; he is now under arrest.

The straw goods factory of D. D. Curtis & Co., at Medfield, Mass., was burned on the 3d. Loss $100,000; partially insured. About a thousand people are thrown out of employment by this fire.

Boston Corbett, who shot Wilkes Booth, lives in a little old forlorn-looking house in Camden, N. J. He busily plies his trade as a hatter. He lives alone in his little house, doing his own cooking, and housekeeping, and seeing nobody but the members of his little flock of Methodists which meet nightly at his house, and of which he is the head.

The steamer Leopard, at St. Johns, N. F., reports the loss of thirty-seven vessels, with their cargoes, on the Labrador coast. No lives are reported lost. The vessels were lost in the harbors and were at anchor. Herring have struck off from every part of the coast.

A Frenchman named Hurd was run over by a gravel train on the Eastern Railroad at Salem, Wednesday, and shockingly mangled. He was removed to the City Hospital where he soon after expired.

John Murphy, the probable murderer of Mr. Bullard of Shrewsbury, was arrested at Worcester on the 4th. His overcoat with blood on it was found at his home, and the clothing he wore when he was arrested is stained with blood. Circumstances are strong against him. He declines to make any statement.

There seems to be a general revival of confidence among our merchants and importers. It is partly the result of a belief that we have touched hardpan, and partly the effect of the great influx of visitors and purchasers. The good condition of the crops has also given much encouragement. Woolen fabrics of domestic make are in demand; the silk trade is active; the boot and shoe trade is good, and nearly all other branches of industry are brightening with prospects of a revival of their business. This is all that is needed to put the ball in motion. Once let a full feeling of confidence be restored, and the hard times will become a thing of the past. The skies are propitious now, and we look for fair weather for trade. —N. Y. Com. Adv.

A detachment of soldiers attacked a party of Texas outlaws near Eagle Pass, killed five, wounded one, and captured fifty horses and a large number of cattle.

Texas must be a pleasant place of residence for peaceable people. According to the report of the State Adjutant General, there are only 3,793 fugitives from justice in that State. Think of the "sweet security of streets" in the Texan cities!

New Hampshire Items.

George Morgan, of Manchester, who accidentally shot himself while gunning September 23, died Oct. 4th of his injuries.

Henry Rives, the man who was sent to the New Hampshire Prison from Lancaster, two years ago, for having five wives, was arrested in St. Johnsbury, Vt., last Friday, for having several more wives.

The second day (Wednesday) of the State Fair at Manchester was the day of the show, fully 8000 persons being on the Fair grounds in the afternoon. The "polo" game was a great attraction.

Political.

Later reports from Colorado are not so rose colored for the republicans as the first advices. The first story was that the republicans had carried the State, defeating the democrats (who carried the Territorial election two years ago—the "tidal-wave year") and assuring the election of two republican Senators and three Hayes and Wheeler electors. Now the democrats claim the election by a small majority. The question will probably not be decided without the official returns.

It is reported that Tammany and Anti-Tammany "have united for victory." That is to say, they have clasped hands round that "bar'l of money," and the grip is a tight one, because no one of them would trust the other if his hands were free.—Brooklyn Argus, (dem.)

The town elections in Connecticut show republican gains.

The Boston Post says: "Colorado has about as many inhabitants as a good-sized Ward, and they are mostly Mexicans and 'greasers.' Their votes are given to the highest bidder." Oh, well; that accounts for a democratic victory plainly enough,—but we shouldn't think the Post would boast of it.

It is a calamity to have another bloody shirt campaign, and the democrats are responsible for it, in not nominating a pronounced sympathizer with the late war, and with the universal emancipation that resulted from it. Any attempt to restore the democratic party as it existed before the war, will make the results of that war a primal issue in any campaign, and consequently delay the discussion of other measures necessary to the revival of our industry and reform of existing abuses. The election of the brain power of all railroad consolidations to the Presidency, would every where encourage the enemies of railroad competition and cheap transportation. It is the duty of every honest man and every opponent of monopolies to support General Hayes as a patriot, soldier and statesman, a sincere reformer, an anti-monopolist and an out-spoken opponent of the Congressional ringz.—"Long" John Wentworth.

Of the two hundred and ninety-eight members of Congress, the South will probably have, in the new Congress, about one hundred and eight democratic members; and the North and West will send a delegation, which, added to the South, will give a majority of democrats, but not as large as in the present Congress. Nearly, if not quite all the Southern members will be composed of those connected with the Confederate service in the late war.—Texas State Gazette, (dem.,) September 7.

Democratic papers are repeating the Stale charge that Gov. Morgan drew double pay while Governor, both as Governor and as a Major-General of the Army. The truth is that he did not draw a cent of his salary for the latter post. The amount which he thus surrendered to the Government each year was nearly equal to the whole sum upon which Gov. Tilden was then paying income tax.—Tribune.

Charles O'Conor said recently to a friend, who asked a letter from him to Governor Tilden: "I would be willing to aid you if I could. Of course I have been associated with Tilden in what may be called the reform movement, and have acted as counsel with him; but I can have no influence with him to secure political favors. You know I am a democrat from principle. Mr. Tilden is a democrat from expediency."

The Indianapolis Journal notes those queer facts:—One year ago the Indianapolis Water Works Company was assessed at $500,000—being $259,400 of tangible property and $240,600 assessable stock. This year no return of the water works property is made at all. Gov. Hendricks is a member of the Water Works Company. By virtue of his office he is chairman of the State Board of Equalization.

The soldiers went back on Tilden's "pure extract of coffee" in 1861, declaring it to be little better than slops. In November they will go back on Tilden's pure extract of reform, with a similar declaration.

A Lion Adrift.

While the audience at Forepaugh's menagerie was in the act of leaving the tents, a large African lion gave a little entertainment that did not belong to the regular performance, and produced quite a sensation. The keepers were in the act of feeding the animals, and the lion, in his anxiety to get at a large round of fresh beef, threw his weight against the side of his cage with tremendous force, and a moment later was "mingling" with the audience, so to speak. He did not "mingle" very much, however. About one-fourth of the audience at the afternoon entertainment was in the tent at the time, and the stampede that followed was amazing. It was a general scamper, pell-mell, and those who could not reach the door went out under the sides of the tent, and scrambled up on the cages of less ferocious beasts. Women and children screamed, and men showed their "gallantry" by taking care of themselves. The lion was for a moment master of the situation. After witnessing the hurried departure of his audience, apparently "more in sorrow than in anger," he made a lively dash for some camels that were quietly fighting the flies on the opposite side of the tent, but he was promptly met by the small army of keepers and tent men, when a regular fight ensued. He then made the circuit of the enclosure half a dozen times, apparently with the determination of dying in the last ditch before starting to Appomattox to surrender. A number of policemen were present when he escaped from the cage, but they did not join in the lion-hunting business; in fact, they hadn't lost any lion, and remembered they had business in the Police Court this morning. Finally, the hind wheels of the truck supporting the cage were taken off, the cage lowered and the door opened, when the "King of the Forest," while making one of his circuits, turned abruptly, ran into his old quarters, and a moment later was a prisoner.—Cinn. Com.

Female Society.

All men who avoid female society have dull perceptions, and are stupid, and have gross tastes, and revolt against what is pure. You club swaggerers, who are sucking the butts of billiard cues all night, call female society insipid. Poetry is as uninspiring to a yokel; beauty has no charms for a blind man; music does not please a poor beast, who does not know one tune from another; but, as a true epicure is hardly ever tired of water, sance and brown bread and butter, I protest I can sit for a whole night talking to a well-regulated, kindly woman about her daughter Fanny or her boy Frank, and like the evening's entertainment. One of the greatest benefits a man can derive from a woman's society is that he is bound to be respectful to her. The habit is of great good to your morals, men, depend upon it. Our education makes us the most eminently selfish men in the world, and the greatest benefit that we have is to think of somebody to whom we are bound to be constantly attentive and respectful.—Thackeray.

—Ingersoll and Blaine were at dinner together at a country hotel and Ingersoll discovered that the butter was "strong." He called the servant and asked him if he could not get some that was better. The waiter started off and soon returned and remarked as he placed a fresh plate of butter beside Ingersoll's plate: "There sir, I think you'll find that butter is tolerably good." "Tolerably good!" thundered Bob to the astonished domestic; "that's a nice way to speak of butter; why, you might as well speak of a man's wife as tolerably virtuous."

—A good many people have sadly learned how much it costs to "see the elephant," but the recent report of the Director of the New York Central Park shows the actual expense of keeping this and other animals. Two hundred and fifty dollars annually is all that it costs to pack his trunk, while a first-class lion or tiger can "set the table in a roar" through the year for half the money. The hyena will laugh or cry for $63 during the twelve months, and the leopard will change his spots and the puma sharpen his teeth for the same paltry sum. When we learn that a zebu is only an item of expense to the tune of $75 yearly, we wonder whether parrots and pugs will not have to give way to this creature as a pet, for though it has cloven feet, it is much less likely to be compared to the devil than they are by unsympathetic visitors.

How to Grow Cheerful,

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority—of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.

A NEW EDITOR.

Eds. Chronicle: Are the police sacred, that neither of the papers of this city dare say anything concerning them? It seems so to an outsider. When, under the recent democratic administration, Officer ——— acted in the most disgraceful manner, the Times had not a word to say in denunciation; neither had the CHRONICLE; neither of the papers named even mentioned the circumstance; why? Within a few days a republican policeman got drunk, acted like a ruffian, and was arrested; the CHRONICLE had the briefest possible notice of the disgraceful occurrence, but suppressed the officer's name; the Times has not alluded to the matter at all. Why is this? What motive is at the bottom of this generous silence concerning the misdoings of officials? This method of conducting papers may be satisfactory to their editors, but it does not come up to the general idea of how a paper should be conducted. An editor has a duty to the public to perform, and should perform it without fear or favor, let the consequences be what they may, if he would retain the respect of the community.

PLAIN SPEAKER.

[Our friend "Plain Speaker" asks us some very tough conundrums, and delicately insinuates that he don't think the papers of this city "dare" say what he thinks they ought to say,—which opinion he is welcome to hold, so far as this paper is concerned, for we acknowledge that we have a good deal of regard for our personal safety. As to the motives which have actuated us in the past and which actuate us in the present,—we think we are more interested in their being just and honorable than "Plain Speaker" can possibly be; and to confess the truth, if we are satisfied our motives are correct it is of little use for any person or persons to argue the matter with us or to urge us to alter our line of conduct. We are sorry "Plain Speaker" is displeased at what we may have said or left unsaid concerning the late or present police, yet we have no apology to offer to him or others for our course, as in similar circumstances we should probably act in a very similar manner again.

As to the motives of the Times man we are not posted; the fact is, our commission as Approver-General of Editors' motives has not yet been received; but the moment it comes we will go straight to the Times editor and inspect his motives, and if we do not find them all right will unhesitatingly condemn them, and compel him to get a new set right away. Between "Plain Speaker" and ourself we will acknowledge that we don't believe Bro. Guppy's motives are just the thing,—he votes the democratic ticket, and supports Tilden and reform for President.

We regret that neither the Times nor CHRONICLE is conducted in a manner to satisfy our correspondent. One or the other of them should please him, surely; for the Times is democratic (synonymous with "wrong") and the CHRONICLE is republican (another name for "right.") But if he cannot get suited by either we can see no way for him to secure for the public a journal which shall "come up to the general idea of how a paper should be conducted" unless he starts a paper himself,—we have no doubt "Plain Speaker's" idea in that direction is the "general" one. Seriously, we believe our correspondent would find that even he could not please everybody as an editor, and that if he aimed to do it he would please but very few.—Eds. Chronicle.]

JOTTINGS.

Washburn's Last Sensation" at the Temple this evening. This announcement is enough to send all who enjoy variety entertainments to the Temple to-night, for the troupe is known here as a first-class one. For particulars see advertisement.

The projected parade of Hayes and Wheeler organizations at Dover on Thursday evening, was postponed on account of the weather, to this (Friday) evening. The members of the Hayes and Wheeler Guards of this city will meet at Headquarters at six o'clock this evening, equipped for parade, without further notice.

At the third annual meeting of the New Hampshire Pharmaceutical Association, held at Nashua on Tuesday, the 3d, Joseph H. Thacher of this city was elected President.

Maynard's views of the World's Fair will be given this and to-morrow evenings, and to-morrow afternoon. Those who do not attend will miss a rare treat, for the show is all it is claimed to be.

Mr. William H. Brown's blacksmith shop, at the "Lower Foreside" in Kittery, was totally destroyed by fire, with its contents, at about one o'clock Thursday morning. No insurance. The fire was accidental.

The meeting of the City Councils at the Court House on Wednesday evening, to consider the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad question, was attended by two hundred or more citizens. Messrs. Hatch, Wentworth, Rundlett and others discussed the matter, but no conclusion was reached or attempted to be reached by the Councils, as the meeting was simply a hearing of the Directors.

Mr. Mercer Goodrich has taken the store under the City Building, recently occupied by Mr. Grant, and will soon open it with a full supply of stationery and paper hangings.

The excursion tickets to Philadelphia are selling rapidly, Mr. Barrett having already disposed of more than fifty, although it was not generally understood that they would be ready for sale before Saturday.

Those who have never seen Mr. LeMoyne as Uriah Heep have a heap of pleasure in store for next Tuesday evening.

Thursday was the day for the Concord Railroad meeting at Manchester, and holders of stock were numerous on the morning train from this city,—more numerous when the train started than when it reached Manchester, for those who were riding on stock certificates not their own were weeded out and left at Greenland, Newmarket and other places, and picked up by the train on its return in the evening. The unlucky ones think the railroad folks have mighty queer ideas as to what constitutes a good joke.

Pickles.

Sharp things, aren't they?—but children usually like them, I know. Now, do you suppose they got their funny name? It's very queer, but I'll tell you how I found out. A droll-looking old fellow, one of those who are are always digging out things,—from books, I mean,—sat down with a young lad in my woods the other day for a good long talk. I tell you I kept my ears open to catch any scrap of wisdom he might let fall; for, since I've had such a big circle of listeners, I have to be on the watch, and I know those quiet-looking chaps, with rusty coat and spectacles, know a great deal.

Well, I heard him tell the lad that the first man who salted and preserved herrings, so as to keep them nicely, was named Beukelzoon (Dutch, of course, as anybody can see.) This name was shortened to Beukel (sensibly, I'm sure.) Now, you ask some Dutchman to pronounce that name, and see how much it sounds like Pickle.

Any way, that's where the word came from,—so the wise man said.—St. Nicholas for October.

The Rise in Kerosene.

According to a statement in the Boston Traveller, the advance in kerosene is not a consequence of a short supply or of an unusual demand, but is the result of the formation of rings for the purpose of monopolizing the business and controlling the market. That paper says:

"The limited acres of the oil producing region places the producer and refiner at the mercy of the few railroad companies tapping that section of country. The companies combined to control the oil industry, and threw a virtual monopoly of the refining business into the hands of the Standard Oil Company by giving them special privileges—carrying the crude material from Parker to Cleveland, where their refineries are located, and the refined oil thence to the seaboard, at a lower rate than is charged for the direct transportation of the crude oil thither for other parties. The favors granted the Standard Company are accounted for by the fact that many of the railroad directors draw dividends as its share holders. Outside refiners found themselves unable to compete, and were compelled to close. In some instances they sold or leased their refineries to the ring at a heavy loss, and the combination having got possession closed them up. The refineries at Erie and Titusville have succumbed to their machinations. In Pittsburg, where there were formerly sixty-two refineries, there are now only twenty, and millions of dollars invested in the business in New York have been wasted. The ring, having thus secured control, regulates the prices of crude and refined petroleum to suit itself."

—There is a hole called Kent's Cavern, a celebrated prehistoric deposit, in England, where are found bones of the hyena, the bear, and the rhinoceros. Recently a naval officer entered it to explore it without a guide, and losing his way, had to spend the night in it. Next morning the hue and cry was raised. A farmer's daughter determined to find the young fellow. Descending with a lantern, she searched so diligently and so persistently that she came upon him. He overwhelmed her with expressions of gratitude, and at last in a frenzy of generosity, flung himself at her feet and begged to marry her, as is the fashion of men when they wish to confer the greatest possible favor. She foolishly accepted him, and they were going to be married forthwith; but the prudent father interposed, reminded the young spark that he was only a middy, and told him to come back after he had obtained a lieutenancy. The gallant consented, parted from his sweetheart, and with firm hope sailed away. It is noticed that he has forgotten even to write her a line from that day to this, which perhaps is quite as well for her, if she only knew it.

—A worthy couple during a violent thunder storm, were discussing the cause and effect of the forces of nature. "Who invented lightning?" inquired the lady. "Benjamin Franklin!" promptly replied the husband. At this astounding intelligence the lady paused awhile, as if reflecting upon the achievements of the inventor, and finally manifested her appreciation thereof by the exclamation, "Cussed fool, wasn't he?"

—A gentleman, on walking out one Sunday evening, met a young Scotch peasant girl whose parents lived near his house. "Where are you going, Jenny?" said he. "Looking for a son-in-law for my mother, sir."

—Capt. Mercur ordered fifteen kegs o lager, which were distributed among the workmen in honor of the completion of Hell Gate blow up!

—A Lake in Southern California, which in 1873 covered one hundred and fifty square miles, has since dwindled away rapidly, and is likely to disappear entirely in a couple of years.

—"Does our constant chatter disturb you?" asked one of the three talkative ladies of a sober looking fellow passenger. "No, ma'am; I've been married nigh on to thirty years," was the reply.

—The clerks in hat stores are kept busy now-a-days, changing the labels of last year's styles of hats, and putting on "Hayes," "Tilden," "Wheeler," "Hendricks," "Haymakers," etc. There is nothing like a good name for a hat. The style named "Pairagon" (perhaps that isn't the correct spelling) wouldn't sell at all, but the name changed "Three of a kind," "Four Aces," "Full Hand," made the hat very popular.

—It is proposed to make Manchester, England, a seaport, by means of a canal deep enough for the largest vessels, from Manchester to Warrington on the Mersey. The plan is to use existing water-ways, which can be widened and deepened at small expense. From Warrington, which is on the upper tidal portion of the river, to the fairway at Liverpool, it is proposed to make, by the construction of jetties, a direct and permanently defined low water channel by which the ebb and flow of the tide would be kept to one course, and through which, by means of buoys by day, and lights at night the largest vessels could find their way from Liverpool to the smoky metropolis.

—The French iron-clad, the Redoubtable, will be the most powerful war vessel possessed by the Republic, and is a fourth larger than the vessel best known of the French fleet, the Ocean. One prominent feature of the new iron-clad is that it is built almost wholly of steel—a fact which shows the progress made in French workmanship of late years. All the exposed parts of the vessel are plates, and in front there is a formidable iron spur. The deck and magazines are all bombproof. The Redoubtable will carry eight pieces of heavy artillery, arranged according to a new method, which, it is believed, will permit of their being used in every direction. Great attention has been bestowed on the speed of the vessel; its machinery has been manufactured after the most approved models at Creuzot, and is of 6,000 horse power. The helm, capstan and pumps of the Redoubtable will be set in motion by steam machinery which embraces all the latest inventions and unites the greatest power with the finest delicacy of control.

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we see nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Hosford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Daily Chronicle.

—On the railway from Madras to Shoranore, as a train was running at fair speed, the engineer saw a herd of elephants approaching him along the line. He whistled down the brakes. In an instant, however, they were into the herd. The leading elephant, an enormous tusker, was apparently only enraged by the whistle, and charged the advancing train. There was a tremendous concussion. The elephant was knocked off to one side, mutilated and writhing, and the train, after a series of jolts that nearly threw it off the line, came to a stand-still against the bodies of two other animals of the herd. The tusker was dispatched by an English gentleman who was travelling in the train, and his tusks were secured, after which the train proceeded on its journey. The herd scampered away, and turned when about a mile off, on a knoll, looking in a dazed, stupid way at the train as it moved off.—London Globe.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 25d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty. But, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, that what I say to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I can do no less in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing of them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; he advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they get a chance to recommend those pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. F. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO., Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs, trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LINCOLN BUTTER POWDER.

Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by some of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In churning this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it would be, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

"His X Mark."

The mark which persons who are unable to write are required to make, instead of their signatures, is in the form of a cross; and this practice, having formerly been followed by kings and nobles, is constantly referred to as an instance of the deplorable ignorance of ancient times. The signature is not, however, invariably a proof of such ignorance. Anciently the use of the mark was not confined to illiterate persons; for among the Saxons the mark of the cross, as an attestation of the good faith of the persons signing, was required to be attached to the signature of those who could write, as well as to stand in the place of the signature of those who could not write. In those times, if a man could write, or even read, his knowledge was considered proof presumptive that he was in holy orders. The clericus or clerk, was synonymous with penman; and the laity, or people who were not clerks did not feel any urgent necessity for the use of letters. The ancient use of the cross was therefore universal, alike by those who could and those who could not write; it was, indeed, the symbol of an oath, from its sacred associations, as well as the mark generally adopted. Hence the origin of the expression, "God save the mark," as a form of ejaculation approaching the character of an oath.

—A gentleman who was obliged to ride over the Woonsocket branch of the New England Railroad and had been greatly annoyed by having packages stolen from him in the cars, concluded to trap the thief. He procured a long, striped snake, put him in a collar box, and on entering the cars laid it on the seat beside him. Soon a portly old lady came puffing into the car and took a seat beside the gentleman in question, who was apparently absorbed in reading an evening paper. It wasn't long before the box disappeared under her shawl and her curiosity led her to open the box to look at her prize, and the snake glided into her lap. The scene can be better imagined than described, but that man never lost any more packages.

—In one of the small mining camps in the black Hills lay a big Cornishman stricken with fever. His wife, being unskilled in medicines, hunted for a doctor, falling, however, after a long and patient search, to discover anything better than a veterinary surgeon. "What would you do, doctor," she cried, "if your own wife were delirious with fever?" "Madam," said he, "I know no more than you. I can only cure horses and other brutes." "Well, doctor," she replied, "my husband's as strong as a horse. What would you do for a horse? and for heaven's sake tell me quick." "Madam, I should open his mouth, pull his tongue out on one side to prevent his biting me, and give him this fever powder, paper, string and all." Blinded with tears of gratitude, the poor woman paid for the fever powder and departed. History says that the man got well, but he has a hole in his tongue, and his wife has only three fingers on one hand.

SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,

SUCCESSOR TO

Dr. TELLER,

DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr. Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 30 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation, and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—300 pages—full of plates.—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—Dr. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.00, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting the Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicine sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

"Reform" in Connecticut.

The democracy of Connecticut seem determined to make that State "solid for Tilden," if the same means that are being employed to secure a "solid South" will only prove as effective in New England as they have in Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama. At New Britain, one evening last week, a republican meeting was stoned and rotten egged by the Tilden reformers, the color-bearer of the "boys in blue" being struck nine times; at Poquannock, a few nights later, a republican procession was assailed with stones all along its line of march by the reformers; and at South Manchester, where the republicans outnumbered the roughs, the latter stole a horse belonging to a republican and cut to pieces four harnesses. Horace Greeley said, "I do not say that every democrat is a horse thief; but every horse thief is a democrat." He might have said, "Every democrat is not a rough, but ninety-nine roughs out of every hundred are democrats." The spirit of Southern democracy seems to have spread all over the North, for never have there been so many unprovoked and brutal assaults by democrats upon republican processions and meetings in the North reported before, as during this campaign. But then the bullies and thieves see the necessity of "a change in the government."

The "Reform" Congress.

In view of the constant shouting of the Tilden reformers that their party is pure and that the only way to secure a pure government is to elect their candidates, it is well to remember one little episode that occurred during the last session of Congress, One Mr. Fitzhugh, "a biger man than old Grant," was discharged from the office of doorkeeper for being a fool—or, rather, for putting it in another's power to prove him a fool. Mr. Fitzhugh was mad, and at once commenced to tell things about the "reformers," among other things asserting that they had stolen over $100,000 worth of books, including nearly every copy of the Medical Report of the War, the most costly and valuable medical work ever published. A secret investigation was ordered, the chairman of the investigating committee being Honest Jimmy Williams, whose blue jeans breeches are now running for governor of Indiana; but this committee, finding Fitzhugh's story true, suppressed all report, —and the "reform" House bribed the ex-doorkeeper to leave Washington by voting him, from the National treasury, six months' salary after his discharge!

News and Notes.

The President, it is reported, will direct the Secretary of the Navy to revoke the order recently issued relative to placing naval officers on furlough in consequence of a deficiency in the amount appropriated by Congress at its last session for expenses of the naval establishment. It is now proposed to pay naval officers as usual and if, on the meeting of Congress in December, it is found the money will not last through the fiscal year, then to present a deficiency bill.

Henry J. Sawyer, a colored man, of Boston, is under arrest for beating to death a white woman who lived with him as his wife.

A challenge has been sent from Halifax, N. S., to England, offering to match four men to row any four men in England a four-oared shell race, six miles, for £500 a side, and agreeing to take expenses to row in England or give expenses to row at Halifax. The crew will be organized and the challenge accepted.

It is proposed to set an automatic signal buoy near the Duck Rocks at the entrance to Penobscot Bay. It will be so arranged that by the action of the sea a ten-inch whistle will be sounded, making a noise like the steam fog whistle.

Capt. Waterstone, of the ship Portshire, was shot dead at Montreal Wednesday afternoon by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of Capt. Anderson, of the ship Dunbartonshire, while the weapon was being examined by them.

In the matter of Centennial piano awards, Weber "received it," Steinway "obtained it," Decker "secured it," Chickering "took it," Knabe "was awarded it," and others "got it."

Among the Presbyterian churches there are eight which report only two members each; and six, each of which report three members. There are eight with four members each, and twenty-two with five each. The consequence of a split or schism, or a secession, or a case of discipline, in any of these churches, would be fearful to contemplate.

Complaints regarding the inflated state of wages in England are becoming both bitter and frequent. At a recent meeting of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway company, the chairman said that at the present day the cost of mining coal is fifteen per cent. higher, as a matter of wages, than it was eight or nine years ago. He pointed out that the English iron trade is seriously affected, and that it is now impossible for it to compete in American or other markets of the world. He further stated, however, that the diminution of wages paid in England was already nearly £10,000,000 weekly, and expressed the hope that, after another year of such discipline in the way of financial stress, England, by reducing the inflation of wages and doing more work, would outbid all other producers in the world in the cheapness of her products.

Reports from Savannah say that more new cases of yellow fever were reported there on the 4th than for two weeks past. The climatic change, being that of warmer weather, is very unfavorable. A curious fact is that there are more interments from the fever in the Catholic cemetery than in all other cemeteries combined, although the Catholics are in a minority in the city. The destitution is appalling. It seems impossible for the relief agencies to meet it. Thousands of healthy people, especially negroes, out of work, are totally dependent on the Relief Committee for daily rations. The change of weather carried the interments in one day from seventeen to forty-two. The warm weather is general over Georgia.

The schooner which was seen to founder in deep water near Penfield reef, off the Connecticut coast, a few days since, has been discovered to be the "Bolton." Nothing further is known about the vessel, but it is believed the crew abandoned her before she went down, and were probably picked up by some other craft. The tops of her mastheads only are out of water.

A midnight express train on the Great Western Railroad was wrecked near Princeton, Ont., at two o'clock Thursday morning. The train had two locomotives on. One of the wheels to the tender of the first locomotive broke and threw off the second locomotive, baggage car, express car and four ordinary coaches. One sleeper was partly thrown off, but the others kept on the track. Engineer Cooper and fireman Andrew Irwin, both of London, Ont., were instantly killed on the wrecked engine. Baggageman George Wright of Suspension Bridge and ex-Messenger Thomas McBride of Detroit were in the baggage car, which almost instantly caught fire and burned up. The charred remains of the men were found next morning. No passengers were seriously injured.

Thirty thousand dollars of stock in the Poughkeepsie Eastern Railroad, held by the town of Ancrum, Columbus county, was sold at auction recently for $200.—Albany Journal.

E. A. Woodward, late partner of William M. Tweed, and for whom a large reward has been offered in New York, was arrested in Chicago on the 4th, at the Palmer house, where he was registered as A. Wallace, Liverpool. He was disguised, but was recognized by a New Yorker and pointed out to the police.

Captain Barrows, of the American fishing schooner Sargasso, handed over to the police of Halifax, N. S., three of his crew for mutiny, on the 3d.

Gen. Martinez Campos has been appointed Governor General of Cuba.

W. H. Harrison, who stabbed Miss Moore, of Boone County, Ky., on the 3d, is a grandson, on his mother's side, of General Pike. There is no question, in the minds of those who well know him and his antecedents, of his insanity. His mother was insane at the time of his birth, and died insane. He was much attached to his wife, and her death subjected him to the deepest melancholy. Six months ago Dr. Hughes of Cleveland prescribed for him for insomnia, and warned him at that time that if he did not seek a change of scene and surroundings, his mind must soon entirely fail him. The idea of his insanity is so generally accepted that even Miss Moore stated that she did not want him arrested, or harmed; that she considered she had a chance for recovery, and she could not consider him responsible for what had occurred. Harrison was taken over to Burlington by some of his friends, not under arrest, however. He appeared to be quite rational, and claimed to have no recollection whatever of the dreadful deed he had perpetrated. The lady is in a critical condition, but her physicians think she may rally and recover.

Political.

As General Jack Wharton, an ex-Confederate, was speaking at a republican meeting at Shrevesport, La., Thursday night, he was struck on the head with a stone thrown from the crowd, and the meeting was broken up by a grand charge from a lot of armed "bulldozers," amid cheers for Tilden.

Hendricks claims that he is misrepresented by the republican press, in the speeches he is reported to have made during the war. The republican papers only quote from his speeches as reported at the time they were made in such papers as the Cincinnati Gazette and Chicago Tribune; if he was misrepresented, why did he not say so then, and not wait a dozen years or more before doing it? In default of any contradiction at the time, Mr. Hendricks stands convicted of advising resistance to the draft at Shelbyville, and of calling upon the people to "rise and crush out abolitionism, and hurl the smutty tyrant at Washington (Lincoln) out of political existence," at Chicago.

More than his supporters at large, we can confide in Mr. Tilden in the matter of State rights. He was brought up in the school of State rights, as it were at the very feet of Gamaliel.—Columbus (Miss.) Democrat.

The New York World of the 3d, alluding to the Colorado election, held that day, said: "The democrats are confident of electing their State ticket and their member of Congress." The democratic papers (all but those published in Indiana and Ohio, which are publishing the news for "political effect only") now give up the election, and acknowledge that the republicans have secured the Congressman, a large majority on joint ballot in the legislature, (which means two republican U. S. Senators,) and the Governor. The importance of the republican victory in Colorado can be better understood by a comparison with the last election in 1874, when, after an animated contest, Patterson, democrat, was elected delegate to Congress by a vote of 9833 to 7170 for Bromwell, republican, so that the total gain is at least over twenty-five per cent.

In reference to the Southern claims, Mr. Bemis, of New York, well says of the rebels, that "they want us to pay for the use of the battlefields on which we licked them, and their impudence goes so far as to demand rent for battlefields on which they licked us."

A suit has been begun in the United States District Court by the Government against Frank Leslie, publisher, to recover $100,000 in gold on importations of paper passed through the custom house at an undervaluation. "Frank Leslie's Illustrated" has been a rabid opponent of "Grantism" for many years, and Mr. Leslie is red-hot for "Tilden and reform."

The democratic papers have been publishing a list of "republican members of the bar in Ohio who will not vote for Hayes." The Cincinnati Times reprints the list, and then shows that of all the "republican" opponents of Gov. Hayes named, not one has voted the republican ticket for years, nearly all of them having flopped over in the Greeley campaign, and some of them years before that.

A telegram from Little Rock, Ark., says that the democratic "Tilden reformers" there, on Sunday night last, broke into the County Clerk's office, and stole from the ballot-boxes the tickets which were cast at the late election. The republican candidates, who had been counted out, were contesting for the offices, and this robbery was perpetrated to destroy the evidence and screen the judges from prosecution.

The man whom the democrats supported —elected, according to some of the reports— for Lieutenant Governor of Colorado, is under indictment for having stolen a flock of 1200 sheep from a brother democrat. He believes in Tilden and reform, of course.

How to Grow Cheerful,

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority —of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.

This kind of bread having come into extensive family use, it has been my purpose to furnish, from choice materials, an article which should meet the approval of the most fastidious as to neatness, looks and taste. Whether I have succeeded in giving to the public a PILOT BREAD, the consumer may be the judge; that the quality will not be suffered to depreciate, the past with the present is my best pledge. CITY AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Oct. 5:

The hearing on the petition of Newton Johnston and others, for a new highway from Lincoln Avenue to Middle street, continued from the last meeting, was had. Newton Johnston and Charles Downs appeared for the petitioners. Capt. Robert Shillaber presented his side of the question, as one of the owners of land over which the new highway is to run, if laid out. He made the remark that when he wanted anything he generally bought it,—he didn't go around begging for it,—and if the petitioners wanted a new roadway across his land he had no objection if they would pay him what he thought a fair compensation for the land. The Board went into committee of the whole to consider the petition, and finally voted that the Board meet on the premises at the call of the Mayor, the petitioners and Messrs. Mendum and Shillaber to be notified.

Edward P. Brown was discharged from the office of supernumerary watchman.

Petition of Aaron Akerman and others, for a new highway from Daniel street to Bow street, was received, and it was voted that the Board visit the locality at the call of the Mayor, the petitioners to be notified of the time.

Petition of Geo. Rogers and others for a new highway from the northerly side of North street to a gate at the end of Jackson Hill street, was received, and it was voted that the Board visit the locality at the call of the Mayor, the petitioners to be notified.

Andrew J. Penhallow declined to accept the position of agent to examine the books of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad. Charles W. Bailey was appointed in his place.

The Common Council sent up a bill entitled "An ordinance relating to applications, petitions and orders," passed by the Council. Read and referred to committee on bills on 2d reading.

Common Council also sent up a bill relating to the publication of ordinances, which was read and referred.

The Common Council sent up a bill providing for a temporary loan, passed by the Council; it was read twice and passed, under suspension of the rules.

The Common Council gave notice that they were ready to meet the Board of Mayor and Aldermen in Convention, agreeably to adjournment.

IN CONVENTION.

Voted, That the election of City Treasurer be postponed till the 1st Thursday evening in January.

The Convention then adjourned till that day.

ALDERMEN—RESUMED.

Request of J. A. Grace for raising crosswalk on Richards avenue, was referred to the committee on streets, with power to act.

The petition of the Women's Temperance League was taken up, and it was Voted, That said petition be brought up at the first evening of the full Board.

Adjourned.

LIQUOR LAW AND PISTOLS.

Editors: Again, on Thursday evening, the ladies, accompanied by four or five gentlemen visited the Board of Aldermen, to urge that Board to enforce the liquor laws. One man, (a stranger from Connecticut) made a few remarks, in which he said "he had been informed it was not safe to go through Market street over the bridge to Kittery without being armed, and he should not wish to go about Portsmouth, carrying a pistol, yet he would be afraid to do otherwise," or words to that effect. Now there are men in Portsmouth who have crossed the Plains at an early day, and men who have travelled the length and breadth of Texas, unarmed, and no harm came from it, and we do not believe it is more dangerous in the streets of Portsmouth; but we have seen some "old ladies" who weigh two hundred pounds afraid of a mouse that would not weigh an ounce.

If either one of the parties who appeared at the City Rooms that evening had a brother or sister murdered, would they be likely to go to the Board of Aldermen and ask that Board to please enforce the law against murder? or would they go to a Justice of the Peace and have an indictment made out? We believe the latter course would be taken. Why do not these people take the same course in the present case? Is it because of their extreme timidity, and that they wish to shirk the responsibility on to the shoulders of the city authorities? It does have that look. Now if the authorities do conclude to act they should have a support to back them up, and what sort of support would such timid people be at such a time? A LISTENER.

JOTTINGS.

The Boston Journal says: "Mrs. Phœbe A. Hanaford, Universalist minister in Jersey City, recently performed the marriage ceremony at her daughter's wedding. This is perhaps the first instance in the world in which a lady has been married by her own mother." We do not remember of ever before hearing of a case in which a lady was married by her own mother, but a few years since Rev. Mrs. Roberts, pastor of the Universalist church at Kittery, performed the marriage ceremony at her son's wedding.

The Aurora News has the following: "Mr. G. W. Marston, editor of the Portsmouth (N. H.) DAILY CHRONICLE, has been visiting Mr. James Shaw, of the Herald, in this city some weeks. Mr. Marston is extensively interested in silver mines in Colorado, he being one of the company who own perhaps the richest mine in the country. He yesterday visited Chicago for the purpose of refusing or accepting an offer of $100,000 worth of real estate there for one of the six mines owned by his company. An editor who makes trades like that is a curiosity that Barnum would do well to buy." A later issue of the same paper says the company "have just refused $250,000 in Chicago real estate for one third of these rich mines."

The cheap excursion to the Centennial—$10.70 to Philadelphia and back—starts on Monday. A large number have been sold, and all intending to go should procure their tickets to-day at the Eastern Railroad ticket office, to avoid the rush at the office on Monday morning.

This afternoon and evening will be afforded the last chances to see the really great entertainment, alike amusing and instructive, Maynard's "Evenings at the Centennial," at Franklin Hall. The views are taken in the highest style of the photographic art, the subjects are judiciously selected, and the spectator does not see on the screen a mere picture of the object represented, but the object itself. As the exhibition is to be located in Boston for the rest of the season, after this week, those who do not see it to-day will probably not see it at all. All the boys and girls who are not taken to Franklin Hall this afternoon may consider themselves swindled out of a rare treat which can be procured for them at a trifling expense.

At the meeting of the creditors of Hill & Carr held Friday forenoon at A. R. Hatch's office, Alfred F. Howard, Esq., was elected assignee.

The Ladies' Humane Society will hold a meeting on Monday, Oct. 9th, at Mrs. Lyman's, Austin street.

The County Commissioners have decided not to lay out the proposed new road in Rye, known as the "Philbrick road," running from the vicinity of the Farragut House to North Hampton.

To-morrow evening, at the Temple, Mr. George Everett, "the most remarkable materializing medium in the world," will give a "grand religious lecture illustrating spirit power in the light." Spirit hands, faces and forms will be produced for recognition, and other spiritual "manifestations" displayed. See advertisement.

All school children will be admitted to the matinee at Franklin Hall this afternoon at ten cents each. Eighty new views were received by Mr. Maynard on Friday. The matinee commences at 3 o'clock, the evening exhibition at 8; and Mr. Maynard promises that they shall be the best of the series.

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett appeared before the Common Council on Friday evening, advocating the city's taking $44,000 more stock in the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad. A petition is in circulation, and is being largely signed by heavy tax payers, in opposition to further aid being given the road.

At the meeting of the Concord Railroad stockholders in Manchester, Thursday, the following named gentlemen were chosen directors: Stephen Kenrick, Franklin; Samuel N. Bell, Benjamin F. Martin, Nathan Parker, Manchester; Joseph B. Walker, Concord; John J. Bell, Exeter; John J. Pickering, Portsmouth. At the organization of the Board of Directors, Hon. Stephen Kenrick was elected President, and Col. William H. Hackett, of this city, Clerk.

The Hayes and Wheeler Guards went to Dover Friday evening to join in a procession there. They made a fine show.

At the urgent request of many citizens, Mr. Maynard has consented to deliver his lecture on the "Drunkard's career," at 8 o'clock Sunday evening, in Franklin Hall. The lecture will be illustrated by a series of colored views, "Ten nights in a bar-room." The beautiful allegories, "Rock of Ages," and "No Cross, No crown," will be shown at the conclusion of the lecture.

One of the handsomest baskets of fish we ever saw was on exhibition at H. W. Briant's drug store on Thursday evening—five beautiful salmon trout sent to Mr. Briant by a friend "away down East." The smallest fish weighed fourteen ounces, and the largest one two pounds and four ounces, dressed.

Hon. Frank W. Miller, of this city, was appointed a silver medal for the old printing press—the first one used in this State—at the exhibition of antiquities at the State Fair.

On Tuesday evening next Mr. W. J. LeMoyne, with a large dramatic company, will produce Dombey & Son and Heep vs. Micawber at the Temple, Mr. LeMoyne appearing as Cap'n Ed'ard Cuttle and Uriah Heep. See advertisement.

Charles W. Gardner, Esq., of this city, will address the citizens of Dover at the City Hall in that place on Sunday, on the subject of Temperance, by invitation of the Dover Reform Club. Mr. Gardner is one of the active members of our local Reform Club, is warmly interested in the advancement of the temperance cause, and is an earnest and pleasing speaker.

—The Japanese fleet consists of sixteen vessels,—one ram, three iron-clads, four corvettes, two despatch-boats, one brig, one gun-boat, two schooners, a sailing transport and the imperial yacht. There are 1,200 men, including 171 officers, besides 264 marines and sixty-seven artillery men. The officers and engineers are trained in the naval school at Yeddo, which has 250 students.

New Hampshire Items.

The third day of the State Fair was a rainy one, and the attendance was light. The exercises of the day included a drawing match. Several pairs of oxen drew enormous loads. One pair, owned by Mr. Tallant of Concord, drew upon a drag, with apparent ease, a load which must have weighed four tons. The afternoon programme, the exhibition of the Polo Club, was postponed on account of the rain, until Friday.

Diphtheria is so prevalent in Dover that some persons propose to close the schools.

The Associated Press dispatch from St. Johnsbury, Vt., on Tuesday, did injustice to Rev. E. H. Hopkins, an insurance agent, who it appears has not absconded with a large sum of money. It is now claimed that he is ill at Colebrook, in this State.

—The Danbury man wrote from Europe pathetically: "You have seen pictures of shepherds with the proverbial crook in their hands. I didn't think a party could be a shepherd without this crook. I was glad the first man I saw tending sheep carried one of these crooks. I didn't know what the crook was for, but always believed it was a badge of occupation, whose origin I could not fathom, handed down from centuries, since the time sheep were invented. Imagine my genuine disgust when I saw this shepherd use his sacred crook to capture the straying animals by catching hold of their hind legs and tripping them up. The awful truth came upon me like a flash, and I sat down a broken hearted man. I had thought it a beautiful emblem, and it proves to be a hind-leg catcher. Thus floated the wind from another sweet vision of youth. I must have more salary, or I will sink into an earlier grave. I fear."

—A most interesting observation, referring to the power of germination in seed which is hundreds and even thousands of years old, is said to have been made by Prof. Hendreich in Greece. In the silver mines of Laurium, only the slags left by the ancient Greeks are at present worked off, in order to gain, after an improved modern method, silver still left in that dross. This refuse ore is probably about two thousand years old. Among it the seed of a species of glaucium or poppy was found, which had slept in the darkness of the earth during all that time. After a little while, when the slags were brought up and worked off at the melting ovens, there suddenly arose a crop of glaucium plants, with a beautiful yellow flower, of a kind unknown in modern botany, but which is described by Pliny and others as a frequent flower in ancient Greece.

—"I wouldn't be cook for the whole world!" exclaimed a fashionable young lady to her betrothed lover. "Of course," he replied. "If you were to cook for the whole world, you would never get through your work; but you'll be able to manage it nicely for our little family."

COOKED CORNED BEEF.

Articles are being published calculated to prejudice the public against using Cooked Corned Beef, and we would say in answer to them that in no instance has positive proof been established to show that such is the case.

Our goods are packed in a manner very similar to that of Corn, Tomatoes, Fruit and canned goods generally, (which have long been tested) and we use nothing whatever of a poisonous nature in their preparation.

In addition to our own statement we have the strong endorsement of Prof. Horsford of Cambridge, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country, who has fully tested and is familiar with the entire details of the preparation of our goods.

We would also state that we use none but the choicest of Beef that our Chicago market affords, and trust that with these statements the rapidly growing popularity of our Corned Beef may be increased.

For the information of those not knowing the fact we would state that in the process of canning there is a liability of imperfect sealing, which causes the can to expand. Meat contained in such cans is unfit for use and will be cheerfully paid for when returned to any grocer selling it.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. —August Lachel advertises in the Chicago Staats-Zeitung his matrimonial experience. A widow asked him to marry her, and offer-$2,000 as an inducement. He hesitated, and then she gave him all her property. Their honeymoon was not over before she became disagreeable. Says he: "She has insulted me in all things, and charges me with having a weak memory, and God knows what else. An old woman like her ought to be glad to have a husband like me, who has all his military papers. At first it was always, 'I have the honor to present to you my husband here.' And all the people were surprised that so old a person could get such a respectable-looking husband." He has separated from her, and to warn other men is the avowed object of his card, which closes as follows: "I learned unfortunately after my marriage, that she tormented and beat her first husband to death. He was a weak man. She cannot thrash me. Finally, she was always telling me that I should buy poison—only for the rats, of course. But I was very careful not to do it."

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 20, and I write you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have no fears but I shall regain flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which I owe to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no avail. He thought it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case incurable and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they had tried so long and spent the money and the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. R. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy, and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before, e was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Aquavica Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

MRS. WINSLOW'S

SOOTHING SYRUP!

For Children Teething, greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation—will allay ALL PAIN and spasmodic action, and is Sure to Regulate the Bowels.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and Relief and Health to Your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED, IN A SINGLE INSTANCE, TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW," after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation has been used with NEVER FAILING SUCCESS in

Thousands of Cases.

It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve Griping in the Bowels and Wind Colic.

We believe it the BEST AND SUREST REMEDY IN THE WORLD, in all cases of DYSENTERY and DIARRHŒA IN CHILDREN, whether it arises from teething, or from any other cause. Good Fresh Butter All The Year Round.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In the butter this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

The Mississippi Plan in South Carolina.

The Boston Journal publishes a letter, not written by a politician nor for publication, but a private letter from a United States army officer in Laurens County, South Carolina, to a friend in Massachusetts, the veracity of the writer being vouched for by the Journal. The letter should be widely circulated, and we copy the principal portion of it, as follows:

I wish the curtain could be withdrawn and you people of the North could look in here and see things just as they are. It is a very difficult matter to attempt to describe affairs in their true light, for no words of the English language could do justice to the subject.

In the first place, the republican party is made up mostly of negroes. The democratic party is the old rebel white party of the South who brought on the war and have created all the disturbance since. The negroes have a clean majority in the State of over 25,000, and, if let alone, ninety-nine out of every hundred will vote the republican ticket. The democrats are determined to overcome this majority by killing what they can and keeping the others from the polls on election day. They have organizations all over the State, numbering several thousand in each county. Whenever the republicans attempt to hold a political meeting these democratic clubs ride in, all armed, to the number of a thousand or more, and claim that the time is to be equally divided between the two parties. This works very well until a republican attempts to speak. Then they commence yelling and cursing, completely drowning his voice so none hear what he has to say. They use the language which would shame the d—l. The Governor tried to speak the other day, but the "high toned chivalry" of Edgefield county got after him, called him a ——— ——— ———, and other names worse than that. As a matter of course the Governor's self-respect would not permit him to speak under such circumstances. The republicans undertook to hold a meeting the other day, but just before the time for speaking the democratic clubs rode in to the number of over one thousand. Every man had his revolver strapped around him, took forcible possession of the meeting and held one of their own. The negroes quietly went home and gave up their own meeting to avoid trouble.

The next day the democrats had a meeting of their own; at night they got drunk and took possession of the whole town; an armed mob of over a hundred men attacked the hotel where some of the republican speakers of the day before were stopping and threatened to shoot them; they escaped through the back door and came to our camp for protection. The sheriff and most of the county officers took refuge in our camp to save their lives. I had no authority to interfere, except to protect all who came to me. The mob next went for the negroes, most of them hid up or took to the woods, but they captured several, and with revolvers at their heels, made them promise and take oath to vote the democratic ticket. This is the way the negroes are joining the democratic standard. This mob surged up and down through the streets and alleys of this old town, yelling, cursing and firing revolvers nearly all night. They acted like fiends incarnate, worse than Milton's devils. This same state of affairs exists all over South Carolina. There is hardly a place in the State where a republican will be permitted to make a speech, not even the Governor. The negroes are pretty thoroughly intimidated now, and hundreds, yes, thousands of them, will be afraid to vote.

To make the thing doubly sure, the democratic clubs have arranged to keep an armed force on the main roads leading to the polling places to turn the negroes back should they try to come in. If the negroes attempt to get up any club for campaign purposes then the cry is at once raised that the negroes are organizing an armed force to attack some town. The democratic clubs fall into line at once, take their rifles and revolvers, always in the interest of peace, of course, call themselves a "Posse Comitatus" and go for the "niggers" with a vengeance. The negroes generally break up, take to the woods and swamps to save their lives, where they are hunted out and shot on sight. Even their extreme love of peace will not permit them to stop here. They shoot down negroes wherever they find them, upon general principles, in the cotton fields and in their own cabins. Then the democratic press will flow with "Another negro outrage," in which they will describe how "the negroes attacked the town to burn it, but were gallantly repulsed; a number of negroes, but no white men killed." Now I can tell you one thing that is a fact, the negroes are not going to attack anything, they are too badly frightened and only too glad to be let alone, and not get attacked themselves.

The boast is made here openly that they will carry the State for the democracy or wade in blood. Well, now, there is not one man in five in Massachusetts who will believe that they mean what they say; but just think a moment, there have been over one hundred and fifty negroes killed in this State within the past two months; that is putting it a low estimate, and yet the campaign on the republican side has not commenced. What do you think it will be before it ends? They not only propose to fight the negroes, but the United States also, should the Government undertake to interfere. They are well provided with improved arms, and get much valuable assistance from Georgia, and encouragement from the Northern democratic press. They say that they are better prepared to fight now than they were in 1861.

In my opinion the only remedy is for the Government to put the whole State under martial law, flood the State with troops, arrest all violators of the law, without regard to color or politics, and punish all murderers. The Governor cannot do it, for he can call to his aid only the colored militia, and then there would be a big fight on hand, and the negroes would get the worst of it, as they always do. "A stitch in time saves nine," but the "stitches" are being lost every day.

It is a rare thing to meet a white man unarmed; though they cannot read or write, they will own a revolver; they will cheerfully go without a Bible to own a revolver. I believe there are four revolvers to one Bible in this county. The latter is almost wholly out of use. It would be extremely absurd for them to carry on a democratic campaign and read the Bible at the same time. Their salvation is wholly in the revolver. Take that away, and the rifle also, and they will lose the election and "reform." They are emphatic for "reform." They all are, but when I purchase supplies for the troops, to be paid for by the Government, they do their best to cheat me, saying "oh! the Government is able to pay it." They all do it; then they go out and march under the democratic banners of "Reform and Honesty," and demand "honest" men for office, denouncing "Radical" corruption. This is a question of vital importance to the Southern democrats, for they have big bills against the Government for emancipated slaves and war damages, to say nothing of pensions and the time which they freely gave to break up the country.

The picture which I have attempted to draw is not an extravagant one; it is underdrawn; no description can be given will do justice to the subject. I am not a politician and have no personal interest in politics and do not meddle with it, hence I have no object in writing what is not so.

The Governor of the State (Gov. Chamberlain) is a gentleman of fine talents and education, whose public life has been irreproachable. He stood up nobly last winter against corruption in the Legislature. No man ever fought a harder battle for honest Government, and for the interests of both races and classes; he won, and justly deserved, the respect and admiration of the whole country and the honest men of all political parties. Now when it is for their political interests to abuse him, they denounce him as thief, liar, scoundrel and a hundred other names, and denounce him for the very thing they commended him for before. The devil would be a saint with them if it suited their purpose, but "chivalry" takes a wide range in that direction.

The situation in South Carolina is indeed very grave. I do not know the result, but it seems to be a choice between yielding to armed mobs or to crush them by force, and it will take a pretty good force to enforce the laws. The civil officers here have given it up and are even afraid to ask for troops, for fear of being killed when the troops are removed. Men will shoot down negroes in open day, and not only own it, but brag of it and remain at home and no effort is made to arrest them. To illustrate this I enclose you the original statement of a dying negro, substantiated by two eye witnesses, taken by me at the bedside of the dying man. He died in about twelve hours after making this statement.

Perry Childers was in the field near the house of R. A. Gray, was first in the road walking along. One Butler Putnam approached and commenced to fire on him; fired three shots, one shot hitting him in the right hip, ranging downward and inward toward the spine. No words occurred between them. Putnam rode up on horseback and commenced firing on the said Childers without any apparent provocation.

Witnesses—J. P. Gray, W. L. Gray, } White.
Joseph Studart, colored.

Laurens Co., ten miles from C. H.

Butler Putnam has remained at his home, in the vicinity where the deed was committed, ever since. No effort has been made to arrest him. He sent word to the Sheriff that he would not be arrested; it seemed to be perfectly satisfactory to the sheriff. In the meantime he has shot one or two other negroes. Butler Putnam is at the head of one of the armed democratic clubs of Laurens county, and marches under their banners of "Honesty and Reform." He is in earnest on the question of "Reform," for Butler does not approve of the way things have been going on. Butler is a "Reformer," and the cry is raised all over the South, from such men, for "Reform." This is a perfect political cauldron, a pandemonium of "Reform" democracy.

I do not know how long I will remain here, but hope not long. My family is still in Massachusetts. It is enough for me to be here without dragging the rest of the family along.

—Kate Field sends to the New York Graphic a story illustrating the snobbishness of the "Country Parson," Dr. Boyd. This famous personage, it is said, has been known to wear white kid-gloves in the pulpit. He once met a stranger on a railway-train, and was much entertained with his conversation. He even went so far as to apologize for not inviting the stranger to dinner, explaining that Mrs. Boyd always expected her guests to dress for that solemn occasion. What was his dismay on learning that the person to whom he was speaking was the Duke of Argyle! He was weak enough to extend the invitation, notwithstanding Mrs. Boyd's rule, but the Duke declined. The story is told all over Scotland, and highly relished.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT,

Rutherford B. Hayes,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

William A. Wheeler,

OF NEW YORK.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6.

Charles Francis Adams, in his letter to the chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee, says: "From the days of the Credit Mobilier down to the last exposures made by the investigations of the last Congress, there is only one conclusion to be drawn, and that is the prevalence of corruption almost everywhere in the republican organization;" and yet this man would to-day have been acting in full fellowship with this "corrupt republican organization" had that party complied with his wishes by giving him the nomination.

And where does he turn for honesty? To a party whose present leader is an "artful dodger" of the laws of his country, a cheat and revenue swindler,—to a party that when last in power even democrats pronounced it a cheat, a humbug, an imposition. The Charleston Mercury, whose democracy no one will doubt, in April, 1859, (during Buchanan's administration,) said of this same democratic party: "It has disregarded Constitutional restrictions and set at naught positive Constitutional injunctions; it has aided in the passage of unjust and unequal laws: it has squandered the public money and robbed the common Treasury. Its promises have been broken, its pledges disregarded and its professions falsified. To conclude the whole matter, the National Democracy is corrupt, vacillating and false; it wears the garb of sanctity that its hideous deformity may be concealed; it woos but to ruin, and wins but to deceive."

Gov. Foote of Mississippi, also good democratic authority, about the same date, in a speech in Memphis, Tenn., said: "The democratic party now in existence is dishonest, corrupt and imbecile in the extreme, confessedly so. The organization is utterly and irretrievably rotten and debased." He referred to leading men's statements in support of this, and to the fact that in the city of New York, (at the time that Tweed, Tilden & Co. controlled Tammany,) among the best democratic officeholders there, not an honest man was to be found.

Mr. Buchanan, in his annual message of December, 1858, not only recommended that Congress should divest itself of the war making power and confer it on him, with the power of making treaties without the advise and counsel of the Senate, and further to subject the army and navy to his control, but demanded enormous appropriations of money to carry out his policies and purposes.

And this is the party Mr. Adams would put in charge of the destinies of this country! In what respect is it better now than it was in 1860? What new measure or policy has it introduced to recommend it to the confidence of the public? Where is the evidence of its purification since it lost power in 1860? Is it found in the North or in the South? In the South it has certainly undergone a change; a change from bad to worse. Being out of power and unable to prey upon the Government it has turned its attention to murdering inoffensive citizens.

On Tuesday, the 10th inst., will occur the important contest in Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia. In the first-named State will be elected a full ticket of State officers, thirteen members to the next Congress, the legislature, etc. In Ohio, minor State officers, all its members to the next Congress, and the legislature will be chosen. The State of West Virginia will elect its State officers and legislature; its members of Congress will not be chosen until the 7th of November. The contest in Indiana seems to be the turning point in the approaching Presidential election; both parties appear to be equally sanguine of success, and both dread the result of defeat, though republicans here claim that under any and all circumstances Hayes will carry it in November by about 10,000 majority.

MAXWELL.

News and Notes.

The evidence against John Murphy, the young man arrested on suspicion of murdering Mr. Ballard at Shrewsbury, Mass., is overwhelming.

George Thurston, son of a wealthy manufacturer of Providence, R. I., was fatally injured by fire in a house of ill-fame in Boston, on the night of the 3d, owing to the breaking of a kerosene lamp. A woman in his company was burned so badly that she died on Friday. Thurston is still living, but will die.

James Dalter, colored, fourteen years old, of Portland, was knocked from the top of a freight car at Rollinsford, Friday, by coming in contact with a bridge, and instantly killed.

—The song of Tilden to Tweed—"You can't have any of my bar'l money, now your bar'l money's gone."

Political.

Dr. Hayes, the Arctic explorer, spoke at Cold Springs, N. Y., and the democrats answered his arguments with a shower of stones, which fortunately hurt nobody seriously. He would have liked a colder reception.

The following clippings are from the political column of the New Haven Union, a soft-money democratic paper: "Republican papers hint that when Governor Tilden fell from his horse in Brooklyn he was in a condition similar to Bill Eaton's, on the occasion of the latter's last speech in Congress." "The fight continues warm in Indiana, and both republicans and democrats are preparing for defeat, the organs of both parties howling in a wild kind of a way about the shipment to Indiana of repeaters, and money to bribe election inspectors. There is also a great call for Centennial visitors from that region to go home." "Brooklyn democratic political managers have reformed, and assessments on the members of the Fire Department are now at the following rates: Assistant engineers, $30; foremen, $15; drivers, $9; firemen, $5."

On Friday the greenback candidate for governor of Indiana, Wolcott, withdrew from the race in favor of Gen. Harrison. He found that the loudest-talking greenbackers of the democratic party would vote the straight democratic ticket, leaving the republican greenbackers alone to vote the greenback ticket; and he did not care to help the iron-bound and brass-mounted democracy to a victory.

Indiana and Ohio vote to-morrow. The republicans claim Ohio by 5000 to 8000 majority, and hope to crowd the democrats in Indiana; and some of the more sanguine have hopes of carrying even the latter State. The democrats claim Indiana by a rousing majority, and talk considerably about "beating Hayes in his own State," Ohio. We shall prophesy how both States will go in a few days—about the time Colorado has settled down into some kind of a State—democratic or republican.

—Jim Fisk was not a regular patron of Delmonico's. He went further up town, but now and then he spilled over from his bowl of bounty there. On one occasion, at 4:30 P. M., he called at the office. "Charley," said he, "I want a tip-top standup lunch, with flowers, and all that sort of thing, several in the Erie building for 150 men at half-past six." "That's two hours from now." "Well, a great deal can be done in two hours." "All right, colonel, I'll do it, but it will be an expensive job for you." "Who said anything about the cost? You do it and I'll pay for it." Of course the lunch was served, and equally of course the $1,500 was paid.

—A curious discovery has been made in the convent of Santa Maria la Nuova at Rome, which formerly belonged to the Franciscan monks. It consists in three underground cells, accessible only through a hidden trap-door, and where monks, guilty of grave offences, were probably put. In the first there is a little light through an opening in the wall; the second is narrower and darker; the third is without a ray of light, and is a dismal hole. Sinister and mostly obliterated inscriptions cover the walls, and numerous instruments of torture, as well as human bones, were found.

—A Kentucky democratic editor denounces Ingersoll because "he throws the dirt of his disbelief and ridicule upon the Bible, an instrument as precious and dear to the souls of the American people as the name of its illustrious author, Thomas Jefferson, is green in their memories."

—A sweetheart is called a turtle dove, so a coquette must be a mock-turtle dove.

TORCH-LIGHT POLITICS.

The Hayes and Wheeler Guards of this city turned out with about one hundred torches, Friday evening, on the occasion of their visit to Dover to join a procession with the Dover clubs. There would have been a still larger delegation had the demonstration taken place at the time first set for it,—Thursday evening, when it was postponed on account of the rain,—or had the weather looked better at the time the Guards started on Friday evening. They did not wear the white leggings which are a part of their uniform, on account of the mud; and marched to the depot through a smart shower. The procession at Dover marched in the following order: Dover National Band; squad of cavalry; Hayes and Wheeler Continental Guards of Dover, one hundred men; Hayes and Wheeler Cadets of Dover, fifty lads; drum corps; Hayes and Wheeler Guards of Portsmouth. Flags, illuminations and fireworks were displayed on the route. After the procession, Hon. E. H. Rollins, Hon. J. W. Emery and others addressed the people in the City Hall. Much enthusiasm was manifested. A beautiful banner was presented to the Dover Continentals by Hon. Samuel M. Wheeler. The Portsmouth club returned to this city soon after midnight, marched through Deer, High, Congress, Middle and State streets to the Headquarters, and dismissed with three cheers for Hayes and Wheeler. For a first parade it was a most creditable one. The full uniform consists of a red coat with white trimmings, white belt, white cap with red trimmings, and white leggings, and shows off finely by torchlight. Now if the Tilden and Hendricks Cadets, or whatever the democratic uniformed organization is to be called, will only hurry up and give us a street parade or two, the good people of Portsmouth may yet be made aware that a Presidential campaign is in progress in time for them to get ready to vote in November.

TEMPERANCE.

The Portsmouth Temperance Reform Club held its quarterly meeting on Thursday evening last and elected the following officers:

President, John S. Treat; Vice Presidents, James W. Marden, Joseph French, Ransom B. Crooke, George R. Brown, Samuel Taylor, James Eaton, Wm. H. Seymour; Chaplain, John A. Goss; Treasurer, John W. Wilson; Secretary, Wm. Wallis; Finance Committee, Charles A. Canney, Freeman F. Sanborn, John Turner; Ticket Seller, John W. Wilson; Ticket Takers, John C. Lewis, George Ham, Augustus Ham; Standard Bearer, John H. Webber; Hall Janitor, Morris Tobey; Missionary, Wm. A. Loyne; Corresponding Secretary, B. Frank Thorndike.

This is the third re-election of President Treat and the ensuing quarter will complete one year of his chairmanship. To the earnest and able manner in which he has presided at the meetings of the Club is due much of its success; and should he adhere to his determination to relinquish the office at the close of the year, it will be a source of regret to every one who has at heart the cause of temperance reform, as well as a matter of embarrassment to the organization.

JOTTINGS.

The American House and buildings on Vaughan street, are being greatly improved. The roof of the house has been raised several feet, a piazza put on its front, windows altered and enlarged, and the interior thoroughly overhauled and more conveniently arranged. The outbuildings have been newly shingled, and the whole neighborhood is benefitted by the improved appearance of things.

Our York correspondent writes that "Howard and Ashcroft's Combination gave a good entertainment at York Town Hall on the evening of the 4th. The clog and jig dance by Tommy Ward was decidedly rich; Howard and Ashcroft in their specialties were applauded; Harry Weston sang some of his best selections and had to repeat; Tony Washburn, contortionist, performed with much skill and activity; Fred Randall, as the "funny old gal," received a hearty round of applause; and, in a word, the whole show was a good one, and we opine we could give them a better audience would they make us another visit."

One of the most common breaches of maritime regulations, by American coasting and fishing vessels, is the neglect to show the prescribed lights at night. This is a risky way of saving a few cents or a little trouble, and occasions not a few collisions; the schooner Addison Gilbert, run down and sunk just outside of Whale's-back some years ago by a stone-sloop, would not have been struck had her side lights been up; and the fact that they were not up at the time of the collision caused her owners' suit against the stone-sloop for damages to be thrown out of court as soon as it was made known. Recently, at Newport, R. I., the captains of three vessels have each been fined $200 for neglecting to display their night signals. As it is their first offence, (or their first conviction,) the Secretary of the Treasury will doubtless remit the money, but it will be a warning to a large fleet of vessels that are negligent of this important matter.

Fruit growers complain that somebody is stealing their apples, and refer the trespassers to the "golden rule" and the New Hampshire statutes. Dr. Preston tells us of a pet pear tree which after being for several years nurtured with much care had on it last week a barrel of the finest of pears. One morning on going to gather them he found that the tree had been entirely stripped by some contemptible villain the night previous, not so much as one pear being left for him to taste of. It is hoped that any one catching a thief in his garden will deal with him in all severity of the law. Journal.

Washburn's Last Sensation drew a good audience to the Temple on Friday evening, though the weather was not particularly favorable. The show gave good satisfaction, as is usual with Washburn's entertainments; but it was nearly an hour too long. The programme was long enough without the performers responding to demands for repetition.

On the line of the Concord Railroad there are still remaining and in good condition a few of the short, heavy rails imported from England and laid down when the road was first built.

The Rockingham Christian Conference has voted $75 for the Centennial Church, now building at Brooklyn, N. Y. The next meeting of the Conference will be held at Manchester, October 1, 1877.

On Thursday morning last the blacksmith shop of Mr. William H. Brown, at Kittery Lower Foreside, was destroyed by fire. Mr. Brown is an industrious and prudent man, but had previously met with losses resulting from no fault of his own; his neighbors did not propose to see him flattened out with hard luck, so a subscription paper was passed around on Thursday, headed by Rev. Daniel Austin with a donation of $20; money enough was secured that day to buy stock for building a new shop, the stock was bought and partly worked up on Friday, and on Saturday evening Mr. Brown's new shop was ready for occupancy, the work of erecting it having all been gratuitously done by men who could better afford to give labor than money. Good work, and a good neighborly spirit.

A. F. Howard, Esq., appointed assignee in the bankrupt case of Hill & Carr, has filed his bond of $14,000, which action will relieve all the attachments made by Sheriff Kent. Mr. Howard will at once commence his duties.

The Salem Cadets will visit this city on the 16th, as guests of the Heavy Artillery.

Fully five hundred school children attended the Saturday afternoon exhibition of Centennial views, and in the evening another large audience gathered. Mr. Maynard leaves for Portland to-day, and will exhibit there for a week, prior to locating in the Old South at Boston for an indefinite period. Our Portland contemporaries need not be afraid to "set the show up steep," as it is all it claims to be; its popularity here was but fairly indicated by the large audience on Saturday evening (not a good night for shows in this city) after the exhibition had been running a full week.

The Republic magazine for November is rich with valuable political material. It is a perfect broadside of facts and figures, and cannot fail to have a powerful effect on the November contest. The Republic has grown in public favor year by year, and deserves the support it has received. The present number is one of the best yet issued, and ought to be in the hands of all who are actively engaged in the campaign. How to Grow Cheerful,

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority—of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to take a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.

—An Englishman who insulated his bedstead by placing underneath each post a broken off bottom of a glass bottle, says he had not been free from rheumatic gout for fifteen years, and that he began to improve immediately after the application of the insulators. A local paper quoting this item, wisely adds: "There's many a fellow who could cure his gout, if he would break off the bottoms of his glass bottles in time."

—The German Government has recently built a kitchen a thousand feet long, and all of stone and iron, to supply food for the army in time of war. Its machinery is driven by two eighteen hundred horse-power engines, and is capable of boiling down and condensing within portable limits one hundred and seventy oxen, grinding three hundred and fifty tons of flour, making three hundred thousand loaves of bread daily. It is also able to supply enough preserved oats for one day's feeding of the horses belonging to an army of two hundred and eighty thousand men.

—There is a native dog in Newfoundland now sixteen years old. He is gray and his fangs have fallen out; but he is provided with a cosy kennel, and food that does not need much mastication. Around his neck is a glazed collar having three medals, one of silver and two of gold. One of the latter is from the Royal Humane Society of England; the other is the gift of an American captain, and the silver medal is from a former Mother Superior of St. Michael's Convent, in St. Johns. All three testimonials are in recognition of the animal's sagacity in saving lives.

ESTABLISHED IN 1835.

THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL
— IN THE —
UNITED STATES.
No. 9 Beaver Street, - - - Albany, N. Y.
SURE CURES AND LOW PRICES.

Dr. YOUNG,
SUCCESSOR TO
Dr. TELLER,
DECEASED.

The above named private Hospital was established in Albany in 1835 by Dr Lispenard and for a number of years its affairs were presided over by that gentleman, but for the past 20 years, Dr. Teller, who is now deceased, transacted the business of the Institution.

Owing to the great demand for more spacious apartments on account of the large increase of business, the Hospital has been removed to No. 9 Beaver Street, two doors above its old location, where patients will find magnificently furnished rooms for their reception, and are so arranged that patients do not come in contact with one another, seeing only the doctor, thereby avoiding the unpleasantness of meeting others, which always occurred at the old office.

LADIES will find rooms provided for their especial accommodation and entirely private.

YOUNG MEN, addicted to secret habits, who have impaired their health and destroyed the vigor of their minds, thus depriving themselves of the pleasures of married life and also those afflicted with private diseases of any nature, are advised that in consulting Dr. Young they will find a physician fully qualified to cure and restore them to full health and manly vigor.

Dr. Teller's great work for the married, or those contemplating marriage—200 pages—full of plates,—price 25 cents. Sent to all parts, under seal, by mail post paid.

TO THE LADIES—DR. YOUNG still retains the only agency in America for the sale of Dr. Vichot's Italian Female Monthly Pills. Sent by mail on receipt of $1.50, price per box.

DR. YOUNG is the only agent for Dr. La Mott's celebrated Galvanic Belts.

Invalids out of the city can be cured by consulting he Doctor by letter, and enclosing remittance. Medicines sent by mail or express, securely packed from observation. All letters must be addressed to

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for four years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from Maj. John W. Lord, one month later. Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 8th, and would say you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to the great merits of the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking Dr. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE.

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, but could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten weeks, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if you take it you will cure me, that will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrell, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they are. I shall be recommending them to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before e was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

BUTTER IN 20 MINUTES.

Lincoln Butter Powder is an entirely harmless article made from a celebrated English recipe, and now in daily use by many of the most noted farmers in the butter counties around Philadelphia.

In hot weather this Powder makes butter much firmer and sweeter than it usually is, and keeps it from turning rancid. It also removes the strong flavor of turnips, weeds, corn stalks, cotton seed, etc.; and the increased yield of butter much more than pays the trifling expense of using it.

A Chinese Gambling Den.

Ten o'clock in the evening, once more in the streets amidst throngs of jabbering Celestials, with gambling houses, theaters and opium dens in full play. Crossing the street we enter a tea store kept by a Celestial sporting the name of Wing Hong. He bows courteously to our salute and says, "Good eeven, genemen." "John," exclaims a friend who accompanies us, "these gentlemen come all the way from the States and want to see a gambling den. You show us we give you two dollars." Enough said. Two dollars! It will purchase enough chickens for a three days' feast, and John prepares to accompany us. Passing up Dupont street we pause in front of a dirty two story building. In front of the basement door, on a low stool, sits a Chinaman, with hands crossed, smoking and apparently the very picture of inattention and listlessness. As quick as he catches sight of us he stamps on the payment with his foot, a rattle of chains and bolts is heard, a bar falls into its place with a heavy thud, and the entrance to the "den" is secured. This Celestial is continually on the lookout for "Melicans," who by him are all looked upon as policemen bent upon destroying that business that furnishes him and his co-partners a livlihood. Wing Hong steps up, a lively conversation ensues and the result of it is that the door swings open and we enter a low, narrow passage. Advancing perhaps fifteen feet we come to another door, opening which we find ourselves in the den proper, a room thirty by forty feet, brilliantly lighted, but rather shabbily furnished. In one corner on a slightly raised platform stands a Chinese woman, gotten up in a gorgeous manner regardless of expense, playing on a clarionet. Every few minutes she breaks out in a wild refrain, that our informant tells us is the "Song of the Jasmine Flower." On a stool at her feet sits a man playing an accompaniment on a one stringed fiddle. At the other end of the room, behind a counter, sits the banker who owns and controls the den. He is a fat, clever-looking fellow, and seems the very personification of good living and contentment. On the counter at his right is a large pile of Chinese cash, round metal coins with a square hole in the center, about the same size as the old-fashioned United States cent. One thousand of these are equivalent to one dollar in our money. Behind this pile sits the assistant, with a wire peculiarly shaped at the end. Before the counter is an excited throng of Chinamen making bets on the "count," which as fast as they are offered are recorded by the clerk at the left, on a book kept for the purpose, the bank taking odds against all offers. When the bets are all in the man at the right takes the wire and dexterously rakes the pile of coin into piles, four in each, until the exact result is obtained. For instance, if there are one hundred and sixty piles those who bet on the even number win, those who did not lose. Bets are also made as to the exact number of coins in the whole pile. And this is all there is about the game, yet simple and easy as it appears it possesses a wonderful fascination for hundred of Celestials, who come here nightly to squander and gamble away the small amount of money they have worked so hard to earn. Easy as it seems to guess the number not one in a hundred ever does it, and there is not an instance on record where anyone broke the bank. "We are here as visitors, but out of courtesy to the banker let us try our hand at 'busting the bank,'" says my comrade. To this I assent and stepping up to the counter bet four bits that the number of fours in the pile will be an odd one. If odd wins I get back my four bits and one dollar besides, the betting being two to one in my favor. The "counter" shuffles the coin, divides it into piles, and—even numbers win. I try again with the same success, while the banker nods condescendingly at me, and says; "Velley bad you no win him, hopes you catchee him next time." Not if I know myself, you bland-looking Celestial scoundrel, you. "Good-night, John," we say. "Good eeven, come again uder time," and passing out we are once again in the open air.—San Francisco paper.

—A young married man, of extremely jealous disposition, recently visited one of the most famous clairvoyants in New York. Being far from home, he wanted to know what his wife was doing. "She is looking out of the window, evidently expecting some one." "That is strange," said Benedick; "whom can she expect?" "Some one enters the door, and she caresses him fondly," went on the clairvoyant. "It can't be!" cried the excited husband; "my wife is true to me." "Now he lays his head in her lap and looks tenderly in her eyes." "It's false! I'll make you pay dearly for this!" yelled the jealous husband. "Now he wags his tail," said the medium. The green-eyed monster subsided, and Mr. Younghusband cheerfully paid over his five dollars.

—A lady of great beauty and attractiveness, who was an ardent admirer of Ireland, once crowned her praise of it at a party, by saying, "I think I was meant for an Irishwoman." "Cross the channel, madam," remarked Samuel Lover, the novelist, who happened to be present. "Millions will say you were meant for an Irishman."

—Remember the poor, and while you are about it remember that they need something.

Hayes' Platform in War.

In 1864, when Hayes was in the army, being nominated for Congress he was requested to come home and stump his district. His reply was, "I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress ought to be scalped!"

Hayes' Platform in Peace.

"Honest money for all, and free schools for all. There should be no inflation which will depreciate the one, nor sectarian interference which will destroy the other."

Democratic Testimony.

Whenever a champion of the bloody shirt gets up at the North and begins to talk about a reign of terror among the negroes of any section of the South whatever, he ought at once be snatched from the stand and dragged through the nearest horse-pond for slandering one section of the country and insulting the intelligence of the other. Louisville Courier-Journal (dem.)

The Eagle Lake massacre of negroes has gone the rounds of the Northern press, and we have yet to hear that Gov. Coke has taken action for bringing the murderers to justice. * * Three or four men were shot at Cuero last Sunday, and it wasn't a good day for shooting in that live place. The butchery that occurred last week at Decatur has scarcely a parallel in the history of crime. Rev. W. G. Lealand, a methodist minister, his wife, step-daughter, and four step-sons were murdered at their home, six miles from Montague, by a party of disguised men.—Texas State Gazette (dem.)

The Herald received three telegrams yesterday, noting the fiendish, cold-blooded murder of seven persons, six miles south of the town of Montague, in Montague county. * * But a few short weeks ago eight negroes were shot down in cold blood near Eagle Lake in Colorado county.—Dallas (Texas) Herald (dem.)

Freight on Gross Weight.

A meeting of shipowners engaged in the North American carrying trade was held at Liverpool, England, on the 28th of July, to consider the best means of removing certain anomalies in the custom which rules the payment of freight on cotton and other produce, delivered in Liverpool from various ports south of Baltimore, in the United States. At present, the custom is to pay all freights from United States ports north of Baltimore (including that port) in net cash on delivery, and on the gross weight delivered, without any deduction whatever. This is a simple and rational mode of payment with which everybody is satisfied. But from all United States ports south of Baltimore, freights on cotton and other goods delivered in Liverpool have hitherto been, and still are, paid subject to a deduction of about four per cent. for tare, and three months' interest for cash. This is a complicated and irrational mode of payment, which cannot be defended on any reasonable ground. The absurdity of this custom is still more apparent from the fact that cotton, etc., from these same ports, delivered elsewhere than in Liverpool, pays freight on the gross weight, and in net cash.

The shipowners engaged in this trade think that these ridiculous anomalies should be abolished, and that all freights from the ports in question (and, indeed, from all the ports in the world) should be paid on the same clear, simple and equitable principle, namely, on the gross weight delivered, and in net cash on delivery, without any deduction or alternative whatever. When this system is adopted generally, it will greatly simplify business, and also prevent many disputes and delays, and tend to diminish litigation. In adopting this principle the owners of sailing ships are only following the example of steamship owners engaged in the trade, whose bills of lading contain a clause to the effect that—

"Freight is payable on the landing of the goods on gross weight delivered, without any allowance of credit or discount to the consignee, etc."

This is quite right and fair, as well as clear and simple, because by this rule the ship is only getting paid for the work she does; and as steamship owners and sailing ship owners are equally "carriers by sea," the same principle of payment of freight should be adopted by sailing ships and steamers, from whatever port in the world the goods may have been carried. The above points having been fully discussed and considered, it was unanimously resolved,

"That the shipowners of the United Kingdom and the colonies, and of the United States of America and of the Continent of Europe, be invited to join in this movement, by adopting a general form of Bill of Lading, to be used by all sailing ships, or by insisting upon the insertion of the following clause in all other forms of Bills of Lading, namely: Freight payable on the landing of the goods on gross weight delivered, without any allowance of credit or discount to the Consignee. Risk of fire and collision excepted. Quality, weight and contents unknown.

That the resolution just passed be signed by all the shipowners present, and others, and that the same, with a report of this meeting, be printed and circulated amongst shipowners generally, with a request that they will employ only such brokers as will aid in carrying out the above objects."

News and Notes.

While a gang of men were at work in the hold of the ship Europa, (a vessel engaged in carrying kerosene between the United States and Germany,) in New York, on Friday, a workman named Casey lighted his pipe with a match which he then threw down. The ship instantly took fire, and though the crew of the vessel and most of the workmen escaped, five carpenters were cut off from the hatchways and were not reached for half an hour, by which time the fire department had extinguished the flames. The five men were all dead when found, having been suffocated but not burned. Casey, the man whose carelessness caused the fire, was so terribly burned in attempting to extinguish it that he died on Sunday. John Sever was badly burned, but will possibly recover. The ship was damaged about $7000.

The United States Court at St. Louis on Saturday confirmed the sale of the Missouri Pacific and Atlantic & Pacific Railroads, the former for $700,000, with interest as it may be established by the United States Supreme Court, and the latter for $500,000.

Cleveland, Ohio, had a big fire Sunday night. It broke out in an elevator on the river bank, destroyed the elevator and several wharves, and then spread toward the heart of the city. At two o'clock, Monday morning, the fire had nearly reached the Grand Union Depot, and the railroad companies were hastily moving their cars. The damage at that hour was estimated at $175-000, and preparations were being made to blow up buildings.

In a memorial of "The International Association for obtaining a uniform decimal system of Measures, Weights and Coins," presented to Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, Chancellor of Her Majesty's Exchequer, in March, 1859, it is estimated that the adoption of the Metric System would save in the management of the London & Northwestern R. R. £10,000 ($50,000) a year; and in the various departments of Her Majesty's Government not less than £500,000 ($2,500,000) every year. When we consider that this computation was made by competent authorities, and remember that the amount named would be saved every year by a single railroad, it is evident that the total saving made by the adoption of the Metric weights and measures would be almost incredibly large. The same proportionate saving would be effected in every market, store, factory, counting-room, in short everywhere, for in business life nearly every sentence spoken or written contains some expression of quantity.

Southern and Western travellers to the Centennial who intend visiting New York will find the Grand Union Hotel (opposite the Grand Central Depot) one of the best Hotels in New York to stop at. It is so near the depot that the traveller is spared all annoyance and expense of carriage, baggage and expressage hire, and its location is such that street car and stage lines radiate from this point to all parts of the city. It has elegantly-furnished rooms, has all the latest improvements, and is run on the European plan. Travellers visiting New York, or on their way to or from the Centennial will find this hotel par excellence in every respect. It is under the management of G. F. & W. D. Garrison, and has become one of the most popular Hotels in the city of New York.

New Hampshire Items.

The United States Circuit Court for the District of New Hampshire began its October term at Exeter on Monday, Judge Shepley presiding. There are several important cases to be heard, the most important being that of the Bartlett Land and Lumber Company, composed of Portland merchants, against Daniel Saunders of Lawrence, Mass., this case involving the title to a large tract of land near the line of the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad. This suit is removed from the State Courts. There are several patent cases to be argued. Patrick Manning of Boston and Charles Chrogham of Manchester will be tried at this term for illegal voting at Manchester a year ago last Spring. Dennis Connor of Boston was arrested at the same time Manning was, but about six months ago procured bail, and has fled the country, it is reported.

The Twin Mountain House caught fire from a defective chimney one night last week, and was only saved from destruction by the greatest exertion. Loss on building and furniture from $4000 to $5000. It will be put in thorough repair before another summer.

The Manchester Mills are running nights to keep up with their orders. Hard times are fleeing fast.

George Morgan of Manchester died a little after noon on Wednesday, of lock-jaw, resulting from a frightful wound he received from the accidental discharge of a shot-gun he was carrying while out on Saturday, Sept. 23.

Charles Flanders of Exeter, sixty years of age, saved a son of George Black from drowning on Wednesday. The boy went down the third time before he was rescued. This is the ninth person Flanders has saved from a watery grave.

The location of L. F. Busiel's mill, at Laconia, was formerly occupied by a tannery, and in digging for a foundation for a new dye-house recently, 31 sides of leather, in a good state of preservation, were found, which had doubtless been buried for thirty years past.

Political.

The Charleston News and Courier, the leading democratic organ of South Carolina, publishes several resolutions adopted by the Easterlin's Mills Democratic Club, respecting the attitude to be maintained toward "radical leaders." The club resolve that they will not rent land, furnish a home, give employment to or have business transactions with any radical leader or any member of his family. The News commends these resolutions to the attention of the different clubs throughout the State, and says that many other clubs in Orangeburg and Barnwell counties have adopted them. It is intended that the names of obnoxious leaders in each township be sent to the different clubs throughout the country. Social and business ostracism is to be added to shot-gun terrorism. Such is the Southern method of promoting the cause of "reform."

About the most conspicuous point in democratic meetings is the applause which follows the statement that one of the missions of the democratic party is to sweep out of power the whole of the ninety thousand federal office-holders.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, now a "Tilden and reform" organ, a week before Tilden's nomination called him "a scheming old shark," "a hypocrite, a political swindler" and "a public plunderer," and said: "Tilden and his friends bamboozled the poor workingmen of New York by telling them that they could have plenty of work at good wages if they would vote for him for Governor. They did so. To-day there are more idle workingmen in New York city than when Dix was Governor."

A New York merchant, writing from Augusta, Georgia, to his partner, says: "One of my Charleston customers, who is commander of a 'civil' artillery company, told me it was their intention to provoke an outbreak among the negroes in order that there might be an opportunity of opening fire on the darkies, and in case they did once open the ball they intended following them up and shooting every d—d nigger in Charleston. They even have it arranged so that the negroes can not possibly retreat outside of the town. Then they are howling because the Government wants to place troops in some portions of the South (as they say) to intimidate the democrats from voting. The negroes are inclined to be quiet if let alone. Unless negroes are driven from the polls and not allowed to vote, South Carolina will go republican, I think. The whites say they mean to exterminate the negro if allowed to do so."

Charles Francis Adams, having been invited to deliver a speech in Mansfield, O., has written a letter declining an invitation, and at the same time giving his reasons why the advocates of reform should support Tilden. These reasons are identical with those that have formed the principal stock in trade of the Bourbon newspapers and orators since the campaign began, and they do credit neither to Mr. Adams' ingenuity nor candor. It is the same old sophistry that democrats will swallow for want of better argument, and that republicans reject as shallow and absurd: That Tilden is the typical reformer of the age, who, during forty years of close association with the most corrupt political organization the world ever saw, only discovered his capacity as a reformer when the time had come to intrigue for the Presidential nomination; and that Hayes, who, for three terms administered a great public trust with such matchless honor and fidelity that no reform was necessary, is not the man to be trusted in an emergency like the present. This is stuff and nonsense unworthy of Mr. Adams, and the people will not have it.—Chicago Tribune.

—How Methuselah would smile at the idea of getting excited over one Centennial. "When I was a boy," said he, "we used to take a little stock in 'em, but it soon wore out."

How to Grow Cheerful,

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority—of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.
